D. C. Naval Man Found Murdered in N. Y. Hotel

Film Expert Bound, Garroted With Torn Sheet; Robbery Believed Motive

Trussed in a Chinese strangle knot, the body of an Anacostia Naval film expert was found in his struggle-wrecked room in a New York City hotel yesterday.

The victim was 35-year-old Harvey Haeberle of Leesburg Pike, Falls Church, Va., war-time Navy officer and father of two children. Notified by police, his wife left immediately for New York.

Room Ransacked

Authorities here said he carried no confidential information, but his room, baggage and clothing had been thoroughly ransacked. New York homicide detectives reported. He had been making a Navy recruiting film and was to have conferred with producers.

His body, found in a fifth-floor room of the Henry Hudson Hotel, 353 W. 57th st., was clad only in shorts and undershirt. Police said the slayer, or slayers, had bound him with bed sheet strips. The ankles were tied, his arms wrapped in sheets and arms and legs had been bent back in an arc and tied to his neck. A victim, so tied, could strangle himself if he struggled against the knot, police pointed out.

Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, chief medical examiner, attributed death to strangulation, but said he could not set a time of death until the autopsy.

Chairs Overturned

Haeberle's room bore ample evidence of the terrific struggle he must have given his assailants. A reading lamp and chairs were overturned, an ash tray had been knocked from the bureau, desk drawers were opened and the contents scattered over the room.

The pockets of his suit were turned inside out. His billfold was missing and no jewelry of any kind was found on the body.

Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallander said robbery was the only motive they could give for the slaying. Authorities here said he carried no official information that "anyone would want to steal."

Haeberle, a Naval Reserve officer who retained his photographic duties as a civilian after the war, checked into the hotel at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

He was slain sometime between then and 2:30 p. m. yesterday when a maid, Mary Keane, discovered the twisted body on the bed. Scene of the slaying is two doors west of the Westmore, where former Actress Shelia Mannering was mysteriously strangled to death last July 10.

No Noises Reported

Haeberle frequently stayed at the hotel and hal telegraphed for a reservation Tuesday. The hotel auditor's office is only five doors from the murder scene, but employes told police they heard no noises during the day.

Because the violent struggle undoubtedly would have attracted attention during the day and the fact that the victim apparently was in bed when surprised by the intruders, led police to believe the attack came at night.

Diaper Service Wants Two-Way Radios in Trucks

By the United Press

The Fort Worth, Tex., Lullaby Diaper Service has a unique idea for speeding service to its clients—two-way radios in its trucks.

The owners told the Federal Communications Commission yesterday radio pickup system would "render a superior service to the community in the public interest convenience and necessity."

The radios presumably would be used to reroute trucks to "crisis" points.

Anti-Lynching Bill Approved By House Unit

Southerners Aroused Anew as GOP Pushes Truman Proposals

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A Republican-controlled House Judiciary Subcommittee yesterday approved legislation imposing heavy Federal penalties against lynching members of lynch mobs and "negligent" State and local officials.

Thus opened a GOP House-Senate push for antilynching, anti-poll-tax and FEPC legislation high up on the President's own civil rights program.

Immediate effect, not overlooked by the Republicans, was to prod protesting Southern Democrats to new lengths in their threatened bolt from the Democratic Party.

Southerners Blame Truman

Southern legislators and Governors, seriously considering an electoral college revolt in many States, blame it all on the President's civil rights recommendations early this month.

Today, Governor William M. Tuck is expected to ask the Virginia State Assembly to initiate action freeing its Democratic Presidential electors to vote for a candidate other than President Truman. Virginia's action may set the revolt pattern in other States.

In the House, Southerners who organized last week to fight the President's proposals released a list of 74 Democrats pledged to "cooperate" with Southern Governors against Mr. Truman's rights program.

House Judiciary Subcommittee action moving forward the anti-lynching bill will be followed up by the full House committee, possibly today. The House itself is expected to vote within the next two weeks.

Committee Voted 4 to 2

The subcommittee vote was 4 to 2. Voting to approve the bill were two Republicans—Clifford P. Case (N. J.), author of the bill, and Edward J. Devitt (Minn.), and two Democrats, Michael A. Feighan (Ohio) and William T. Byrne (N. Y.). One Republican, Frank Fellows (Me.), and one Democrat, Fadjo Cravens (Ark.), voted "No."

Fellows sided with the Southern Democrats, terming the bill unconstitutional and "a flagrant violation of the rights and obligations of the individual States."

Case, subcommittee chairman, said there was no doubt in his opinion that both the full committee and the House itself will approve it at an early date.

Across the Capitol meanwhile: 1. Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), whose own Senate Judiciary subcommittee recently concluded hearings on companion anti-lynching legislation, said his group will give it "high priority."

Mother of 7 Listed Missing With $1300

By The Associated Press

A 38-year-old mother of seven children, who was carrying $1300 in her purse when she left her Upper Marlboro, Md., home, was the object of a police search last night while her husband expressed growing concern as to her fate.

The State police teletype broadcast a missing persons notice for Mrs. Nora May Mullins, who with her husband, Orpha Mullins, operates a garage on Route 301, about three miles from Upper Marlboro.

Mullins said he wife left home in her car Tuesday evening to attend a movie. Two acquaintances spoke to her about 11 p. m. but she had not been seen since, he said.

The garage man said he became worried after discovery of his wife's car on the street, with four ignition wires ripped from their connections.

He said that her purse contained about $1300 in cash and checks. Mullins added that it was not unusual for his wife to carry large sums because she managed the business affairs of the garage.

The husband said he first learned of his wife's disappearance after receiving a telephone call from a relative in Washington around 3 a. m. He noticed then that his wife was not at home and her car was not in the garage.

An immediate search led to discovery of the car. Mullins said he found a State trooper who radioed the information to the barracks at Waldorf for relay on the teletype.

Troopers at Waldorf and county police at Upper Marlboro said last night they had no track of Mrs. Mullins.

The husband said that the passing of hours made him more convinced that Mrs. Mullins had met with a mishap.

Tipsy Organist Peals Out Blues at Pilgrims' Church

Plymouth, Mass., Feb. 25 (AP).—Policeman George Cowdery ran to the historic First Church Unitarian (Church of the Pilgrims) because he heard the bells playing.

He heard the carillon pealing "The St. Louis Blues."

Policeman Cowdery arrested church organist Edward Ward, 42, who later was given a year's probation for intoxication.

Ward had been organist and choir director at First Church for about a year. Police said he had no previous intoxication record.

Georgetown Area Rezoned As Residential

D. C. Board Decides To Compromise on Section of 16 Acres

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Old Georgetown, Washington's area of historic homes, was designated for restricted, residential use only yesterday by the District Zoning Commission.

Compromising original plans for rezoning about 17 acres of the area, the commission authorized rezoning of about 16 acres from commercial to restricted, residential.

The commission, analyzing comments made at a hearing on February 11, declared that the new plan reduced the ranks of objectors from 20 per cent to 9½ per cent, by making a few spot changes in the original program.

The vote on the project was 4 to 0 with Commissioner John Russell Young, president of the District Board of Commissioners, abstaining from voting.

The change, largest since the end of World War II, alters the zoning of most lots within the quadrangle bounded by M, 37th and P sts. and Wisconsin ave nw.

Before voting on the proposal, the Commission received a statement from Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent that the zoning change would increase the total valuation of the area for tax revenue purposes. Opponents of the proposal had contended the change would adversely affect tax evaluations.

Both sides of Potomac, 33d, 34th, and 35th sts. nw. between M st. and Prospect ave.; south side of Prospect ave. between Potomac and 36th sts.; both sides of Prospect ave. between 36th and 37th sts.; both sides of P st. between Wisconsin ave. and 35th st.; south side of O st. between Wisconsin ave. and Potomac st.; both sides of N st. between Wisconsin and Potomac; east side of Potomac st. from Prospect ave. to O st.

The new plan permits four principal exceptions:

1. Potomac st. on both sides between M st. and Prospect ave. remains commercial.

2. On 33d st. between M st. and Prospect ave. a few lots on the North side will remain commercial.

3. The commercial area on O

U. S. Rejects Plan to Call Assembly

Austin Formally Proposes Big Five Committee to Seek Palestine Peace

Lake Success, Feb. 25 (AP).—The United States formally asked today that the Big Five Powers try to solve the Palestine problem.

The United States at the same time rejected Colombia's surprise suggestion for a special United Nations Assembly to reconsider the decision to partition Palestine.

In acknowledged haste, Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, introduced in the U. N. Security Council the proposals he outlined yesterday.

These call for the Council to ask the five great powers to report on the situation in Palestine, consider whether it is a threat to the peace, and consult with the Jews, Arabs and British on carrying out the 1947 Assembly's partition project.

England Dissents

A British spokesman said his government could not go along with the suggestion the Big Five consult with the principals. He said the British definitely were leaving Palestine by August 1 and would not take part in carrying out partition.

Austin told the Council he acted quickly because he wanted the deleagtes to know that the United States opposed the Colombian special Assembly resolution put in late yesterday.

A crowded, silent chamber heard Austin read his proposal.

The United States wants the Big Five committee to find a peaceful settlement of the Palestine crisis.

It also wants the Security Council to appeal to all governments and peoples, particularly in and around Palestine, to take action to head off or reduce disorders now occurring in the Holy Land.

Conciliation Urged

Mahmoud Bey Fawzi of Egypt carried on the Arab fight against the Assembly plan to divide Palestine into Jewish and Arab countries, with Jerusalem as a free city. Fawzi sat with the council as an interested party.

Fawzi appealed for conciliation. He said the Arabs are "here for reasoning and moderation."

After Fawzi spoke the council adjourned the Palestine case until 3 p. m. Friday.

British Compound Stormed by Jews

Jerusalem, Feb. 25 (AP).—Armed Jews stormed a British military court compound in Jerusalem today, tossed incendiary bombs and killed an Arab guard.

Two other guards were wounded.

For the fourth night Jews hunted for victims in the Ben Yekuda blast debris. Another body was recovered to bring the toll to 54. An official source said 20 were missing.

Violence brought to 1414 the unofficial death toll since the United Nations voted November 29 to partition the Holy Land.

U. S. Has 'Surrendered' To Arabs, Wise Says

New York, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, said today the United States statement on Palestine before the United Nations was "not a decision but sheer surrender to the Arabs."

Wise declarde the Jews of Palestine would continue to defend themselves and to die for the right to live in Palestine.

2 Reported Slain As Police Fire on Anti-Red Students In Demonstration

By Seymour Freidin

Prague, Feb. 25.—Czechoslovakiavakia came under Communist rule today and police smashed an anti-Communist students' demonstration with rifle fire, reportedly killing two and wounding four in front of Hradcany Castle, residence of President Eduard Benes.

The students, who were clamoring for "the republic of Thomas Masaryk," had been clubbed with rifle butts in downtown Prague before reaching Castle Square. When they refused to step back police fired at them and then charged the demonstrators with rifle butts. Students said police prevented them from removing the bodies of students they said were slain. Officials denied any one had been killed.

Benes Cancels Speech

Twenty other students were injured by the police charge. Tonight the shooting of the anti-Communist young men, who originally were 15,000 strong before police belabored them downtown, caused tempers to rise sharply.

With all vital communications, government ministries, police and industrial areas in the hands of the Communist Party, President Benes today accepted the new cabinet demanded by Communist Prime Minister Klement Gottwald. Benes then canceled a scheduled speech to the nation.

In a triumphant mood, Premier Gottwald went before 50,000 of his followers in Prague's historic Wenceslas Square, where he had massed them with a threat of the nation's first general strike unless his terms were approved.

Premier Gottwald told his cheering listeners "the President did not arrive at his decision easily." But President Benes, he said, "had to accept the will of the people."

Cordons of police were in evidence throughout the capital and the provinces as the 72-hour-old Communist-sponsored action committees took over all government ministries that had anti-Communist ministers.

Truman Flies To Key West For Vacation

President and Party Shaken by Yacht Trip From Virgins to Cuba

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—President Truman wound up his Caribbean tour with a brief inspection of the United States naval base here today and took off by plane for his vacation spot at Key West, Fla.

Mr. Truman and his official party were a badly shaken crew when they debarked from the presidential yacht Williamsburg at 2 p. m., after a rough, two-day voyage from the Virgin Islands.

Virtually everybody aboard was seasick and stayed below in bunks for the final lap of the trip this morning, while the little vessel pitched and rolled in the running seas between the Cuban and Haitian Seas.

The yacht was about an hour and a half late in arriving at the fleet landing here, and Capt. C. E. Battle, Jr., commander of the Caribbean Sea Frontier who headed the welcoming group, made the official ceremonies brief.

He escorted the wan-looking presidential party through a brief honor guard inspection, tendered a formal luncheon, showed them the high points of the base and then saw Mr. Truman off for Key West aboard the presidential plane, the Sacred Cow, at 3:55 p. m.

They touched down at Key West at 6:31 p. m., and Mr. Truman hopes to remain there until March 5, unless the press of official business calls him back to Washington sooner.

Big. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, the President's personal physician, said the Williamsburg ran into heavy seas all the way through the Windward Passage between Haiti and Cuba.

Graham said everyone aboard was seasick, although President Truman seemed to take it better than the others.

"I couldn't take it myself, and I got sick as a dog," the doctor said.

Judge Denies Meyers' Move For Mistrial

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A District Attorney's disclosure that the Government had sought "protection" for an attractive woman witness in the trial of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired, yesterday brought a heated demand for a mistrial from defense counsel.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff denied the defense motion and directed continuance of the trial of the former wartime Army Air Force procurement officer on charges of persuading another person to commit perjury.

Judge Holtzoff ordered the Government's reference to "protection" stricken from the record and instructed the jury to disregard it.

The witness was pretty Mrs. June Ballou Grinsted, blue-eyed, brown-haired young wife of an Army captain stationed at Boron, Calif. Mrs. Grinsted told the jury that when she was a secretary—CAF-2—at Wright Field, Meyers, then a major, offered her a part-time job as bookkeeper and secretary to a new company he was founding.

She said she discovered that Meyers had put 224 shares of Aviation Electric in her name but she never had possession of or received any money from the stock or attended a "corporation meeting." Within a day or two after this she said, she told Meyers he would have to find someone else to act as bookkeeper and stenog-

Ex-King Michael, Mother to Sail For U. S. March 5

The recently dethroned former King Michael of Romania will visit the United States next month, the State Department announced yesterday.

He will be accompanied by his mother, the dowager Queen Helene, but not by his fiancee, the Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma, who met him in Switzerland after he left the Romanian throne.

The State Department said the deposed monarch and his party will sail from Southhampton aboard the Queen Elizabeth March 5 and remain in the United States until April 7, when they will leave New York for an unannounced destination.

The announcement emphasized it will be an unofficial visit. It said the department has no information about Michael's itinerary in this country.

Spring Shoots Out Gun Part And Kills Armory Mechanic

A 40-year-old mechanic at the National Guard Armory was killed yesterday when part of a 40-millimeter antiaircraft gun on which he was working shot up and struck him on the head.

Beaver

The victim was Charles Franklin Beavers of 1357 L st. se., also a sergeant in the District National Guard and veteran of 4 years and 9 months of Army service.

Beavers was working on the partly dismantled gun in an ordnance workshop in the Armory basement when the accident occurred, about 2:40 p. m.

Deputy coroner Richard M. Rosenberg said the metal part that struck Beavers on the right side of the head was flung out by a spring that had about 500 pounds of pressure behind it. One Guard official described the part as a heavy metal arm that holds the barrel in place. He said Beavers must have inadvertently released a locking clasp.

Sergeant Beavers was planning to be married soon to Miss Mabel Lee, 1359½ L st. se., an employe of Holzbeierlein's Bakery, his family said.

Sergeant Beavers leaves two sons by a former marriage, Melvin, 14, and Walter, 12, who live with their mother in Belmore, Long Island; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Beavers, 1359½ L st. se.; three sisters, Mrs. Catherine Pullin, Mrs. A[nne] Greshan, both also of 1359½ L st., and Mrs. Grace Schuck of 1357 L st., and brother, Wi[lli]am M. Beavers, 1375½ L st.

Taft-Hartley Clause Upheld

NLRB Wins Round Over ITU In Fight on Injunction Action

Indianapolis, Feb. 25 (AP).—The National Labor Relations Board today won the first round of its legal fight with the International Typographical Union over the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act's injunctive processes.

Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert denied the union's motion to dismiss an injunction suit brought against it by the office of Robert N. Denham, general counsel for the NLRB.

The injunction is sought as a temporary measure to prevent the printers from engaging in what the NLRB says are unfair labor practices. NLRB attorneys expect an injunction would halt strikes in 14 newspaper publishing plants over the country.

The NLRB, now considering the charges of unfair labor practices, will ultimately determine whether the printers are violating the act.

Judge Swygert's action opens the way for a hearing here at 10 a. m. (CST), March 3, on the injunction suit.

Judge Swygert held in a 5500-word opinion that (1) Section 10-J of the Taft-Hartley Act, which permits the Government to seek injunctive relief, is constitutional, and (2) that the NLRB has authority to delegate to its general counsel the power to institute injunction suits.

Holding that Section 10-J did not violate "the due process principle," Judge Swygert said maintenance of the union's contention "would cast a presumption of a lack of due process upon every equitable proceeding which undertakes to grant such relief."

"In sum, the proceedings would be tested for due process not at its conclusion, but at its start," he

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Klement Gottwald, who emerged yesterday as middle Europe's newest dictator, is a veteran of a quarter century of the Communist struggle for power.

Gottwald

Czechoslovakia's Premier, now 51, sometimes is referred to as the nation's copy of Josef Stalin. He has been a tested servant of Moscow line and one of the elite of Europe's Communist leaders.

Gottwald, a calm, deliberate man who bears some physical resemblance to Stalin, became Premier of Czechoslovakia after the Communist triumph in the first postwar election. As chairman of the party and a vice premier, Gottwald was asked by President Eduard Benes to form a government. He achieved a coalition cabinet representing seven parties in July, 1946.

A year later Czechoslovakia was invited to participate in the Marshall Plan talks in Paris and accepted the invitation. But Gottwald was summoned with other high ranking members of his government to Moscow. From Moscow he announced Czechoslovakia would reverse herself and reject the Marshall Plan invitation.

Gottwald was born of a peasant family in Moravia November 23, 1896—St. Klement's Day. In World War I he was drafted into the Austrian artillery, but he was considered unreliable and was shifted to a searchlight brigade.

When the Czechoslovakia Communist Party was formed in 1921 he abandoned a factory job and devoted all his life to writing, speaking and organizing. Within a few years he was a member of Czechoslovakia's Parliament.

Gottwald fled to Moscow when Hitler seized Czechoslovakia. During World War II he broadcast from Moscow, helped organize underground activity against the Nazis and translated a number of Russian works into Czech. After the war he was one of the authors of the Kosice program which laid the foundation for Czechoslovakia's postwar republic.

Benjamin F. Fields

As a former convict who once did eight years for mail fraud, Benjamin F. Fields should—as they say in the best prison circles—do that 90-day rap standing on his head.

Fields

Fields, who was convicted of contempt of Congress last year, yesterday was ordered to pack his toothbrush, that he must start serving that 90-day sentence in 10 days.

At 55 "Bald Benny" may feel he s too well along in years to again go behind bars. He tried hard not to, fighting (unsuccessfully) his conviction right up to the Supreme Court.

Fields, who drew the wrath of a House committee when he refused to talk about one of his more profitable war brokerage deals, was the brainfather of the Fields Foundation to rehabilitate former convicts. "Bald Benny" has a feeling for them and last month announced plans to revive the defunct foundation.

He will minister balm to the bruised souls of newly free felons from his jail cell.

In preparation for the new project, Fields' offices at 1643 Connecticut ave. nw. have been refitted. That was necessary. The Government sold his office furnishings in December, 1946, to settle a tax claim.

After becoming a big operator in Washington during the war, Fields married an attractive widow and moved into a $50,000 home at 201 Kennedy dr., Kenwood, Md.

Earl K. Long

Earl K. Long, as fiercely ambitious but not as showy as his late brother, Huey "Kingfish" Long, is on the march again.

Long

The 52-year-old attorney and career politico yesterday was the apparent victor in Louisiana's gubernatorial primary which is tantamount to election. He paved that way with promises to raise old-age pensions to $50 a month. He says he'll keep those promises.

Lieutenant governor in 1939, he slipped into the position without the fanfare and fight of an election when the then Gov. Richard W. Leche resigned under fire of mystery, scandal and embezzlement charges. He was defeated in the 1940 election by Sam Houston Jones, whose applecart he in turn upset in Tuesday's balloting.

Long, who was never quite subdued by the rabble-rousing magnificence of his brother (with whom he disagreed as often as he agreed), began workaday life as a clerk in a lumber company commissary, in 1912. From 1914 to 1923, he was a traveling salesman.

The prospective Governor gave up selling then to study law, and was admitted to the Louisiana State Bar three years later. Law and politics proved a happy combination, particularly with Brother Huey in the Governor's chair. Earl Long became inheritance tax collector, Parish of Orleans, from 1928 to 1932.

After that, between State stumpings, he became known as a farmer and stock raiser. In 1936, he raised his own stock, politically, to win the spot of Lieutenant Governor. That was the year after his brother was felled by an assassin's bullets in the ornate corridors of the State capitol.

Jones defeated Earl Long in 1940 with a "reform" movement; continued that triumph in 1944 with the Jones-sponsored Jimmy Davis, singing cowboy victory for the Governorship. But this week Jones' own bid for return was swamped by the traveling salesman, lawyer, and politician he could not hold under.

Earl Long Swamps Jones In Louisiana

New Orleans, Feb. 25 (AP).—The Longs have been recalled to power in Louisiana.

Earl Long, brother of the late Senator Huey P. Long, received a top-heavy vote over Sam Houston Jones in yesterday's Democratic runoff primary election for Governor.

An unofficial count of ballots cast in 1108 of the State's 1878 precincts gave Long 252,008 votes to 143,507 for Jones.

Huey's Widow Approves

Yesterday's vote was a strong comeback for the Long family. Huey's widow said that if Huey himself were here "he would be proud of this great victory for the people of the State."

Eight years ago, in 1940, Jones defeated Earl in the race for the Governorship and brought to an end the regime set up by Huey Long 12 years before.

In the current contest, Huey Long's 29-year-old son, Russell, was one of Earl's most active supporters. It is generally expected he will be a candidate for office soon himself.

The new long regime, Earl indicated today, will seek to outdo the previous one in action but probably not in showmanship.

"We'll improve on everything Huey did," Earl declared.

"The roads he built were good roads for their day—but now our roads must carry five times the traffic."

His "No. 1 project," he said, will be raising old-age pensions to $50 a month.

"The way those old people pulled at me and looked at me during the campaign," he recalled. "The way they asked me, 'Can we count on those $50 checks, sure?' I'd hate to die without having made good on my promise to those people."

Huey pursued his spectacular career to the slogans of "Share the Wealth" and "Every Man a King." Earl said his slogan would be something quieter—"Service to the People."

He explained his comeback, after being beaten for Governor in 1940 and Lieutenant Governor in 1944, this way: "I think maybe the Lord decided I could make a better Governor at 52 than at 44."

Yesterday was Earl Long's only State-wide victory except for election as Lieutenant Governor in 1936, the year after Huey's death. He became Governor in 1939 when Richard W. Leche resigned. He was Governor about 11 months.

The new Governor will have a new House of Representatives to work with and perhaps a new Senate. More than half of the 100 House seats and at least 17 of the 39 Senate places went to newcomers.

Soviet Painters Find Their Work Is Decadent, Too

Moscow, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Soviet painters, examining their work in the light of the recent Communist Party censure of composers, have uncovered a "spirit of decadence and bourgeois estheticism," the magazine Moscow Bolshevik said today.

It reported the present art trend had been criticized at a two-day meeting of the presidium of the Union of the Soviet Painters' organizational committee, attended by 25 painters.

Ideological errors in the art world were amazingly parallel to those exposed recently in Russian music, the magazine said.

Meyers Loses Mistrial Move

rapher. She had meanwhile learned, she told the jury, that Meyers was not going to report this outside activity to the Air Force and did not want her to abide by the rules requiring such a report.

The Government contends that Meyers in fact was the real owner of Aviation Electric and drew golden wartime returns from it.

In cross-examination, Defense Attorney Robert T. Bushnell tried to show that Mrs. Grinsted, at that time Mrs. Ballou, was "an intimate" friend of Mrs. Bleriot H. Lamarre, one-time secretary of Meyers.

Cross-Examined by Bushnell

Defending his interest in Aviation Electric Corporation before the Senate War Investigating Committee last year, Meyers swore he had founded it because Mrs. Lamarre was his "girl friend" with the "knowledge and acquiescence" of her husband, and he wanted to bring her back from California.

"Didn't he in fact tell you, Madam," thundered Bushnell, "that this company was being formed for the benefit of the Lamarres and they were coming back to take it over?"

Mrs. Grinsted denied that. She denied, too, that she was holding the stock for her friend, Mildred Lamarre.

Then continuing his cross-examination, Bushnell asked if it was not a fact that Mrs. Grinsted was even now staying at the same hotel here with the Lamarres. Mrs. Grinsted said she was.

In redirect examination, Assistant District Attorney John W Fihelly asked the pretty witness if it was not a fact that Assistant District Attorney Edward Molenof had made the arrangements for her stay at a hotel while she was a witness in the Myers trial.

Mistrial Demanded

"Yes," replied Mrs. Grinsted.

"What did he tell you?" pressed Fihelly.

"Well, he said the Lamarres would be there and I would be near friends," Mrs. Grinsted replied.

"Did he also mention that it was for your protection?" questioned Fihelly.

"Yes," replied the witness firmly.

"I object. Protection against what, for heaven's sake?" shouted Bushnell.

"Use your imagination," the prosecutor shot back.

"Your Honor," cried the defense counses, "there ought to be a mistrial in view of that statement. I ask a mistrial."

Turning to the jury, Bushnell shouted, "Protection! What protection? Protection against a solitary defendant brought before the bar here . . ."

"You didn't need protection, did you?" Bushnell demanded of the witness. Then he asked that his own question be stricken.

Correspondence Cited

Bushnell developed the fact that after the Senate hearings Mrs. Lamarre and Mrs. Grinsted had exchanged some correspondence concerning Meyers. The Government volunteered to introduce the letters, which Mrs. Grinsted said she had in her luggage, into the evidence.

Mrs. Lamarre's husband was the self-styled "dummy president" of Aviation Electric. At first, in a closed session before the Senate War Investigating Committee, Lamarre backed up Meyers' story that he, a 34-year-old accountant, was the owner of Aviation Electric.

Later he reversed his testimony and said Meyers was the "real owner" and received profits from the company in the form of "kickbacks" from the salaries of the dummy officers.

Lamarre has pleaded guilty to perjury and the former AAF meterial chief is now being tried for inducing him to lie under oath.

Lamarre is expected to take the stand today.

First of yesterdays' witnesses was Chief Counsel William P. Rogers of the Senate War Investigating Committee who was called by the Government in its effort to show that Lamarre had first lied under oath to the committee at the request of Meyers.

Fields Given 10 Days to Get Ready for Jail

Benjamin F. Fields, pudgy publicist and war goods broker, yesterday was given 10 days to straighten his affairs before going to jail for 90 more days.

Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff, in District Court, flatly rejected Fields' plea that the prison term for contempt of Congress be changed to probationary freedom. The sentence, said Judge Holtzoff, is "comparatively light" for "such a serious offense."

Fields, 55 and balding, was found guilty in February, 1947, for his refusal to produce records of his operations in which he admittedly made $4000 profit in war surplus goods sales without putting up a dime. Last month, the Supreme Court refused to review the conviction, which had been upheld by the United States Court of Appeals here.

NLRB Wins Fight Round

pointed out. "Such contention in respect to this type of remedy is, of course, untenable."

NLRB officials in Washington said Judge Swygert's decision was the first that ruled specifically on the constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley Act's injunctive processes.

Permits 'Just' Relief

The act "permits the court to render that equitable relief which it deems just and proper as indicated by the circumstances of the particular case, so that public rights, as well as private rights, are protected during the pendency of the controversy before the board," Judge Swygert said.

In Chicago, Denham said Judge Swygert's decision "clears the way for disposing of the real issues in the injunction proceedings."

ITU Quits Philadelphia Labor Hearing

Philadelphia, Feb. 25 (AP).—The AFL's International Typographical Union served notice on the National Labor Relations Board today that it is withdrawing from hearings of unfair labor practices filed against it.

The action was announced by Gerhard Van Arkel, general counsel of the ITU, and described by a printing industry spokesman as "one of the most significant labor maneuvers" since passage of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Van Arkel told NLRB Trial Examiner Howard Myers the ITU and six of its locals are willing to accept the board's findings in "any one of three cases" already heard and consider the present hearing "a waste of time and money."

Case to Continue

His statement came on the first day of the NLRB's hearing of unfair labor practices which General Counsel Robert N. Denham of the board filed against the ITU and eight locals.

Helen F. Humphreys, counsel for the Fourth Regional Board, announced she would continue the case whether any union counsel was present.

Van Arkel's withdrawal notice, contained in a letter written to Denham and read before Examiner Myers, affected the parent ITU and two locals in Detroit and one each in Chicago, St. Louis, Newark and Pittsburgh.

Complaints also had been filed against Philadelphia and New York locals.

Action Explained

(In his letter, which was also released here, Van Arkel said that the NLRB had issued nine different complaints against the ITU, all concerned with the same central issue, and that three had already been litigated.

(He wrote that it did not comport with "decent standards . . . to harass private parties by needless litigation." He said he offered to be bound by decisions on any one or combination of the cases that had been heard, but that meantime, no further litigation should be demanded.

("Due process," he said, "can be denied quite as effectively by requiring 365 days in court as by denial of a day in court."—Editor's note.)

Hearing Adjourned

Following a protracted discussion, Myers adjourned the hearing until 2 p.m. (EST) tomorrow so that New York and Philadelphia locals could decide on whether to follow the other ITU locals.

The Philadelphia complaint involves about 900 ITU members and the Allied Printing Employers' Association, a Philadelphia affiliate of the Printing Industry of America, Inc.

Miss Humphreys charged the Philadelphia local with refusal to bargain in good faith and refusal to abide with terms of the Taft-Hartley Act, particularly the ban on closed shops.

Examiner Myers told Van Arkel and other union counsel the hearing would proceed whether they were in attendance or not and suggested the ITU send observers to "protect its rights."

GOP-Controlled House Unit Approves Antilynching Bill

Ferguson predicted early approval also by the full Senate committee.

2. Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.), chairman of a Senate Rules subcommittee assigned House-passed anti-poll tax legislation, called a meeting of his three-man group tomorrow. Jenner predicted Senate subcommittee and full committee approval without hearings, "since we have covered that ground so many times before."

Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) successor to the late Theodore G. Bilbo, complained that Senate Rules Chairman C. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.) had ignored his request for a place on the Jenner Subcommittee.

Said Stennis:

"I shall oppose the bill and request full hearings, and further . . . request that these hearings be held in each State where there is a poll tax law in operation."

Seven Poll Tax States

There are seven such States—Virginia, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Texas.

Senate committee approval of antilynching and antipoll tax measures, plus the Ives FEPC bill already favorably reported by the Senate Labor Committee, would place three top points in the Truman civil rights program on the Senate calendar.

The Senate GOP policy committee, headed by Senator Robert A Taft (R., Ohio), has yet to decide which bill it will move first. Reports are the initial test of Senate Southern fillibuster strength, and Republican ability to crack it with cloture, will be made with the antilynching measure.

The Senate showdown, however, will wait at least until April. The Marshall Plan will have Senate right of way through the first half of March, and the GOP's tax reduction measure has priority immediately thereafter.

The Case anti-lynching bill approved yesterday by the House Judiciary Subcommittee was tighter than the last House-passed measure killed in the Senate in 1938 after a 30-day Southern fillibuster.

Provisions of Bill

Case, a 43-year-old Bayway, N. J., lawyer, said he drew the bill after getting "steamed up" over the lynching of Willie Earle, 24-year-old Negro, in South Carolina last year, and failure of a Greenville county jury to convict 31 persons charged with the lynching.

Any person who "willfully instigates, incites, organizes, aids, abets, or commits a lynching by any means whatsoever" would be guilty of a felony under the bill, and subject to a maximum penalty of 20 years in jail or a $10,000 fine.

State or local officials who "neglected, refused or wilfully failed to make all diligent efforts to prevent the lynching could be fined a maximum of $5000 or jailed five years if convicted.

Victims of a lynching, or their next of kin, could recover from $2000 to $10,000 indemnity through civil action brought by the Attorney General in a Federal district court.

'Hot' Diary Read

Heiress Admits She 'Necked'

GIOIA BARKER GRIMDITCH
Lost a weekend

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Heiress Gioia Gould Grimditch, 23, admitted today that she once "believed she had fallen in love" with Blake Brophy and "necked" with him on numerous occasions.

Attorneys for her husband, William Grimditch, 25, obtained the admission. Grimditch and his wife both have sued for divorce and custody of their two children.

Brophy, son of a Phoenix banker, was named defendant in a $250,000 damage suit brought by Grimditch. Brophy was listed in the complaint as one of the men mentioned in a diary of the Jay Gould railroad fortune heiress which was introduced in court.

Her attorney said the entries were "just jive talk." Superior Judge J. M. Johnson ruled "the diary speaks for itself."

These are the diary entries in which Grimditch claimed his wife recorded her romances:

January 1, 1946. Mellezer's party, Blake. It's nearly impossible, but I'm going to do it. I can, too. You go out this door, I the other. So it was.

(Blake Brophy, son of a Phoenix banker, was sued for $250,000 by Grimditch on charges he and Mrs. Grimditch conspired to deprive him of a husband's privileges.)

January 15—Bad after-effects music lesson. Lunch with Pris, club. Tennis, took Blake home. Told him prayer would help.

January 17. Music lesson, lunch Pris and Jim. "Lost weekend." Blake and I might live in a Tahiti tent. (sentence deleted.)

January 18. Blake called tonight "dronk." Rough life looking at moon 10 p. m. Oh my God Blake

February 23. Lunch at the club Don. Blake. Beer out to hideout. Party at hiedout, adios for us. God is lenient, maybe.

July 9. Appetite all shot to hell. Blake came over while I was shopping. Came back again. Blake came over tonight. Played gin rummy. (Sentence deleted.) Much pleasantness for a change.

July 27. He says all the time I am going to hate him. I do not know how. What a man. Marilyn's wedding tonight, went with Mickey Mack and Blake. Reception with Blake. The knotty pines over to Brophy's. (Sentence deleted.) I asked myself what is going to happen.

August 20. What a day. Blake and Johnny came over around 12 noon. Played gin most of the afternoon. Blake and I went beer hunting. Got bottle of whisky, talked with Blake. Played gin until about 5:30 a. m. Nothing further. "Enough said."

August 23. Had my palm read. Scares me. Don took me to dinner, got me stinking. Put me to bed. (Sentence deleted.)

September 5. Saw Blake this after. Tonight wedding. Mick, Joan and I were stinking. Jack took me home. (Sentence deleted.)

September 27. Never a dull moment. Off we go to Oak Creek, to Flagstaff. Fished from Sedonia up. Caught three. Stayed at Call of the Canyon. Double bed. Jesus, what a life.

Mrs. Grimditch was hurt seriously in an automobile accident in November, 1946. While she was in the hospital her husband found the diary.

Governor Tuck's Estimates Raised To $512,430,977

Richmond, Va., Feb. 25 (Spl.).—The House Appropriations Committee today tacked $7,435,926 more to Governor Tuck's $504,995,051 budget for a new record total of $512,430,977, and reported the bill to the House.

Committee Chairman C. C. Louderback said he would ask the House tomorrow to run the budget measure as a special and continuing order for noon next Tuesday.

Of the total figure added to the Governor's bill, $3,959,692 was in capital outlays, the remainder for current expenses.

Other Action Taken

The Senate today cleared 13 House bills and six Senate bills, while the House passed more than a dozen measures.

Assembly action today included:

1. Introduction of a Hause measure aimed at authorizing the Arlington County School Board to acquire land, issue bonds for and construct a stadium. Approval of the bond issue would have to come from voters in a referendum.

The bill, which authorizes the Circuit Court to set up its referendum on receipt of a petition of 1000 qualified voters, is similar to one introduced Monday in the Senate.

The latter measure simply authorized the school and county boards to contract with each other, and with other organizations, for construction of the stadium and the raising of funds for the job.

2. House passage of a bill to extend the State's Emergency Fair Rent Act until July 1, 1950. The measure enables the Governor, upon request of a locality, to set up rent control in an area providing a 15 per cent increase over 1946 Federal ceilings.

3. Passage by the Senate of the bill to restrict branch banking in the State by a vote of 30 to 8.

4. House passage of the Moncure bill to give county police the same powers of arrest as those exercised by State officers.

5. House approval of a bill enabling counties adjoining cities of 125,000 population to buy, construct, and acquire sewer systems.

6. House clearance of a bill setting the annual salary of county school boards at a maximum of $600.

In another move today, the House quickly concurred in the Senate amendments to the Richmond Charter bill, and sent the controversial bill on its way to Governor Tuck for his signature.

Printers Report Vote in Favor Of Special Dues

Indianapolis, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Members of the International Typographical Union (AFL) have voted in favor of a special dues assessment, a union spokesman said today.

Secretary-Treasurer Don Hurd said that nearly complete returns showed 37,775 for and 16,155 against, a majority of 21,620 in favor of the assessment. Approximately 5000 more votes are still to be tabulated.

The balloting was held to determine whether the union should levy a 4½ per cent assessment on earnings of members. The additional money would be used to bolster the organization's treasury, depleted by strike benefit payments.

The union has been on strike against several newspapers since last fall.

Bennett Seeks Md. Congress Seat

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—Former State Senator Earl Bennett of Cambridge today filed as a Democratic candidate for Congress from Maryland's First District and promised an "active campaign."

Bennett, 53, is a chemical company salesman. He was elected to the House of Delegates from Dorchester County for a four-year term that began with the General Assembly session of 1935, and in 1939 began two four-year terms in the Senate.

E. Peter Richardson, a member of the House of Delegates from Worcester County and a resident of Berlin, filed last week. Mayor James O. Byrd of Snow Hill also has made a formal announcement.

The district now is represented by Edward T. Miller, Easton Republican.

Two Charged With Torture Of N. Y. Man

New York, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—A wild story of 15 hours of brutal torture was unfolded today when police arrested two men.

The two were charged with kidnaping and felonious assault on the complaint of Henry Cintron, 52.

From Monday midnight to 3 p. m. Tuesday the men stripped him, tied him to a chair, filled his mouth with broken glass and punched him over and over again in the jaw, Cintron said. He told police they placed lighted matches between his toes and under his fingernails.

Cintron said they were trying to obtain $5000 down payment on a collection of diamonds which he had agreed to buy for $250,000.

Cintron said he finally persuaded his captors to set him free so he could get the $5000. He went at once to the police who arrested Bernard Webel, 33, of Brooklyn, described as a confidence man, and Bruce G. Bowers, 28, a longshoreman of Camden, N. J. Detectives said the men admitted the charges.

Cairo Hears Arabs Vote to Bar Pipeline

Cairo, Feb. 25 (AP).—A Beirut dispatch today quoted Lebanese Premier Riyad Bel el Solh as saying the Arab League has decided to forbid the Trans-Arabian pipeline to operate across Arab countries from Saudi Arabia to the Mediterranean.

Georgetown Area Rezoned

and P sts. is expanded westward a few lots from Wisconsin ave.

4. The Prospect ave. frontage is changed from commercial, but the Commission will permit erection of five-story apartment houses between Potomac and 37th sts.

The program will become effective within a few days, a Commission spokesman said. It does not require change of existing buildings in the affected area, but limits the use of presently undeveloped land or changes in present structures, he explained.

The rezoning became necessary to safeguard the values of rehabilitated individual homes in the area, which were adversely affected by the development of commercial establishments alongside, the commission felt.

The head of the Georgetown Citizens Association, Stanton Kolb, real estate man, hailed the change and said his group was "highly pleased."

However, Eugene E. Ditto, attorney who represented 35 residents of the area, said he would call a conference of his clients to consider the next move. He said the residents approved the first plan, but would object to the exceptions granted yesterday.

He aimed his criticism particularly at the provision for retaining Potomac st. between M st. and Potomac ave. as commercial. The attorney said the land there is now used for residences except for those properties facing on M st. He said more than $200,000 has been spent in remodeling homes in that block for dwellings.

10 Injured As Trolley and Bus Collide

Ten persons were injured when a streetcar and a bus collided at 12:30 a. m. yesterday at 4th st. and Independence ave. sw.

Golden

Three of the injured — two of them Capital Transit Co. operators — were detained in hospitals.

They were Ellison R. Cochran, 43, the bus driver, of 1824 Burke st. se.; John T. Golden, 24, the streetcar operator, of 4406 14th st. nw., and Robert W. Tilton, 22, of 1601 16th st. nw., a streetcar passenger.

Cochran, who was thrown through the bus door into the street, suffered scalp, chest and face injuries and a possible skull fracture. Golden has possible internal injuries. Both are at Emergency Hospital. Tilton is at Casualty Hospital, also with possible internal injuries.

70 to 80 Aboard

Except for Cochran, all of the injured were aboard the streetcar, which police said was packed with between 70 and 80 passengers, many of them students at the FBI fingerprint school.

Police made no charges, but talked to both operators at the hospital. They said Cochran, a bus driver of five years' experience, told them he was driving north on 4th st., that he stopped to pick up two passengers at Independence ave., then proceeded because he still had the green light. He told police he did not see the streetcar coming.

Golden, who has only 13 days' experience as an operator, told police he was traveling west on Independence ave. and that he had the green light. He, too, said he did not see the other vehicle until the moment of impact.

Police said the streetcar struck the bus in the middle on the right side. Few pasengers were on the bus. After the crash, the streetcar, marked Georgia and Alaska, jumped its tracks and a four-inch curbing alongside the tracks and rolled about 60 feet. Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at about $1000 by police.

Others Injured

Others injured but not hospitalized were:

Miss Willodean Myers, 22, of 324 A st. ne., facial injuries.

Anna G. Olson, 21, of 1211 Gallatin st. nw., adbominal injuries.

Rayburn Dean, 18, of 1869 Monroe st. nw., wrist injury.

Total traffic deaths, 1947.... 72

Mrs. Sallie V. Knight, 48, of 522 Tennessee ave. ne., struck by a streetcar Tuesday at 15th st. and Benning rd.-H st. ne., died yesterday at Casualty Hospital.

Police said she stepped from a loading platform into the path of a streetcar, operated by Rodney F. Jenkins, 35, of 5904 E. Pine dr., Riverdale, Md. She was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a fractured skull and possible internal injuries and was pronounced dead there at 1:10 p. m. yesterday.

Edward Powell, 13, of 2026 Portner pl. nw., received a fractured left leg yesterday when he stepped from a streetcar loading platform at 13th and U sts. nw. into the path of an auto operated by William J. Edwards, of 1959 14th st. nw. The boy was admitted to Children's Hospital where his condition was described as "fair."

The driver of an automobile which fatally injured Miss Virginia Robinson, 59, of 612 Whittier st. nw., was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday. He was Martin A. Dyer, 53, of 6226 31st st. nw.

Miss Robinson, the District's eleventh traffic fatality in 1948, died Monday at Walter Reed Hospital. The accident occurred last Saturday night at Georgia ave. and Butternut st. nw.

A coroner's inquest will be held today at 11:30 a. m. in the death of Leonard C. Miller, 33, of Baltimore, the District's 70th traffic fatality in 1947. Miller died at Casualty Hospital December 22 from injuries received when his auto collided with an auto operated by Samuel G. Jordan, 32, also of Baltimore, at North Capitol st. and Rhode Island ave.

2 'Christian Crusaders' Fined For Placarding Red Embassy

Two associates of Gerald L. K. Smith yesterday paid $100 fines each for placarding "with odium" the Russian Embassy here last July.

The fines were imposed on the Rev. O. Kenneth Goff, 33, Baptist minister, of Denver, Colo., and Donald A. Lohbeck, editor of a Detroit publication, Cross and the Flag, by Associate Justice Jennings Bailey after a District Court jury found them guilty.

Both admitted participating in the demonstration before the Embassy, testifying they did so "to show the American people that the so-called Russian Embassy is a spy center." That was the import of the posters placed around the Embassy shortly before their leader, Smith, held a public rally on the Washington Monument grounds.

A third defendant, Forrest Schickedanz, 49, Baptist minister, of Marietta, Ohio, pleaded guilty Tuesday. He now awaits report of probation officers before sentencing to a possible maximum of $100 fine and 60 days in jail. Schickedanz, through his attorney, Roger Robb, publicly denied he was a follower of Smith. He said he had been brought to Washington to sing at Smith's rally, and got mixed up in the embassy picketing incident.

Goff and Lohbeck, however, proudly testified they are members of Smith's newest venture in arousing the public, the Christian Nationalist Crusade.

Following the embassy incident last summer, the State Department sent official regrets of this Government to Moscow.

Fairfax Rezones 2100 Acres to Permit Development of $75,000,000 Community

Springfield, a planned community of 25,000, in Fairfax County, moved a step closer to realization yesterday when the Fairfax County board of supervisors rezoned 2100 acres for its development.

The 17 separate rezonings cut up the land, which had all been agricultural, into rural, suburban, and urban residential, rural and general business, and industrial zones.

Edward S. Holland, representing the owner, Carr, Inc., said building will get under way within 60 days. The land lies three miles south of Annandale, just west of the Shirley hwy.

Present plans call for the community to be finished in about eight years, at a cost estimated at 75 million dollars.

The builders plan to install complete water and sewer systems, and provide sites for schools, bus terminal, police station, civic center, a general business area and four shopping centers.

The town will be as self-sufficient, with exception of employment, as any town of its size can be, Holland said.

The Fairfax board of supervisors yesterday also unanimously voted to ask the Virginia General Assembly for enactment of two changes in sanitary district laws. The changes would:

1. Allow the county to issue bonds to acquire existing water or sewer systems. Bonds can be issued now only for construction or operation.

2. Allow a petition for changing sanitary district areas to reach Circuit Court on motion of the board of supervisors or 25 per cent of the registered voters in the affected area. It now requires both.

Bethesda Woman Wins $1000 Prize In Radio Contest

Mrs. J. E. Clark, 7108 Marion lane, Bethesda, has won a $1000 grand prize in a radio contest sponsored by Proctor & Gamble, manufacturers of soap products.

Mrs. Clark

Mrs. Clark, who entered the "Daily Dreft" contest on February 9, had never entered a contest before, and was "overwhelmed" at her initial success.

She is the second person in the Washington area to win the grand prize in the contest, which ran from January 3 to February 20. Presentation of the check will be made to Mrs. Clark today by J. B. Park, local representative.

Nevius Tract Price Figure Is Challenged

A witness yesterday appraised the 25-acre Nevius tract at between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000 as the condemnation trial entered its second day in Alexandria District Court.

Fred Babcock, Washington real estate man and the only witness to testify so far for the Nevius interests, reached his figure by supposing apartments built on the land would yield a net annual return of $200,000.

Government attorney Ralph Lutrell moved to strike Babcock's testimony on the ground that it was based on possible future, rather than actual present, value of the land.

Judge Sterling Hutcheson admitted the testimony, subject to possible later exclusion.

Earlier in the day, three Government witnesses had given appraisals of fair market value, ranging from $775,000 to $830,000. All Government witnesses have valued it at less than the amount posted by the Government last summer when it took possession by condemnation.

Government attorneys said that figure, $850,827, did not represent their offer. They said it was considered a fair appraisal, but not a definite price, deposited only as a necessary step in taking possession. It was bought originally for a veterans hospital.

The Government owns the tract, lying in Arlington at Lee blvd. and Arlington Ridge rd. Only purpose of the trial is to determine a fair price to be paid the Nevius interests.

The jury is expected to take the case this afternoon or tomorrow.

County School Figure Raised By $118,575

It will cost $118,575 more annually to put Arlington's school system in all-around, first class shape, five school survey committees reported yesterday.

This sum did not include estimates of two other committees, which reported without establishing the cost of their programs.

And seven more survey committees are due to report their needs within the next week to the Arlington School Board, which had ordered the surveys made.

If adopted, the $118,575 figure, plus estimates of the nine other committees, would be tacked onto a record $2,044,000 school budget for the 1948-49 fiscal year recently recommended by School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

Yesterday, the music and fine arts committee called for appointment of a director of music and a director of art to coordinate teaching in these fields.

To provide every child "with "basic training" in both fields, the committee recommended that $38,324 be spent for music and $18,637 for arts during the next fiscal year.

The extended school program committee, which also reported yesterday, gave no cost estimate for its program. In addition to increased supplies of sports, dramatics, and cadet equipment, the survey recommended construction of a stadium with night-lighting.

Bills authorizing the School Board to begin negotiations for such a stadium already have been introduced in the General Assembly.

Other committees have given the following cost estimates: audio-visual education, $18,600; guidance committee, $32,900; home economics committee, $6879; vocational education and practical arts committee, $3235.

Fairfax Road Funds Found Short of Need

Rairfax County will have only $392,299 to spend on its secondary State highway system this year, though its resident engineer says two million dollars is needed.

These figures were given yesterday by County Resident Engineer J. H. Phillips of the State Highway Department at the annual road meeting held in Fairfax Circuit Court.

Purpose of the meeting was to have citizens bring their special road problems before State Officials.

Phillips said $70,426 of the total is Federal aid and already committed. The remainder is State funds. He said the department expects ta spend $97,873 for maintenance of existing roads and $46,335 for surface treatment. Aftr administration expenses are deducted, there will be only $132,327 left for construction purposes, he said.

A group of 30 residents met after the hearing to discuss the possibility of a bond issue for road construction. They appointed committees to consult with road authorities and said they hope to discuss the questions with the board of supervisors March 10.

Phillips pointed out that allocation of State road funds is based in part on 1940 population figures and vehicle miles traveled in 1939. If present figures were used, he estimated Fairfax County would receive an extra $100,000.

Two W. Va. Convicts Arrested at Farmville

Richmond, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—Two convicts, arrested in Farmville after escaping from the West Virginia State penitentiary, were in Henrico County Jail here today for safekeeping.

They are Millard Greer, who has a life sentence plus 86 years, and Elmer Tichnell, serving a 10-year sentence. The pair were sought by police in three States before their arrest Sunday.

State Trooper J. W. Harper said he found them asleep in a ditched car, alleged to have been stolen in Farmville.

Md. Closes Hearings on Transit Fares

Baltimore, Feb. 25 (AP).—Long drawn out hearings on proposed fare increases on Capital Transit Co. bus and trolley lines in Maryland suburbs of Washington closed here today with a provision for possible reopening later on.

In closing the proceedings, the Public Service Commission provided for a reopening pending completion of a survey now being conducted by opponents of the fare raise.

The commission gave the Joint Transportation Committee of Prince Georges County until March 10 to complete its survey. March 24 was set as the deadline for briefs.

Attorney Quits Case

Also, Attorney Gregory Hankin, representing groups of Prince Georges County residents, announced his withdrawal from the case "until I get some compensation for my services."

Arthur Brumel, secretary of the Joint Transportation Committee, said his group had not been able to enter into a contractural agreement with Hankin, former chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, "because of lack of funds." Funds are now being solicited for this purpose, he added.

The transit company is seeking a rate of 5 cents per 1½-mile zone in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties. It contends it is losing money on its Maryland operations.

Hankin charged the company with figuring its total loss in Maryland for the year ended September 30, 1947, about $374,000 too high. He also called the explanation of the company's methods of figuring loss or gain, given by J. E. Heberle, transit vice president, as being "laborious."

Hankin Offers Figures

Hankin, with his wife, also an attorney, on the witness stand, maintained that the actual loss was $105,922, rather than the $480,000 figure represented.

Mrs. Hankin stated that in Prince Georges County alone riders bought 240,313 passes during the year, representing a contribution of $360,000, exclusive of cash fares, toward the firm's revenue.

Heberle said Maryland operations are minor as far as gross revenues are concerned but major as far as losses are concerned. He continued, "If we had not had losses on Maryland operations (in the last six months of 1946) we would not have had any losses."

House Rejects Transfer of USES To Labor Dept.

By the United Press

The House yesterday rejected President Truman's proposal to strengthen the Labor Department by giving it control over the United States Employment Service and the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

It approved by voice vote a resolution rejecting the recommendation. Similar action must be taken by the Senate before March 10 to prevent the plan from going into effect.

Presidential plans to reorganize the Executive branch become effective automatically within 60 days of their submission to Congress unless rejected by both Houses.

Midshipmen Get Taste Of Social Obligations

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—Midshipmen are learning something of a Naval officers' social obligations these days.

Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., Naval Academy superintendent, initiated a series of "at home" receptions this year. Middies of the Second Battalion will meet Admiral and Mrs. Holloway in their quarters for tea and conversation tomorrow afternoon.

They will visit in groups for periods of 20 minutes—traditional for Navy calls "at home."

Before the term ends, midshipmen in all battalions will have attended a reception.

Medical Group to Honor Penn. Centenarians

Pittsburgh (U.P.).—The Pennsylvania Medical Society, 100 years old this year, will mark its centennial celebration by honoring Pennsylvanians who have reached or passed the 100-year mark.

The society has found more than 40 centenarians thus far.

Among them will be Mrs. Rosalia Boguslowski, 107, of Kittanning, Pa., who came to the Commonwealth from Germany in 1907 to begin a new life at 66.

Frats Droy 'Hell Week' As Too Rugged

Bloomington, Ind. (U.P.). — Students who plan to enroll at Indiana University and pledge to a fraternity don't have to worry about "Hell Week" any longer.

University officials said fraternities had agreed to drop all "rough features" from initiations in the future. Among the banned activities were road trips, scavenger hunts, and trips to sorority houses or women's dormitories "except for the express purpose of social affairs."

The agreement was reached after one fraternity was suspended by university officials when nine pledges were arrested for breaking into local stores to obtain prescribed "Hell Week" materials.

Woman Recalls Pioneer Days in West

Seattle (U.P.).—A pioneer Washington State woman who has spent all but two of her 80 years in the region celebrated her birthday with two parties and a lot of reminiscing.

Mrs. Ella T. Barrows, born in Illinois, came West with her family to San Francisco when she was 2 years old. That was in 1870. The family traveled on the Union Pacific Railroad one year after its completion. Later they moved to Washington Territory.

Falls Church Considering Town Census

The town of Falls Church is considering a census which may pave the way for status as a city of second class.

Samuel Dennis, chairman of a special town school board committee, said the census idea took root when board members decided to investigate possibility of setting up a separate school district for Falls Church.

As tentatively seen in the planning stage, however, the census, which si estimated to cost $1400 to $1500, could be used to push Falls Church into the "over 5000" popuyation class required of second class cities, Dennis pointed out.

According to the last special census taken in the town, in 1945, the population stood at 4341. Most town sources now estimate the population to be well over the necessary 5000.

Air Advisers Ask Research Funds Boost

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America must spend more money on scientific research—particularly basic research—to attain world air supremacy, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics said yesterday.

Hunsacker

The top-level agency noted in its annual reports that the United States has led in applied research and development, but declared that the Nation "has contributed less than its due proporation to pure science."

Adequate research, it was said, is our "first line of defense."

President Truman forwarded the document to Congress along with a covering letter from Dr. Jerome C. Hunsaker, NACA chairman. Hunsaker declared that supersonic flight in practical, piloted aircraft is the goal of research in this country and other world powers.

A-Bombs Need Speedy Planes

This is because, it was said, the atomic bomb "is largely dependent for its effectiveness upon aircraft capable of delivering (it) to its target in the face of intelligent opposition."

"National security requires that expenditures for aeronautical research and development be expanded," Dr. Hunsaker added.

Three recommendations in the report were:

1. That Congress vote the NACA a general fund to permit "urgent" projects to be started, which were not foreseen when the agency's annual appropriation bill was considered.

2. That the salaries of 15 executives on its staff be boosted from $10,000 to $15,000 to avoid losing high-caliber men.

3. That the membership of the committee be increased from 15 to 17 members.

Design Trends Outlined

Declaring that military planes of the future may have "basically new shapes," the NACA outlined the probable trends in design.

"Wings must be thinner, stronger and lighter and probably must be swept back sharply," the report said. "They may resemble arrows."

As these thin wings will have little capacity for fuel tanks, new fuels giving more energy must be developed. Much work must be done in the field of propulsion—development of improved turbine-propeller, turbojet, ram jet and rocket engines. This in turn will require new materials with the ability to resist much higher temperatures. Two possibilities being explored are ceramics and molybdenum, it was said.

Swept-Forward Wings Studied

Swept-forward wings also are being explored, while flying wing aircraft promise better performance for some purposes than conventional types, the report declared.

Speed, it was said, is the "most valuable single characteristic of military aircraft" and no scientific barrier exists to practical speeds above that of sound. The latter will be attained by "the nation or nations that make the required effort," said the NACA.

U. N. Committee Approves U. S. Loan for Building

Lake Success, Feb. 25 (AP).—With Russia abstaining, the United Nations headquarters advisory committee today agreed to accept a proposed $65,000,000 interest-free American loan for building permanent headquarters in Manhattan. The loan must be approved in Congress.

The U.N. committee vote was 13 to 0. Both the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia refused to vote yes or no.

Russia said the plan called for too rapid repayment.

Terms provide for the U.N. to start paying back in 1951 at the rate of $1,000,000 annually. The payments will be stepped up to $2,500,000 yearly by 1966 and then be reduced gradually until 1982.

Construction on the $8,500,000 Rockefeller gift site in midtown Manhattan will begin as soon as Congress gives final approval.

The U.N. expects to move into the new quarters in three years.

Cut Urged in Grain For Beer and Liquor

Flanders Makes Plea for Law to Permit Limit on Amount for Distilling Industry

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Reduction in the consumption of grain by both the distilling and brewing industries was urged yesterday.

1. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson urged the brewers to agree to a voluntary reduction in the amount used for making beer and ale.

2. Chairman Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) of the Senate Banking Committee urged the Senate to pass a law giving the Secretary of Agriculture power to limit the distilling industry to not less than 2,500,000 bushels a month.

Flanders told the Senate that the recent break in grain prices had not reduced the danger of a serious shortage in grain supplies later this year. This shortage, he said, is threatening the country's meat supply.

The distilling industry, Flanders said, is consuming grain at the rate of 6,500,000 bushels a month, as compared with an average of about five million bushels last year.

Flanders opposed an amendment offered by Senator John Sherman Cooper (R., Ky.) to allot grain to individual distillers in proportion to the amount each used from December, 1946, to June, 1947.

Allocation of grain either on the "historical" basis as proposed by Cooper or upon a capacity basis as urged by some distillers before the committee would be unfair, Flanders said.

Flanders urged that the Senate leave the allocation formula to the Agriculture Department. Any plan written into the bill, he said, would not provide for change in case of changing conditions.

Anderson's proposal to the brewers would provide:

1. That no wheat or table grade rice be used to make beer or ale.

2. That the use of malt barley shall not exceed by more than five per cent that quantity used during the same month last year.

3. That all other grains be reduced 15 per cent below the same month last year.

The program, Anderson announced, would save 88,500 short tons (about three million bushels) of grain a year.

"Industry representatives have been able to reach substantial agreement on the proposal," Anderson's announcement said.

Bread Prices Increased Despite Break in Grain

The recent break in grain prices was profitable to bakers and market speculators, but not to consumers, the House was told yesterday.

Chairman Clifford Hope (R., Kans.) of the House Agriculture Committee said that in spite of the drop in returns to wheat raisers, prices of bread were actually increased in New York, Atlanta, Boston, Cleveland, Kansas City and Philadelphia.

4 Boys Reported Born To Woman in Greece

Athens, Greece, Feb. 25 (U.P.)—Anna Havani of Preveza, mother of six children, was reported today to have given birth to male quadruplets. The mother and quadruplets were reported in excellent health and the Ministry of Health ordered four bundles of clothing sent to them.

No Collusion In Steel Rise, Weir Asserts

A leading steel industry figure yesterday ridiculed the idea of collusion among the steel companies in their recently announced price increase.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corp. said the widespread $5-a-ton increase on semi-finished material is "by no means a universal or concerted price advance."

He made the statement to reporters here before he walked into a House committee hearing to testify against the Marshall Plan.

But in Congress a chorus of condemnation went on. A bill to revive the excess profits tax was introduced by Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.). It is intended, he said, to curb the "extortionate gains" of big business.

Another Senate Democrat, Kilgore of West Virginia, said the price rise shows the need for the price-fixing power asked by President Truman. On the House floor Representative Bakewell (R., Mo.) called attention to steel's high profit in 1947. He went on:

"The steel companies have given inflation a shot in the arm. They have given labor unions an unanswerable argument for wage increases."

Senator Glen Taylor of Idaho, vice presidential running mate of Henry Wallace, said he would favor nationalization of the steel industry if the Government cannot stem price increases.

Good News For Folks Who Suffer From ✓ STOMACH GAS
✓ ACID INDIGESTION
Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress.
Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment, sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that 666 Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the 666 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, 666 Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.
Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is 666 Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people 666 Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of 666 Tonic from your drug store today. 666 Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Institutional Food Costs For March Dip

Price cuts ranging up to 18 cents a pound will become effective on foods sold to District institutions next month, District Purchasing Agent Roland J. Brennan disclosed last night.

Fifteen meat items in addition to eggs, poultry and fish took a price tumble, Brennan reported, after opening bids for March supplies. The reductions were:

Sliced bacon, from 73 to 55 cents a pound; slab bacon, from 64 to 52 cents a pound; beef cuts, 1-cent drop; beef carcass, good grade, 3 cents; beef carcass, commercial grade, 2 cents; smoked ham, 8 cents; lamb carcass, 3 1/3 cents; pork shoulder, 5 cents; pork loin, 3 1/3 cents; mutton carcass, 5 cents; frankfurters, 1½ cents; bologna sausage, 4 cents; pork sausage, 2 cents; pork lengths, 4½ cents, and veal, 2 cents.

Eggs dropped from 1 to 2 cents a dozen, poultry from 2½ to 4 cents a pound and fish from 2½ to 3 cents a pound.

A few vegetables dropped, but many showed an increase. Brennan said he had readvertised for bids on vegetables and will open them tomorrow. Fruit, such as oranges, were stable in price, he reported.

Stopgap Bill On Rents Sped To President

By voice vote, the Senate yesterday passed a bill retaining rent controls for another month, and sent it on its way to President Truman.

The measure was passed the previous day by the House. It is expected that the President, now on a caribbean cruise, will sign it before the present law expires on Sunday.

The bill, extending present controls "as is" until April 1, affords the House time to consider a more permanent piece of legislation passed by the Senate on Tuesday. It would extend controls, with some modifications, until April 30, 1949.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) told the Senate yesterday that he had "every assurance" that the House Banking Committee, to which the Senate bill was referred, will give it speedy consideration.

HERE ARE NINE of the 28,000 people who are Esso Standard Oil Company today. From Dorothy the telephone operator to Howard the foreman, they have two things in common . . . they're mighty good people, in mighty good jobs.

The average length of employment for all our workers is over 14 years. Over 8,400 have been with us over 20 years. Their skill and loyalty on the job help a lot, day after day, in turning out quality products in this highly competitive business.

One reason for this unusually good working team is the unusually good jobs they have. Over 30 years ago this company set out always to be a good outfit to work for . . . to give the human needs of workers a key place in all planning.

With employees, their unions, and management all working steadily together, this policy has led to many unusual job advantages. It has kept wage rates high. It has led to employee benefit plans which include retirement with life income at 65, cash-savings plans, vacations with pay, generous accident and sickness benefits.

But the important point is how this combination of good workers in good jobs has had good results for so many people...Good for the workers, of course. Good for the company. Good for the thousands of stockholders who own the company. Good for the communities where these people make good taxpayers, good customers of local stores, good neighbors.

And good results for you, in your car or home or factory or on your farm.

Today, for instance, the whole petroleum industry is working overtime to meet the greatest demand for its products in all history—and this staff of skilled, experienced people is your assurance that everything possible is being done with this company's facilities to meet your needs for more and better petroleum products.

Big Three to Hear Benelux Nations

British Proposal

Court Action Suggested On Antarctic

London, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the Commons today Britain was willing to negotiate an agreement with Argentina and Chile to take the case of disputed Antarctic territories to the International Court of Justice.

Bevin spoke shortly after a Foreign Office spokesman described Chile's action in announcing annexation of some of the territory, as "somewhat unfriendly and even provocative."

He said expeditions and declarations by Argentina and Chile "are gestures in support of claims which, of course, are not recognized by other parties."

Bevin said he was not interested in taking the matter to the United Nations.

Laughter greeted the Foreign Secretary's reference to the fact that the Argentine fleet "carrying five admirals is now, I understand, off Deception Island."

Western Powers Seen in Accord On West Germany

London, Feb. 25 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France paused today in their task of shaping western Germany's future to await a "security first" plea from the Benelux nations.

The Big Three powers were reported as agreed in principle on the need for expanding western Germany's production under the Marshall Plan. The conference was postponed until tomorrow to hear from Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Both American and British officials said there is one problem that may cause considerable discussion and controversy before it is settled. It is the Benelux stipulation against rebuilding Germany's economy more speedily than that of its neighbors.

Meanwhile, foreign ministers deputies studied Russia's price for settling its claim up former German assets in Austria.

[Soviet Russia told the deputies today that Austrian oil production facilities which it proposes to take over should be exempt form nationalization by the Austrian government to protect Russian interests.

[Nicoli Koktomov, Soviet deputy declined to say how long Russia wants the proposed special oil regime to last. Koktomov also was unwilling to explain details of the Soviet proposal to prevent Austria from raising "any difficulties" about the export of profits or other income from undertakings which are handed over to the Russians.]

Weir Warns Aid Can Cause Depression

By The Associated Press

Congress was urged by a leading industrialist yesterday to proceed cautiously with aid to Europe because the Marshall Plan could lead to a "serious depression" in this country.

Chairman Ernest T. Weir of the National Steel Corp. told the House Foreign Affairs Committee:

"To those who are alarmed by the prospect of an expansion of Russian Communism, I say that a serious depression in the United States is the greatest thing to fear."

This will come about, Weir said, if vast sums "wasted through inefficient spending abroad" are added to the "fantastic cost of Government at home."

'Administration Propaganda' Cited

He advised Congress to resist "Administration propaganda" and vote nothing but "urgent relief" until a "thorough, careful" study is made of Europe's ability to help itself.

Weir said he was convinced that the nations of Europe "will not go Communistic." If American aid is intended as a bribe "to stop Communism," he added, "we just can't make that bribe big enough."

The committee heard a similar depression forecast Tuesday from Henry A. Wallace. But the third party presidential candidate said the slump would result from giving foreign aid in the interest of "big business."

House Study to Start

President Truman has asked $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months of a European Recovery Program. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has recommended $5,300,000,000 for the first year. The House group plans to start its own closed door study of the question next week.

Government officials said meanwhile that this country's Export-Import Bank has told France there is little or no use in applying for a 150-million-dollar emergency loan.

French representatives have sounded out loan prospects, saying they need the money to keep their industries going until the European Recovery Program can begin.

Bevin Calls Plight Of Britons' Wives In Soviet Hopeless

London, Feb. 25 (NYHT).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the Commons today he had been "reluctantly forced to the conclusion" there is no hope the Russian wives of 12 British former servicemen can join their husbands in England.

Asked if he would not limit the number of Soviet wives permitted to join their Russian husbands in Britain accordingly, Bevin replied: "I doubt very much whether it will be effective. I deeply sympathize with the husbands and deplore the Soviet attitude, which remains entirely incomprehensible to us, but I have not indulged in the retaliatory method yet and don't want to be driven to it if I can help it."

'Stride Ahead'

British Try 'New Type' Secret Arms

London, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—War Secretary Emanuel Shinwell disclosed today Britain is developing wholly new types of secret weapons instead of trying to improve existing models.

Without elaborating, Shinwell said, "research and analyzing lessons learned in the war and since (the war) have yielded sufficient data to enable us to plan some new weapons. The objective is to produce equipment which is a definite stride ahead in development rather than modification of existing types."

He also reported the army must continue heavy overseas commitments so that some 18-year-old conscripts will be trained in the British occupation zone of Germany instead of at home.

In the past two years, Shinwell said, the gross annual cost of Britain's army has fallen 60 per cent. The estimated expenditure of $1,360,000,000 in 1948-49 will be $664,912,000 less than 1947-49 costs.

The War Secretary said Britain hoped to complete the repatriation of 113,000 German prisoners from the United Kingdom by the end of July and 44,000 from the Middle East by October.

Rev. Reinhart Injured As His Auto Hits Tree

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—The Rev. Thomas D. Reinhart, pastor of St. Anthony's Shrine, Emmitsburg, was injured seriously today when his automobile hit a tree near here, officials at Washington County Hospital reported.

Father Reinhart said he suddenly "blacked out" while at the wheel.

He suffered a head and eye injury, and possible body fractures.

Father Reinhart was born in Cumberland in 1879.

He has served as pastor at St. Peter's Church, Hancock; St. Mary's, Hagerstown, and St. Peter's, Baltimore, before going to St. Anthony's Shrine about 10 years ago.

Light Pole Stops 2 Youths Fleeing Police in Stolen Ca

Two teen-age youths in a stolen auto led police on an 85-mile-an-hour chase from downtown Washington yesterday and were finally arrested when their car skidded and crashed into a light pole at Bladensburg rd. and New York ave. ne.

The driver of the car, Richard Gray, 17, of 203 C st. nw., was admitted to Casualty Hospital in serious condition with head injuries. His companion, Maurice Davis, 17, of 1113 64th ave ne., was admitted to Gallinger Hospital in undetermined conditioned with scalp lacerations.

The chase started at 6th and F sts. nw., at 9 a. m. when Pvts. John Hayden of the Identification Bureau, and Ernest Garner of the Eleventh Precinct, spotted the stolen car. They were off duty.

During the chase downtown and out New York ave., Hayden fired one shot and Garner two at the speeding automobile.

Senator Urges Zionist Favors

Senator Owen J. Brewster (R., Me.) yesterday urged the United States to permit American volunteers to fight in Palestine, and to lift the embargo on arms.

The Senator lashed out at the recently announced United States stand approving the use of troops for "keeping the peace, but not enforcing the partition."

"Peace and partition are utterly indivisible," he said, addressing a public meeting at the Concordia Lutheran Church, 20th and G sts. nw., sponsored by IZFA of George Washington University, a student Zionist group.

On the Russian accord with United States on the Palestine question, Senator Brewster said, "We should embrace the Russians, instead of kicking them in the pants, when they agree with us."

India Constitution Unveiled

New Delhi (Thursday), Feb. 26 (U.P.).—Lawmakers unveiled a constitution for India today. It would pledge the government to end the ancient caste system and free 330 million people from the evils of poverty and religious oppression.

The draft needs only the approval of the constitutent assembly to proclaim India a "sovereign democratic republic," with a federated government modeled after the United States and promising the same fundamental rights.

The constitution leaves undecided the question of India's continued membership in the British Commonwealth, but does provide for a union of states under which all powers not marked for the central government are delegated to the provinces.

It calls for universal suffrage for all men and women over 21 and a president-premier-parliament relationship. It orders the government to provide within 10 years free and compulsory education for all persons until they are 14.

It would outlaw the ancient custom of untouchability.

A bill of rights, promises "justice, liberty, equality and fraternity" to all Indians, regardless of caste, race, religion and sex. It guarantees "freedom of conscience" and worship and pledges protection for minorities.

A directive binds the government to provide a livelihood for all Indians, and, "within its economic capacity," to improve the standards of living of the masses and prevent the concentration of wealth.

Finland Is Viewed As Next Red Target

London, Feb. 25 (AP).—It was speculated in London tonight that Finland might be the next European nation to feel the Communist squeeze.

Like Czechoslovakia, Finland has been ruled by a coalition government and has elections coming up soon.

3-Power Protest On Coup Debated

French May Join United States, Britain In Protesting Czech Power Seizure

Paris, Feb. 25.—The French government is seriously considering tonight a proposal that it join the United States and Britain in a three-power protest of the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault today made one of the strongest speeches made by a French government representative in a long time.

The three-power protest, suggested by the United States, may never materialize. There is some question as to whether it could accomplish its purpose of strengthening the hand of President Eduard Benes in the coming weeks.

Bidault in his talk before the Anglo-American Press Association, devoted his words exclusively to the Czech crisis.

"There is no democracy, where they shoot and hang the opposition," he said.

And he finished by saying:

"You must know that the fundamental and final resolution of the people and government of this country is peace. But certainly not peace without liberty."

Members of New Czech Cabinet

Svoboda — Masaryk

Jan Masaryk, a nonparty member, will continue as Minister of Foreign Affairs in the new Communist-controlled government of Czechoslovakia. Gen. Ludwig Svoboda, also a nonparty member, is Minister of Defense in the cabinet formed by Premier Klement Gottwald ers had uncovered alleged "conspiracies" against the government and had gone into action.

Today with the country in his hip-pocket and only the elder statesmen of Czechoslovakia blocking him, Gottwald went to President Benes with his list. Of 26 ministers, they included 12 Communist Party members, two nonparty ministers and the remainder all known to be favorably disposed toward cooperation with the Communists.

President Benes accepted the lists after approving the resignations of 12 resigned ministers. He had held those resignations in abeyance since Friday, hoping to reconstitute the all-party national front government. The Communists were strident, however, and successfully carried out their bid for power.

In the new government there will be besides the 12 Communists who now hold the ministries of justice and interior, four Social Democrats, two Catholic People's Party, one Slovak Democrat and two nonparty members. One of the two non-party ministers is Jan Masaryk, long-time foreign minister, whose father, Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, was the country's first President.

The reshuffle by the Communists increases their quota from nine ministers in the old cabinet. For a party which emerged from the elections two years ago as the strongest individually but with only 38 per cent of the vote, the Communists have done well. The date for the next election has net yet been set.

The parties which suffered were the People's Party, the Czech National Socialists and the Slovak Democrats. Their ministers had resigned on Friday, precipitating the crisis which the Communists seized and in 4½ days took over completely.

There are two points which remain to be cleared. The opposition contents the ministers representing the parties in the new cabinet are not the choices of the respective executive committees. Although Communist domination is unquestioned now, action by the opposition on the new ministers and subsequent rulings by President Benes will be awaited with interest.

President Benes rested in ancient Hradcany Castle as his decision was discussed. The act was hailed by the Communists.

The despondent opposition, faithful to President Benes and his record, said he could do nothing else. They said any defiance from Hradcany Castle would cause bloodshed. Others, weeping unashamedly, also remain faithful to their President. They said history would judge his wisdom.

Previously the Communists had muzzled President Benes in a subtle manner. A letter he addressed to the central committee of the Communist Party yesterday, emphasizing calm and parliamentary procedure, was not released until today by the official Czech news agency.

The agency is controlled by the Communist-held ministry of information. The Benes letter was released today with the Communist reply, which underscored heavily the "will of the people."

By this morning the Communists had installed their action committees in the newspaper plants of all the opposition. And, abetting their program was former Premier Zdenek Fierlinger, left-wing Social Democrat, whose followers took control at Socialist headquarters last night.

Fierlinger also had a little talk with Bohumil Lausmann, who ousted him from the leadership of the party three months ago. The result was an agreement for cooperation. Two right-wing Socialists, however, resigned their cabinet posts and a split in the party is certain.

Those who resigned were Frantisek Tymes, Vice Premier, and Vaclav Majer, Minister of Food.

Premier Gottwald visited Benes twice today. He went to the President this morning and 90 minutes later the Communist-controlled radio broadcast the news that President Benes had decided to accept the resignations of the opposition ministers.

The President's office, however, insisted that he had reached no decision. Then the Communists trotted out their strength in a spontaneous demonstration in the afternoon. Bearing red flags with a hammer and sickle and the red, white and blue banners of Czechoslovakia, they packed Wenceslas Square.

Gottwald, victorious by 4:30 p. m., delivered the news personally. Then he told the Communists all to return to work. He said that the works councils resolutions of last Sunday, which included nationalization of all industries of more than 50 employes and nationalization of foreign trade would be carried out.

"The attacks on the new Czechoslovakian democracy has been quite beaten now," said Gottwald.

Cheering Communist crowds surged through the main square again tonight to applaud marching columns of special workers militia. The rifle-packing militia is ordinarily assigned to guard nationalized plants. Tomorrow was declared a day of national celebration.

Taylor Blames Truman For Czechoslovakia Coup

New York, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Senator Glenn H. Taylor of Idaho charged today that President Truman's foreign policies were responsible for the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

"Soviet Russia is scared to death and is simply trying to nail down her borders against the aggressive foreign policy of the United States," Taylor said. "Today's events in Czechoslovakia would never have happened had it not been for Truman's foreign policies."

Taylor, third party vice presidential candidate, spoke at a press conference marking the formal opening of national headquarters here for the movement backing Henry Wallace for President.

"If Henry Wallace were President events would have taken a different turn in Czechoslovakia," Taylor declared. "The whole Russian policy of today is directed by their fear of our aggressive foreign policy and the remembrance of how their country was invaded in the last war."

U.S. May Clamp Rigid Controls On Exports to Czechoslovakia

By The Associated Press

The American Government may clamp rigid exports controls on goods going to Czechoslovakia.

Government officials said last night they are seriously considering this move as a way of expressing displeasure at the Communist overturn of the Czech government.

Such controls, they said, would limit the amount of heavy machinery and equipment Czechoslovakia can buy in the United States.

During 1947, such heavy equipment made up $11,129,000 of the 49 million dollars Czechoslovakia spent for American goods.

The theory would be that "other friendly" countries could better use the scarce products.

1. The Government's Export-Import Bank would "definitely kill" whatever chances the Czech government has of getting 20 million dollars cotton credit.

2. The Treasury could freeze whatever assets the Czechoslovak government has in this country.

3. The American representative on the World Bank might oppose Czechoslovakia's long-standing application for a 350-million-dollar reconstruction loan.

4. The American delegate on the International Monetary Fund could block any Czech loan request on the grounds that a regimented Czechoslovakia would be a poor credit risk.

Reaction to Coup In Czechoslovakia

Stettin to Trieste

Red Control Far Exceeds Czars' Rule

By The Associated Press

The war and its aftermath have spread Communist rule outside Russia over more than 50,000 square miles and more than 110 million people.

Anna Paulker

The Communist sphere has been pushed to a line in eastern Europe from Stettin to Trieste—far beyond anything the Czars of Russia's imperial days were able to reach.

Czechoslovakia is the latest country to fall into the Communist camp. She may not be the last, because the Kremlin has shown interest in Greece, Turkey, Italy, France, Finland and perhaps eastern Germany and Austria.

Upward of 195,000 square miles and 25 million people were annexed to Russia during and immediately after the war. Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were absorbed in 1940. Two fifths of prewar Poland was taken, along with parts of Finland, Romania, Germany and Czechoslovakia—which lost mountainous Ruthenia. Japan yielded the Kurile Islands and the southern half of Sakhalin Island.

Big Bite in Balkans

The end of Germany and Japan brought under Communist domination Yugoslavia, Albania, Poland, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and now Czechoslovakia. These countries represent an area of 447,573 square miles with a total of 85,903,861 people.

Yugoslavia became a Communist state soon after November 1, 1944, when Yugoslav Premier Ivan Subasitch signed an agreement with Marshal Josip Broz, better known as Tito. Opposition was broken quickly. Gen. Draja Mihailovic, the original guerilla foe of the Axis, was tried and executed.

Another Communist, Gen. Enver Hoxha, seized control in neighboring Albania. The United States, Britain and Russia recognized his government on November 10, 1945, and the pattern of events in Yugoslavia was repeated in Albania.

Squeeze on Poland

The Polish government was formed in Moscow in July, 1944, as the Polish Committee of National Liberation. On June 28, 1945, it was supplemented by the exiled wartime regime in London. The great powers generally recognized the government headed by President Boleslaw Bierut, a Communist. The opposition gradually was squeezed out. The last important opposition leader, former Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, was forced into exile late in 1947.

The establishment of a Communist state in Bulgaria was a more gradual process. Georgia Dimitrov returned to Bulgaria with Russian occupation troops and became Premier with the four-party Fatherland Front. The last opposition leader, Nikolai Petkov, was executed last fall. The Fatherland Front became a one-party vehicle early this year.

In Romania, Petru Groza and a cabinet drawn from the Communist Party and Leftist Ploughman's Front was installed March 6, 1945. The Communists gradually pressured their way to power. Ana Pauker, an old-line Communist, became Foreign Minister last fall. King Mihai abdicated December 30, 1947. The Romanian Parliament dissolved itself last Tuesday.

Czechs Surrounded

Hungary had semidemocratic forms of government until last May, when the Communists drove out Premier Ferenc Nagy in a coup. Other anti-Communists escaped into exile. The Communists tightened their control under Premier Lajos Dinnyes.

Czechoslovakia thus found herself virtually surrounded by Russian-dominated area. Klement Gottwald, a Communist, became Premier July 2, 1946, after an election in which the Communists won 38 per cent of the seats in Parliament. A year and a half of uneasy peace and compromise reached a climax last Friday when the Communists started their coup. It was crowned with success Wednesday, when President Benes accepted Gottwald's new Communist regime.

Soviet Radio Lauds 'Organization' of Western Neighbor

Reaction to the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia last night included:

Ferenc Nagy, exiled former Hungarian Premier: "The fate of Czechoslovakia shows how indefensible the other nations were whose governments were unseated by Moscow. Czechoslovakia was the only middle European nation not occupied by Russian troops, and yet nothing could save her."

George Dimitrov, exiled leader of Bulgaria's peasant party: "This is a real Communist revolution in Czechoslovakia. This must prove that the Soviets are not interested in friendly nations on their borders. They want to dominate Europe first, and then the world."

French Foreign Minister George Bidault: "There is no democracy where they shoot and hang the opposition."

Radio Moscow Commentator Gofman: "The Czechoslovak people displayed a remarkable degree of political activity, coupled with magnificent disciplineand organization."

House Committee Not to Review Trial of Murphy

A House District Subcommittee yesterday decided not to review the recent trial of Fire Chief Clement Murphy on charges of demoralizing his department.

The subcommittee, headed by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) declared in a statement that on the facts they had received "no present action seems required."

Chief Murphy was acquitted of the charges against his by a special trial board. His attorneys had strongly opposed the idea of having the case reviewed at the Capitol.

Adelbert Lee Loses Suit Against Paper

A $150,000 libel suit filed against the Washington Daily News by Adelbert W. Lee, 3811 Pennsylvania ave. se., a member of the District School Board, yesterday was thrown out of District Court by Associate Justice Jennings Bailey.

The action was on motion by Mark Friedlander, attorney for the newspaper, who asked a directed verdict in favor of the defendant. Bailey granted the motion without comment.

Special U.N. Session On Korea Proposed

Norwegian Wants Assembly to Restudy Independence Issue

Lake Success, Feb. 25 (AP).—A special session of the United Nations Assembly to reconsider the Korean independence issue was suggested today by Norway.

Finn Moe of Norway said another situation like the Palestine partition case may arise if the U. N. little assembly seeks to push the establishment of a Korean government over Soviet objections. He spoke in the little assembly.

The little assembly adjourned until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow without voting on a United States resolution which calls for the little assembly to advise the U. N. Korean commission to go ahead with elections in such sections of Korea as are open to it.

The Russians fought the Korean commission and have boycotted the little assembly.

Moe urged the U. N. to make another attempt to find agreement between Russia and the United States on Korea.

Taylor Backs Interception of News Story

Nuernberg, Germany, Feb. 25 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor said today he takes full responsibility for his employes' action in intercepting a news story before its publication.

Asked if he believed such practice was legal, the chief United States war crimes prosecutor replied he did not think he should comment on that.

He intimated that what would be illegal in the United States might not be in occupied Germany.

He said the difference was that in Germany stories are filed over Army signal channels rather than commercial private circuits.

Prosecutor Criticized

After a war crimes trial judgment was handed down Friday, presiding Judge Charles F. Wennerstrum of Iowa criticized the prosecution in an interview given to Hal Foust of the Chicago Tribune.

Foust filed his story by Press Wireless for publication Tuesday. Sunday Taylor replied to the criticism before it got into print.

Taylor and his public relations officer, C. E. Deane, said lawyers heard about the interview and relayed the information to Taylor Friday night. Taylor told Deane to find out what Wennerstrum said.

Miss Anne Turner of Philadelphia, an employe in Dean's office, went into the press wireless office in Frankfurt and asked for Foust's copy. A girl employe handed it over. Miss Turner denied she represented herself as Foust's secretary in order to get the story.

Wennerstrum Stands Pat

Eugene English, Press Wireless manager in Germany, said delivery of the copy to Miss Deane was a violation of the company's rules. He said his employes claimed Miss Turner requested the copy to complete army signal records, the manager stated.

"I take full responsibility for what my employes did," Taylor said. "Judge Wennerstrum made a statement designed for publicity. He made charges against the prosecution. I merely answered them."

Wennerstrum returned to the United States yesterday and said he stood pat on his criticism of the war crimes trials as failing to obtain "objectivity aloof from vindictiveness."

Reds Call Lend-Lease Arms 'Poor in Quality'

Moscow, Feb. 25 (AP).—The trade union newspaper Trud said tonight Lend-Lease arms Russia got from the United States during the war were "by far poorer in quality" than Soviet equipment.

N. Voznesensky, chairman of the state planning commission, wrote recently that industrial supplies Russia received from her Allies under Lend-Lease constituted less than four per cent of Soviet industrial production. He did not say, however, that Allied equipment was poor in quality.

Civil War in Yemen Feared As Capital Clash Is Reported

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 25 (AP).—The newspaper Alahram said in a dispatch from Aden today that rival forces had clashed in San'a, capital of Yemen, in a fight for control of the Arabian kingdom.

The dispatch said tribesmen supporting Seif el Islam Ahmed, eldest son of the late King, had clashed with troops of Abdullah bin Abin Ahmed el Wazir. El Wazir claimed last night he had been elected Iman, succeeding 82-year-old King Yehia.

That a civil war is threatening or developing in Yemen seemed supported by a cablegram received by Sayed Aly el Muayad, the Yemen representative in Cairo. The message was signed by Ahmed, the eldest son, and claimed he was the new Imam.

It urged the Arab League to speed the departure of a league delegation to Yemen "for a just arbitration in the serious situation arising and what may become civil war."

An Arab League source said reports indicated "the situation has worsened and disturbances are prevailing in the country."

Brotherhood Proof By Action Is Urged

Drew Pearson and Eric Johnston Speak At Variety Club Program Observing Week

More practical demonstrations of brotherhood were urged yesterday.

Principal speakers at a Brotherhood Week program of the Variety Club at the Statler Hotel were Drew Pearson, columnist, and Eric Johnston, czar of the motion picture industry.

Pearson said the Friendship Train had helped create good will by showing needy Europeans that Americans are really interested in their welfare.

"The world will be stable again," Johnston said in his address, "only when man better understands his fellowmen." He praised Pearson's efforts in initiating and carrying through the Friendship Train project.

Fred Kogod, chairman of the Variety Club's welfare committee, presented a $250 check to Alfred McGarraghy of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The money will aid the drive for $25,000, this area's share in the $2,500,000 national quota to further the work of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Robert Denton was general chairman of the luncheon.

The Jewish Community Center, 16th and Q sts. nw., was the scene of two Brotherhood Week events yesterday. The B'nai B'rith Business and Professional Women of Washington sponsored an interfaith program last night. In the afternoon there was a program sponsored by the Washington Council of Church Women and B'nai B'rith women.

Another inter-faith program was held at the Dumbarton College of the Holy Cross.

The Arlington Chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will sponsor a Brotherhood Week program today at 8:15 p. m. at the Clarendon Methodist Church, 6th and Irving sts., north. The speaker will be Dr. Leonard P. Aries, of the office of the general counsel, National Housing Agency.

7 Farm Children Burned to Death

A flaming stairway prevented others in the 15-member Ellsworth Waterhouse family from reaching the trapped youngsters.

The mother collapsed and was taken to the home of relatives.

The dead children slept in three beds in a single large upstairs room. They ranged from 18 months to 16 years.

Correction

Dr. Nathan L. Drake, chief of the chemistry department at the University of Maryland and recently named winner of the 1948 Hillebrand Award of the Chemical Society of Washington, D. C., will be tendered the award on March 11 at the local organization's annual dinner at Hotel 2400.

Dr. Drake of 6820 Pineway, College Heights, Md., was specifically honored for his work in preparation and synthesis of antimalarial compounds. The Washington Post yesterday erroneously stated the award dinner would be held tonight. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Cannon Lauds Taber, Scores Post Editorial

Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) has gone to bat strongly for Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) and against Monday's editorial in The Washington Post which criticized him.

Cannon told the House in a speech printed in yesterday's Congressional Record that members read the editorial with "surprise and indignant disapproval."

Cannon is former chairman and ranking Democrat of the House Appropriations Committee which Taber now hads.

The editorial attacked the practice of giving committee chairmanships on the basis of seniority, and said in part:

". . . We doubt that John Taber of Appropriations would have a look-in if committee chairmanships were distributed on the basis of merit."

"I hold no brief for John Taber," Cannon said. "He is wrong oftener than he is right. Like Ephraim, 'he is joined to his idols,' reactionary Republican principles. But I must say that from my observation, which covers several sessions of Congress, there has been no more aggressive, vigorous, intelligent, constructive leadership upon the part of any committee chairman in either body in the years it has been my privilege to serve here."

Dr. Benes' Dilemma

The report comes from Prague that the radio speech that President Benes of Czechoslovakia announced he would make yesterday to his country and to the world was canceled. This probably means that the speech was forbidden by the Communist masters of the country who are of course in control of all broadcasting facilities. The Communists have stated that Dr. Benes has consented to the government of party members and Socialist fellow travelers nominated by the Communist Premier Gottwald, but there is no confirmation from any trustworthy source.

However, the defection of the section of the Social Democratic Party which has chosen to follow the leadership of the former Premier, Zdenek Fierlinger, seems to assure the Communist regime a parliamentary majority. It is even said that a number of National Socialist leaders have agreed to collaborate with the Communists, and may be given representation in the new government. Thus it appears that Dr. Benes, who, incidentally, is a National Socialist, now has merely the choice of accepting Premier Gottwald's government as constitutional or of resigning as a final gesture of protest.

The rapid denouement in Czechoslovakia testifies to the extent of Communist infiltration into the parties which had been opposing them. These parties had been aware of the danger and had been seeking to preserve their unity and integrity by a series of expulsions. The result was a series of splinter factions, which, transformed into revolutionary "action committees," were of great assistance to Premier Gottwald in the consummation of his coup.

But, despite the efficient help of the fellow travelers and the speed and success of the Communist seizure of power, there is reason to believe that the hands of the Kremlin and its agents in Czechoslovakia were forced. Communism was losing rather than gaining ground, and a general election in which the Communists were likely to lose a good deal of their political influence was approaching. In Slovakia there appears to have been an active and well-organized resistance to them, and in Bohemia there were increasing signs of a desire to break out of the orbit of Russian influence, as the prospects for the success of the Marshall Plan in western Europe grew brighter.

There was at least this much truth to the charges of "conspiracy" raised by the Communists, so that the transformation of Czechoslovakia into another police state had become, from the standpoint of the Kremlin, an imperative necessity.

Barnes Bill

The latest effort at statutory extirpation of witchcraft in Massachusetts takes the form of a proposal called the Barnes bill. It provides that "no person who is a member of the Communist Party or who by speech or in writing advocates its doctrines . . . shall be employed as a teacher or otherwise in any university, college, or school, public or private, or in any position in the educational system of the Commonwealth or of any city, town, superintendency union or county." This is probably the most sweeping prohibition since the abolition of Japanese thought control. It embraces not only teachers and occasional lecturers but administrative personnel, clerical assistants and even custodial employes. And the manner of its enforcement is even more remarkable. Not only the employe but the employer as well would be held liable to the extent of a $10,000 fine and a year in jail. To serve as a member of a school committee or a board of trustees could prove very costly under these conditions.

The Barnes bill has more than local significance chiefly because it is symptomatic of a spreading intolerance respecting any sort of political nonconformity. It is, of course, already a crime under the laws of Massachusetts and of the United States to advocate overthrow of the Government by force or violence. But this bill would penalize also mere membership in a party alleged to advocate such overthrow or mere advocacy of any of the doctrines of that party. This latter provision is presumably aimed at that vague category called fellow travelers. It is liable to catch every teacher exhibiting the slightest independence of outlook. As President Conant of Harvard observed when he testified in opposition to the Barnes bill, the real danger to America comes "not from a spread of doctrines of revolution but from . . . a fear approaching panic, an hysteria and consequent repudiation of all the basic principles that have guided the destiny of this Republic."

Palestine In The Air

As an international responsibility the partition of Palestine with economic union which was urged by formal recommendation of the General Assembly last November 29 is as dead as the Great Auk. It was buried under a cloud of dust thrown up by Mr. Austin. This is what our delegate's expression of doubt as to legality of action by the Security Council amounts to. Procrastination has been the thief of partition. Already the Mufti-party has been allowed to get so entrenched that there are no Palestinian Arabs to negotiate with. And partition with economic union requires negotiation in order to set up the joint organs essential to such a solution and to the prosperity of both states. Without enforcement—vigorously and promptly, in Mr. Churchill's language—there could be no partition with economic union.

It would be far better, accordingly, for the United Nations frankly to shelve the recommendation of the General Assembly and simply assume a collective trusteeship over Palestine. This would at least introduce the United Nations into Palestine. With the world body inside, then the Arabs and the Jews could be invited to talk over a solution. However, assuming cooperation, with whom now among the Palestinian Arabs would the United Nations talk? With the Nazi-indoctrinated and thoroughly xenophobic Mufti? That would, indeed, be ironical. In 1938 when the British were considering partition, Premier Ramsay MacDonald would have nothing to do with the Mufti. Since then, of course, we have had a war, during which the Mufti, after trying to ditch the British in the Middle East, found refuge in Berlin, and became what Mr. Churchill called "England's worst enemy." Perhaps if we may be permitted the sarcasm, this record makes him more acceptable as a negotiator than he was in 1938. Then it would remain to be seen whether even the shelving of partition and the forgiveness of the Mufti would ameliorate Arab noncooperation.

Nothing could give a clearer indication of a backdown in the American position than this raising of the question of legality. For it was raised and disposed of during the discussions prior to Assembly action. A resolution, dated November 24, was presented—> to ask the World Court for an advisory opinion . . . whether the United Nations or any of its member states is competent to enforce or recommend the enforcement of any proposal concerning the constitution and future government of Palestine, in particular any plan of partition, which is contrary to the wishes or adopted without the consent of the inhabitants of Palestine.

The resolution was defeated 21 to 20, with the United States among the noes. Mr. Herschel Johnson and other delegates all pleaded that time was of the essence of U. N. action. The additional fact that on the previous October 24, Mr. Johnson had spoken in favor of a joint constabulary of volunteers—without, however, subscribing to the Guatemalan suggestion of an enforcement provision—proves that the Austin speech was the triumph of reaction in the State Department. What is clear is that the military and the operating level in the State Department have succeeded in imposing their will on the policy-makers.

What we now need in addition to a declaration putting Palestine under a collective trusteeship is Security Council action to stop the neighboring states from aggression and an impartial arms policy in the Middle East. Malcolm MacDonald, when Dominions Minister, said the neighboring Arab states had no locus standi in Palestine. They must be told that again. But we doubt whether they will heed the warning if expressed in the muffled pussyfooting terms employed by Mr. Austin. The voice of the United Nations must be raised above the whisper to which it is in danger of being reduced by the Palestine bungling.

Another Long

Louisiana's fabulous Long dynasty has been reenthroned through the election of Earl K. Long as Governor. This is proof, if any is needed, that the magic touch of the Long name survives a long period out of public office and a formidable series of scandals touching several close associates of the Long machine. The election undoubtedly was complicated by the fact that there were four candidates in the Democratic primary and that the two run-off opponents, Long and Sam Houston Jones, indorsed many of the same things. Nonetheless, most of the progressive forces supported Jones, who as a "reform" Governor succeeded Long in 1940; and Jones' present defeat was overwhelming. Nor did the investigation of alleged income tax evasion by Long voted by the House Rules Committee have any appreciable influence on the voters.

It would be too much to say that Earl is a tintype of his more famous brother, Huey. Where Huey was smooth, Earl has been regarded as merely crude. A possible factor in Earl's success is the energetic support he had from Huey Long, jr., who is said to be the image of his father. At any rate, it is evident that the same mesmerized responses the elder Huey used to evoke are still latent in Louisiana. Whereas Huey's slogans used to be "share the wealth" and "every man a king," Earl has adopted a somewhat modified motto of "service to the people." He promises, however, to "improve on everything Huey did," specifically with respect to old age pensions and highways. And obviously this approach went over in a big way despite such unsavory portions of Earl's record as his association with former Gov. Richard W. Leche, who was sent to prison in the aftermath of the graft expose following Huey Long's death. Earl himself was indicted for embezzlement in 1940, though, as he stressed in his campaign, he was never convicted.

One certain result of the Long victory is to cast gloom over the reform movement of New Orleans' youthful mayor, "Chep" Morrison, who succeeded in upsetting the infamous Maestri machine there two years ago. Another result is to demonstrate that good government cannot be secured easily where people have been deluded into selling their political birthrights for such material accomplishments as good roads and bridges.

Censored Hearing

It is doubly unfortunate that the House Foreign Affairs Committee decided to ban radio, newsreel and television apparatus from the hearing room this week—starting with the appearance of Henry Wallace Tuesday. The ban imposes a needless and unwise restriction on coverage of committee proceedings in general. And in this instance it lends some credibility to the complaint voiced by C. B. Baldwin, Mr. Wallace's campaign manager, that "the committee simply does not want to permit Mr. Wallace's point of view on the Marshall Plan to reach a vast segment of the American people."

It is scarcely arguable that operation of radio, newsreel and television facilities in a crowded hearing room is, as committee members observed, exceedingly troublesome. When Secretary Marshall appeared before the committee, the flashing lights and whirring cameras seriously interfered with the proceedings. Nevertheless it is an important part of the function of a congressional hearing to transmit ideas to the public, and the fulfillment of this function is worth some inconvenience. A little common sense should serve to strike a balance between an absolute ban and unbridled license. A single microphone and a single camera might well serve all the competing newsreel and radio reporters. A limited period could be made to suffice for all the photographers to secure all the flashshots needed. The more free the channels of communication between Congress and the people, the better will be the operation of the democratic process.

Merger Menace

Between 1940 and 1946, says the Federal Trade Commission, more than 1800 manufacturing and mining concerns with assets exceeding four billion dollars disappeared because of mergers and acquisitions. And the trend continued during 1947. This merger movement, taking the form principally of purchases of the assets of smaller concerns by big firms, has been facilitated by the ineffectiveness of the Clayton Act, which, as interpreted by the courts, deprives the Federal Trade Commission of power to prevent a company from purchasing outright the assets of another company unless the resultant merger creates a monopoly. Since the FTC does have the power under the Clayton Act to prevent acquisition of a company's stock by another company, if the purchase would merely lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly, the result has been encouragement of industrial concentration by the merger route.

The FTC has long urged Congress to amend the Clayton Act as a means of enabling it to proceed against corporate mergers brought about through purchase of assets. A bill amending the Act with that purpose in mind—the Kefauver bill—has been reported out by the House Judiciary Committee but is at the moment bottled up in the Rules Committee. The proposal has been the subject of extensive hearings, resulting in revision of the bill originally introduced. The Federal Trade Commission also made an exhaustive study of the merger developments of recent years, emphasizing the threat to free enterprise of current trends. Congress should certainly be afforded an opportunity at this session to pass on the merits of this measure, which aims to protect the interests of small business from unfair competition and monopolistic encroachments.

The postwar growth of mergers furthering the concentration of wealth and income in the hands of giant concerns emphasizes the need for plugging those loopholes in the antitrust laws that hamper the FTC's efforts to deal effectively with the merger problem. And it makes it all the more imperative for Chairman Allen of the Rules Committee to take the Kefauver bill out of cold storage and give Congress a chance to examine it.

PORTRAIT OF TWO MINDS

The garden of your mind is kept in order,
Each plant is tended carefully, just so;
Each path correctly made, and every border
Taught with exacting science how to grow.
How you would scorn my careless plot of garden,
Planted with reckless hand, and without reason;
Its wild disorder you would never pardon,
Its paths that often bloom at the wrong season.
Wild gourds have long since overgrown my fountain,
And honeysuckle broken down my wickers,
Pansy and cockscomb, tall snow-on-the-mountain,
Twisted with grapevines, form wild tangled thickets.
And wanton, tall and bright, the sunflower flows,
Towering above the lily and the rose.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

"De Valera's Record"

In your editorial of February 22, entitled "De Valera's Record," you state that: "Indeed, the bitterness to which Mr. Churchill has so frequently given voice concerning Mr. De Valera's refusal to discuss the idea of permitting the Royal Navy to use bases in southern Ireland (as provided in the treaty) may have delayed a solution indefinitely."

The five words bracketed contain an implication that (1) there was a treaty in force between Ireland and Great Britain under the provisions of which Britain had a right to use certain bases in Ireland and (2) that Ireland refused to abide by the provisions of that treaty.

This is entirely inaccurate and conveys the distinct impression that Ireland broke her pledged word, and in order to correct that false impression I give you the following facts:

Articles (6) and (7) of the "Articles of Agreement for a Treaty Between Ireland and Great Britain," signed on December 6, 1921, did contain provisions whereby certain harbor and other facilities, at Berehaven, Cobh (Queenstown), and Lough Swilly, should be afforded to the British government; but, by further agreement, signed by the Irish government and the British government on April 25, 1938, the provisions of those two articles ceased to have effect, and all British property and rights thereof were transferred to the Irish government.

SEAN NUNAN,
Irish Minister.

Civil Rights Legislation

There are among those opponents of proposed civil rights legislation many who utilize the argument that such proposals threaten the fundamental right of an individual to choose his own way of life, that this way of life includes the right to choose one's own business and social associates, and that for Government to tamper with this right is to destroy the American way of the "free choice."

In the Constitution are clearly stated principles looking toward the safeguarding of the citizens of the community from innocuous arbitrary acts of Government. These rights have been held by the courts and by the opinion of political theoreticians for years not to be absolute and beyond the restrictions of Government.

I hold therefore that there are no absolute rights retained by any persons or groups of persons. All rights are relative and they are operative to the extent that they work no harm upon others.

I do not propose to deny the right of a man to choose freely his own associates. I cannot believe, however, that this right can extend to the prohibition of others, toward whom this man might have antagonistic attitudes, from the free and unsegregated use of public or semi-public institutions. This right of free choice does not grant the prerogative of one group to band together to deny others the free exercise of their franchise nor the equal opportunity to employment.

The right of free choice that is used so glibly must of a necessity be exercised only privately. It is not proposed that a racially biased individual must take a person who is the object of an unreasoning antagonism into his home. However, I hold that the right of discrimination cannot morally nor legally be practical and supported by governmental legislation applicable to public institutions and conveyances. There must be an equality before the law.

There must be a rededication to the principles and purposes for which this country was founded, to the protection of minorities from persecution and violence, whether those minorities be racial, religious or political. The present condition is an unhealthy one that does not tend to breed, in the long run, a stable and lasting community. A continuance of this policy can only engender deep and bitter hatreds and schisms which one day can well lead to disintegration.

"Kitty Hawk"

It would appear from F. O. Bergstrom's letter of February 14 that United States Air Services is of the opinion that Wright "invented" the airplane or "discovered the secret of flight." United States Air Services can look over the inventions of one Leonardo da Vinci, an engineer of Florence, Italy, who lived the Renaissance period and who is the actual inventor of the heavier-than-air flying machine, the parachute, an ornithopter, several means of reducing speed between two parallel shafts and a pioneer form of machine-gun as well as the producer of about eight celebrated paintings.

It may interest Air Services to know that a 10-inch model plane, driven by a twisted rubber band, with paper wings designed after those of the da Vinci drawings, was sold in New York City and Philadelphia about 1895 under the name of "Penaud's Aeroplane," and it flew.

This little device had nothing to do with the experiments of Chanute, Lillienthal, Santos-Dumont, the Wrights or other glider pioneers, and it was obviously based on the da Vinci drawings. As an early flight passenger in the Queen and Henri Farman machines to me the controversy over Wright vs. Langley is silly.

Chinese Currency

In his letter of February 22, Realist suggested the silver unit system for China as a helpful step to stabilize Chinese currency. He said, "China's inflation is highly psychological." I don't agree.

The present inflation in China is fundamentally caused by the greatly unbalanced budget which is the result of civil war. If the civil war can't be stopped, production will still be decreasing and military expense will still be increasing and, therefore, more bank notes will be issued. The psychological factor is but the result or at most a subordinate factor.

A loan in kind of silver to China will be a loan for currency stabilization in name but a loan for civil war and corruption in reality. The only use of the silver for the National government is to get arms, munitions and gasoline for military use, to get cotton, flour, rice and other commodities for sale in the market for revenue to meet its military expense, and to get automobiles, refrigerators, air-conditioners, radio sets and cosmetics for the corrupted ruling circle.

A currency with silver as its unit will not be stable in the long run, since the silver price is not stable in the world market. The fluctuation of the silver price will influence the exchange rate at every moment. An unstable exchange rate will make the currency system a failure. If the United States Government wants to stabilize Chinese currency it should first take its hands off the civil war, then try to encourage and help Chinese people to make out a democratic peace, then lend gold to China—but not silver, with which China has had enough painful experience.

"Loyalty Tests And National Unity"

I read with great interest the abstract of John Lord O'Brian's address before the New York State Bar Association on "Loyalty Tests and National Unity," published in The Washington Post of January 23.

In one of the closing paragraphs of his address, he says: "For sound historical reasons the founding fathers dreaded above everything else secret activities in Government operation. Must we take a different view? Is this aberration from the principles guaranteeing the privacy of the individual justified by any substantial proven facts? It seems to me that Mr. O'Brian has answered his own questions, when, in his paragraph, he says: "Turning again to the practice of secret investigations, this aspect of Government is one in which, up to now, no widespread interest has been aroused."

Widespread interest is usually only aroused when there is widespread opposition. The "secret activities in Government operation," which Mr. O'Brian opposes, have been sufficiently publicized to have developed and aroused widespread opposition if it was in the minds of the people.

Does not the lack of strong opposition to these secret activities prove our people generally believe they are dealing now with a "sinister subversive propaganda" about which the founding fathers had no thought or knowledge, and which must be combated and opposed by different and stronger ways and methods than they planned, in order that the democratic form of government which they founded may be preserved?

Are we to sit quietly by and see the foundations of that government undermined, as they surely would be if this subversive propaganda is not squelched, simply because we are too squeamish to inquire into the lives of public employes and teachers, particularly as to their associations and associates, on the theory that the "doctrine of guilt by association" (which term, by the way, is far from correct), is wrong and should not be accepted?

One of the most effective weapons employed by Hitler against the surrounding countries was the infiltration by Nazi agents, and this weapon is now being employed by the Communists against the United States.

It is for those, who do not want their private lives to be questioned and inquired into, to be loyal to our country by word and deed and association, and to confine their associates and associations to those whose loyalty to our country is unquestioned. If they refuse to do this, then they must expect to receive and take the consequences of questioning and investigation. The safety of our Government and its loyal citizens must not be endangered by such persons, whether their acts are deliberate or merely thoughtless. Individual liberties must always submit to certain curtailments and restrictions in order that the welfare of the country and its loyal citizens may be preserved.

We may again need a Patrick Henry, to again pose the question, "Shall we acquire the means of effectual resistance by lying supinely on our backs and hugging the delusive phantom of hope, until our enemies have bound us hand and foot? We are not weak if we make proper use of those means which the God of nature has placed in our power." And the best means at hand at this time is the right of the Government itself to investigate and discover those who are actively or passively disloyal. This means, with proper use and proper discretion, should be effectively employed.

"One World" Marriage

By Malvina Lindsay

Divided Families

WHETHER LOVE can laugh at nationalism as well as locksmiths must now be determined. Marrying across national borders, to which the war gave impetus, is bound to grow as distances shrink. But there are aftermaths to be reckoned with, such as stern governments in the roles of heavy fathers, and outmoded immigration and citizenship laws.

Both the United Nations and the American Congress are faced with the international marriage problem. The Soviet Union recently disposed of it by banning marriages between Russians and foreigners. The Soviet also adamantly refuses to permit Russian wives of British and American servicemen to join their husbands.

But for the western world, conscious of individual rights, the solution is not so simple. The western viewpoint generally prevailed in the recent session of the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, at which a principle known as "freedom of choice" was affirmed. This states that individuals should have the "right to leave their country on marriage and to reside with the other partner in any country from which they cannot lawfully be excluded."

THIS MEANS that either husband or wife should be free to join a spouse in another country. But American immigration laws don't as yet follow the "freedom of choice" principle, in that they discriminate against women. Hence some national women's groups are working in behalf of a bill introduced by Representative John Lesinski of Michigan to permit nonquota entry of alien husbands of American women on the same basis as alien wives of American men. At present only alien husbands who were married to American women prior to 1932 are permitted nonquota entry. This has brought about divided families since many foreign husbands have been natives of low-quota countries with years of waiting ahead to get on the immigration list.

There are other discriminations against women in the immigration laws. Women's groups are determined that when the Senate completes its study of immigration legislation with a view to modernizing it, steps will be taken to put women on an equal basis with men in all immigration matters. But the present bill, now in the House Judiciary Committee, would be a big step in that direction, and would enable several thousand foreign husbands to join their families in this country.

Not until World War I did the alien spouse problem begin to come home to Americans. Before that the term "international marriage" popularly meant the union of a bankrupt duke or count with a society heiress. But the war brought not only French war brides to this country but introduced the war bridegrooms — foreign men who married American women who went abroad in relief work.

THINKING in this country has generally regarded the wife as automatically taking the locality and citizenship of her husband. A law of 1907—repealed in 1922—provided that any American woman who married a foreigner should take the husband's nationality.

Even as late as 1932 some Congressmen were shocked by a proposal that foreign husbands have the same privilege of entry to the United States as foreign wives. One representative — oddly enough named Free—insisted at a hearing that this would start "a continuous stream of foreign men to this country," and encourage "a bootlegging business by American women to get husbands across the border." However Representative Dickstein gallantly insisted 'American women should not be regarded as more designing than American men.

The second World War made international marriage more commonplace. Foreign brides of servicemen have come here from all parts of the world. More civilian women have worked abroad in relief work—and married more foreign husbands.

Meanwhile changing economic and cultural standards have made the interests of the wife as well as those of the husband important in determining residence and citizenship. There is also a growing feeling that among fundamental human rights are emigration and expatriation—the right to live where one chooses. This means that nations that recognize personal liberties must now meet in their laws the challenge that "One World" marriage presents.

Scott's Reprimand

In the words of a local headline it appears that District Attorney Fay instead of His Honor will have to put up or shut up. Since when has it been improper or against public interest for a judge to criticize irregularities in his own court? If such criticism happens to reflect on members of Mr. Fay's staff it is they who are to blame.

The act of dropping a case against a known absconder is highly suspicious, even to a layman, and the fact that it was innocently done is immaterial.

On face of the record, Judge Scott appears to have rendered a public service, while Mr. Fay seems busy making a mountain out of nothing.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Uninformed And Unneighborly

THAT EXCELLENT newspaper, the (Tucson) Arizona Daily Star, is demanding to know whether Canada should "be placed on a kind of international WPA by the taxpayers of the United States." The editor has just heard "the news" that the Marshall Plan contemplates the spending of American money to pay for supplies to be purchased in Canada and shipped to Europe. This, he says, "amounts to notice that since the people of Canada . . . refuse to assume part of the burden in international reconstruction, we Americans must assume it for them."

Lippmann

After reading that I understood better what the Canadian Ambassador, Mr. Hume Wrong, meant when he said recently that "Americans and Britons know next to nothing about Canada because they have usually been able to take her for granted without serious consequences to themselves." . . . but that "it is not always pleasant for anyone to be taken usually for granted, for that at times involves failure to consider one's feelings and one's interests. Because Canada does not often cause trouble, or become a source of dramatic headlines in the newspapers, or adopt policies which are resented in the United States, it may not be an exaggeration to say that the ordinary citizen of the United States knows more of the course of events in such far distant countries as Yugoslavia and Argentina than he knows about what goes on in the territory of his nearest neighbor."

IF THE EDITOR of an influential American newspaper really believes that Canada refuses to assume part of the burden of international reconstruction, then the Canadian Ambassador was not exaggerating our ignorance of what happens in Canada. For the truth is that man for man, family for family, taxpayer for taxpayer, the Canadians have borne a heavier part of the burden of European reconstruction than we have. Though the Canadian population is only one twelfth as large as the American, though the Canadian national income is only one eighteenth as large as ours, the Canadian contribution to European reconstruction is one fifth as large as ours.

Comparisons are invidious. But there is nothing in the record which entitles anyone in this country to talk down to the Canadians. Measured in money, measured in terms of enlightened generosity, measured in terms of their political and diplomatic contributions during the postwar period, the record of the Canadians is something to look up to. They have been, as Mr. Wrong said, "at the head of the line in giving assistance to Europe."

THEY HAVE done their full share thus far, and there is no question at all of their refusing to continue. The question is solely and simply their ability to continue. To continue what? To continue exporting to Europe wheat and other commodities without receiving in return the goods they themselves need, or American dollars with which to buy goods that can be bought only in the United States.

They have been selling wheat, meat, lumber, metals, to Europe on credit; they have been buying coal, steel, oil, cotton and machinery in the United States for cash. They have now reached the point where they can no longer buy for cash unless they receive cash for a larger part of what they sell. Since November they have had to prohibit the purchase of a long list of American goods and they have had to cut down travel by Canadians in the United States. For they cannot get that cash by selling directly to the United States: we bought last year from Canada only one billion dollars worth of goods while we were selling to Canada for cash some two billions worth of goods.

IT IS NOT easy for Americans in the twentieth century to understand a problem like that of Canada. A hundred years ago Americans would have understood it quite easily. No living American has ever had to worry about how the United States was to pay for goods that could only be bought abroad. Americans have worried only about how they could keep foreign goods out of the American market and about how they could sell American goods abroad.

There has never in this century been any question of our being able to pay for commodities like coffee or rubber or woodpulp that we wish to import. We have always had plenty of gold, plenty of gold dollars, and a surplus of exports. Without a special effort and special study it is, therefore, difficult for Americans to realize how countries like Canada and Sweden, which were not ravaged by the war, can find themselves in financial difficulties today. It is not immediately obvious that they are in trouble because they sell to countries which pay them in money—but not in the kind of money that can be used to buy what they need. To explain this peculiar difficulty, which contemporary Americans have never encountered, is like explaining why the earth is round to a man who says that it has always been flat where he has been living.

YET UNLESS we decide that we shall make ourselves understand their peculiar difficulty, we shall say and do things which wound deeply all the best friends we have on earth. We have never had a better friend than Canada. Yet because the editor of the Arizona Daily Star has not stopped long enough to study the Canadian exchange problem, he writes about Canada in a language which even the most forebearing of neighbors would not fail to resent.

Witness Says Cristoffel Had Red Papers

By The Associated Press

A Government witness in the perjury trial of Harold Christoffel testified yesterday he saw the Daily Worker and other Communist publications in the home of the Milwaukee labor leader.

The defendant was indicated on six counts charging he lied when he testified under oath last March 1. Christoffel at that time stated he had never been a Communist, and had had no Communist connections. He also said he did not know Fred B. Blair or Ned Sparks, both Wisconsin Communists.

Carl Haferkamp, Milwaukee tavern operator, employed by Allis-Chalmers Co. of Milwaukee from 1930 to 1941, said he saw the Communist publications in Christoffel's home at several meetings.

Haferkamp was a steward and member of the bargaining committee of local 248 UAW-CIO. Christoffel is a former president of the local.

When O. John Rogge, chief of defense counsel, began cross-examination, he asked Haferkamp if it was not true that he had stated to a companion on a train that he had "waited for six years to hang those guys, meaning Christoffel and Buse, and now you were going to do it?"

"Yes," Haferkamp replied.

Haferkamp Explains

John S. Pratt, Government prosecutor, immediately asked that Haferkamp be allowed to explain why he had made that remark. Judge Edward M. Curran agreed.

The witness said that for some time after he started his tavern "threats were made that they were going to break my windows if I told about the union."

"Threatening notes were pushed under my door," Haferkamp continued. "I had the police department watching my house."

"Did you get that money (for the tavern) from company officials?" Rogge asked.

Buse was not otherwise identified. Robert Buse is also a former president of Local 248.

Haferkamp also said Christoffel helped select books and periodicals for the union library and these included the Daily Worker, New Masses, the CIO News, the Midwest Daily Record and Friday.

Earlier in the day, Rauland de Mint, a supervisor at the Wisconsin Gas & Electric Co. of Racine, Wis., and a former business agent of a District 50, United Mine Workers, local there, testified that Christoffel sought to have him hire Fred Blair so the latter could solicit Communist Party memberships among company employes.

De Mint Refused

De Mint said he refused. De Mint said Christoffel tried to have Blair put on the company payrolls at two different meetings.

Present at the last of these meetings, all in 1938, the witness said, were Christoffel, Blair and a third man whose name he could not recall.

At a prior meeting, De Mint said, the defendant, Ned Sparks and others were present.

"Do you think I am down here to fabricate stories?" de Mint roared at Rogge when the latter said Blair's name never had been mentioned at those meetings.

Arthur Zeltner, Milwaukee police official, testified that he saw Christoffel and Blair talking together in the lobby of a theater where Earl Browder was making an address.

Presence of Quorum Important

The Government is seeking to prove that a quorum, or majority, of the 25-man committee was present at the start of that session. Christoffel testified later that afternoon.

This brings to 12 the number of committee members who have so testified. The defense contends that a quorum was not present and thus no perjury could have been committed.

Pratt told reporters Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), a committee member, will be called to appear Thursday.

Pratt said the Government expects to rest its case later Thursday.

Red Influence Is Charged in Movie Strike

By the United Press

A House Labor Subcommittee investigating Hollywood's 16-month-old jurisdictional strike was told yesterday that a "subversive drive" by the Communist Party was largely to blame.

Matthew Levy, attorney for the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL), charged Communist influence in the Conference of Studio Unions, the rival AFL faction in the interunion squabble.

The Red issue was aired after the membership and authority of the subcommittee had been suddenly expanded by Chairman Fred A. Hartley, jr. (R., N. J.) of the full House Labor Committee.

Committee Enlarged

Subcommittee Chairman Carroll D. Kearns (R., Pa.) at first had ruled that he would keep "this Communist angle out of the investigation" on the ground that it was beyond the subcommittee's jurisdiction.

But Representative Gerald W. Landis (R., Ind.) demanded that it be included. Hartley was reached by long - distance telephone, and he enlarged the committee to include Landis and Representatives Thomas L. Owens (R., Ill.), O. C. Fisher (D., Tex.) and John S. Wood (D., Ga.).

The expanded rommittee then overruled Kearns and proceeded to hear Levy's charges.

The IATSE spokesman said "two separate and distinct forces" are involved in the marathon movie strike.

"Marriage of Convenience"

He said the AFL Carpenters Union, headed by William L. Hutcheson, was "joined in a marriage of convenience" with the alleged Communist elements in a common effort to destroy the "dominant position" of the IATSE.

Levy emphasized that he was not accusing Hutcheson of being a Communist.

He said "the subversive drive to bring all Hollywood labor under the influence of the Communist Party centers around the conference of studio unions and Herbert K. Sorrell." Sorrell heads the conference, which is an alliance of some 40 AFL craft unions fighting the IATSE for the right to perform certain movie jobs.

Landis said the subcommittee would go further into this aspect of the strike and "open up the Communist angle and see that it is fully discussed on each side."

Kearns explained that he had "purposely kept the Communist angle out because I felt I wasn't charged with entering into it."

Senate Probers Get $125,000 To Check on Administration

By the United Press

The Senate, in an atmosphere charged woith election-year political feeling, yesterday voted $125,000 in expense money for a new catch-all investigating committee to keep tabs on the Administration.

The fund was approved over the angry protests of Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, who accused the Republicans of wasting the taxpayers' money on a "fishing expedition."

Taunting Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), about the "regrettable" Howard Hughes investigation, Lucas introduced a bill to "reform" congressional investigation procedure.

Brewster Defends Record

Brewster defended the record of his War Investigating Committee, whose functions will be taken over by the new group, and he commented acidly that Lucas had always been "somewhat allergic" to investigations.

The money will be sent by a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) is expected to head the subcommittee, which will continue the grain speculation inquiry as well as the war contract investigations of the defunct Brewster Committee.

Chairman George D. Aiken (R., V. of the full Executive Expenditures Committee, said it was not yet known exactly what the investigators would take up.

"We have more than 100 complaints at this time," he added.

Lucas broke in to say:

"See, he's going out fishing to see if he can find anything."

Aiken denied that the subcommittee would engage in any "witch-hunting" and added that his committee had never taken a "partisan" vote on any of its actions.

Lucas then complained that the Republican-controlled Congress, while loudly talking economy, had spent so much money on investigations and otherwise that it was "the most expensive legislative body in history." He said Senate expenses alone rose $1,500,000 this year.

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), replied that Congress cannot do its duty unless it has "adequate funds to get the facts." He said he had been "shocked as I was never shocked before" during the Appropriations Committee's recent inquiry into the Reclamation Bureau of the Interior Department. He charged that the Interior Department deliberately "trifled with Congress in giving misinformation and misrepresentation."

Downey Denounces

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.), joined his GOP colleague in denouncing the Reclamation Bureau and Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug. He asserted they had entered into a "horrible and despicable conspiracy to close down reclamation projects in California."

The "reform" resolution introduced by Lucas would guarantee all persons the right to file sworn statements "refuting any damage done their reputations" by Congressional hearings. It also would give witnesses before committees the right to cross-examine "hostile" witnesses, and the right to be advised by counsel.

Fog Curtain Over Palestine

Carl Sandburg.

THAT WAS the poet's description of a foggy night in his native Chicago. But it also seems to me to describe the way in which the United States policy on Palestine is being laid down before the United Nations.

Childs

In all the cautious words uttered by Delegate Warren R. Austin before the Security Council at Lake Success it is difficult to find the shape of anything positive. The fog of procedure, of rules and regulations settles down. The mist of words is like a curtain between the terrible reality of Palestine and the United Nations.

It is not surprising that in this fog deep suspicions should persist. The fear is that the stage has been set for repudiation, either by the Security Council or by the General Assembly, of the Palestine partition plan. That could be done, lawfully and correctly, by majority vote with the United States uttering a formal protest. This would be the kind of formula so welcome to United States military and State Department experts, who have been looking for a way out of partition.

TRUE, AS Delegate Austin said the United States cannot act unilaterally. "If the Security Council should decide that it is necessary to use armed force to maintain international peace in connection with Palestine," he said, "the United States would be ready to consult under the Charter with a view to such action as may be necessary to maintain international peace. Such consultation would be required in view of the fact that agreement has not yet been reached making armed forces available to the Security Council under the terms of Article 43 of the Charter."

In that last the other—the Russian—horn of the dilemma is held up to view. Because of the persistent obstructionism of the Soviet Union through months and months of delay it has been impossible to agree on a United Nations force.

So after these lengthy "consultations" the Security Council might find that no force existed to enforce peace in Palestine and that therefore partition was impossible. At least part of the blame could be put onto Russia.

But since the integrity of the U. N. would be all but destroyed by this legalized retreat before the defiant Arabs, there would be more than enough blame to go around. Whether the U. N. could survive at all would be the question.

PERHAPS these suspicions do an injustice to Delegate Austin's necessarily formal, procedural language. Yet behind that formal language one can hear echoes of the arguments of those who say that the dictates of realpolitik make it impossible for the United States to go through with partition.

They argue that the oil of the Middle East is essential to the needs of western Europe moving toward revival under the Marshall Plan. Far more important, they say it is vital to keep a strategic foothold in that part of the world.

But even in the harsh light of realpolitik, this view seems to have serious flaws. Once the decision was made for partition, it is hard to believe the favor of the Arabs could be won by retreat from that position. They have their own realism and they would take this as a sign of weakness rather than strength.

If the main object is to keep the Russians out of Palestine, then retreat from partition and abandonment of the Jewish state would seem to be the surest way to bring them in. With fine moral indignation the Soviets could say that they were going to the aid of a defenseless people.

At the same time Russia's own predominantly Moslem republics could make the kind of overtures to the Arabs that have recently been reported. That is realpolitik indeed and we should have learned that we could not beat a dictatorship at that game.

What may be hoped for from Delegate Austin's statement of American policy is quick action. The most damaging thing of all is the disastrous drift of recent weeks.

If partition is to be repudiated, then let the machinery be quickly set in motion. Like any piece of brutal surgery—in this instance a surgery of the conscience—it had better be done quickly and with as few formal flourishes as possible. If partition is to stand, then it must be implemented with United States aid and that, too, should be done quickly. Each day that goes by makes the hope of success that much more remote.

Judge Refuses to Free Lifer To Allow Hearing on Facts

An Illinois judge told the Supreme Court yesterday why he turned down a request by the State that he free a life-term prisoner.

Judge William R. Duscher of the circuit court of Winnebago county, filed a statement in response to a demand by Attorney General George F. Barrett of Illinois that the Supreme Court order Duscher to free the prisoner.

The Supreme Court ruled last December that Tony Marino was denied due process of law at his trial 23 years ago. Marino, then 18 and an Italian immigrant who could not speak English, was accused of killing an aged janitor. The Supreme Court sent the case back to Winnebago county with instructions to "take proceedings" in line with its decision.

Barrett interpreted this as meaning Marino should be freed. He said it appeared that Marino pleaded guilty without having an attorney to defend him or being told of his right to counsel.

Dusher said he interpreted the court's instructions to mean he should hold a full hearing on "all the facts" concerning Marino's 1925 sentence.

CTC Will Ask, New Fare Hike, Merrill Says

By S. Oliver Goodman

Capital Transit Co. will apply to the Public Utilities Commission for a further increase in fares, President E. D. Merrill said yesterday in the annual report to stockholders.

Merrill

Economies effected in operations have not been sufficient to offset sharply higher expenses, he added. Merrill did not state when the company would file its fare plea.

Reviewing the year's operations, he said total streetcar and bus miles were 48,383,898 in 1947, a slight gain over the previous year. Miles operated in January this year, however, were 10 per cent less than in Jaunary, 1947.

"Revenue passengers in 1947 totaled 380,711,307, a reduction of 7.17 per cent since 1946," Merrill stated. This was due to a reduction of 11 per cent in Government employes and an increase of 25 per cent in the number of automobiles registered in the District of Columbia since 1948."

Despite the wage increase during the year, the company ended 1947 with a net loss of 51 car and bus operators. The payroll showed 4674 employes who received $16,032,000 in wages and salaries.

As previously reported, Capital Transit showed a net loss of $90,361 last year as compared with a net income of $914,528 in 1946.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Raymond H. Weins, controller of Equitable Life Assurance Society, has been appointed vice president. At one time Weins was associated with the Export-Import Bank of Washington. C. Clinton James, R. W. Santelmann and Robert E. Buckley will head the guests committee for the annual District Building and Loan League dinner at the Mayflower on March 27. More than 700 are expected . . . Marshall E. Beaman and Robert S. Dunham have been named managers of Ford Motor Co.

INSURANCE: More than 500 insurance men are expected to attend the Joint Sales Congress today of the Washington-Baltimore Life Underwriters Associations at the Shoreham Hotel. Among those who will speak are: Dr. R. E. Heflebower of Brookings Institute; B. N. Woodson, executive vice president of Commonwealth Life; Isaac S. Kibrick, New York Life agency assistant; Carlton W. Cox, Metropolitan Life manager at Paterson, N. J.; David B. Fluegelman, Northwestern Mutal special agent in New York City, and M. M. Matson, Mutual Benefit business insurance expert at Cleveland. John D. Marsh is chairman of the Sales Congress committee.

STOKE SALES: In the fiscal year ended January 31, Washington department store sales showed a 4 per cent increase over the previous record 12 months. The figures, covering dollar volume of six leading local stores, are compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. In January, local sales advanced 6 per cent over the same 1947 month. Regionally, store sales increased 4 per cent for the fiscal year and 2 per cent for January.

ADVICE TO GIS: Carl H. Ellingson, president of First Federal Savings & Loan Association, advises war veterans to make advance or extra payments on their home loans. In an open letter he said in part: "It is the part of prudence for every borrower to strengthen the equity in his own home. Any advance payments . . . during the current trend of high wages will act as an insurance against unforeseen future difficulties."

LITTLE MAN: Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, which holds seats on 40 exchanges and has twice as many partners, said in its annual report that 41 per cent of its 150,000 customers have incomes under $5000 a year, and 30 per cent between $5000 and $10,000. Wage earners make up 19 per cent of its customers and business executives 18 per cent. A lot more Americans took to trading in securities last year. Customers in 1946 numbered 46,000, compared with the 150,000 on the books in 1947.

EARNINGS: The B. F. Goodrich Co. reported net income of $23,231,063 for 1947, equal to $16.18 a common share, compared with $25,207,871 or $17.69 for the previous year. Other income reports follow:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 25 (AP).—Corn paced an upturn in grains today. The yellow cereal ended on gains extending to more than 3 cents as persistent buying entered the pits from commission houses. Wheat obtained some support from cash houses and elevators.

Oats were not as strong as other cereals, both the September and December contracts ending with fractional losses. These deliveries never broke as sharply as other contracts in the drop starting on February 4. They were also the first contracts to show signs of recovering.

Wheat closed ¼-1¾ higher on the Board of Trade, May 2.33½@2.33¾; corn was ½-3½ higher, May 2.18¼@2.18; oats were ⅛ lower to 3½ higher, May 1.08⅜@1.08¼, and active soybean contracts were up 3 cents, the daily limit, March $3.42.

Despite moderate steadiness in recent sessions, grains have not recovered much of the ground lost starting February 4. The major recent feature has been the narrowing of the spread between May wheat and May corn. On February 14 this spread amounted to 38 cents. Today it is only 19¾ cents.

Montgomery County P-TA Council Recommends Elected School Board

An elected instead of an appointed school board in Montgomery County was called for yesterday by the executive committee of the Montgomery County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

Completing several months' study of the subject, the council hit at "a lack of responsiveness on the part of the school board to the needs and the desires of the community."

In a report called for by a general meeting of the County Council last fall, the executive committee declared:

1. School board members should be elected on a nonpartisan basis instead of being appointed by the Governor.

2. Members should serve without compensation and the board should consist of seven members instead of six as at present.

3. Present members should complete their terms of office and be eligible for further service.

4. Legislation should be sought to permit citizens to vote on these proposed changes.

Spokesmen for the group said efforts would be made to enlist county-wide backing in advance of the 1949 session of the Maryland legislature when a referendum on the issue could be authorized.

The report is being sent to 34 constituent local PTAs for ratification.

Emphasizing that "the present school board is not under attack," the committee's report added that "some members of the school board are able and conscientious . . . and could serve effectively . . . under another system of selection."

The report surveyed board functions, membership qualifications and history of the county school board as well as methods of selecting school board members in other areas.

Gubernatorial appointment of members, the report found, "introduces partisan politics into the educational system and the partisan nature of the board makes it difficult to obtain community support.

Mrs. Curtis Walker, school board president, commented: "The board is making every effort to do a good job."

The survey committee consisted of Mrs. D. H. Stowe, chairman; Nathan R. Gilbert, county council president; Halan Hadley, H. J. Koukal and Mrs. A. K. Romoser.

Clarinetist Calls Out Paris Firemen

Paris, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Firefighters at the Chateau d'Eau station dutifully rolled out at 4 a. m. today and went clanging after a fire despite the strange way the alarm came in over the loudspeaker.

This city's fire department uses a speaker system from its alarm boxes to the nearest fire station.

At the box, they found clarinetist Jules Garnier earnestly playing "William Tell" into the "microphone."

Una Discloses A Scar of War

By Richard L. Coe

A LADY AND AN ALL-STAR LUNCHEON: Una O'Connor, whose face you recall from at least 50 movies, tells of meeting one of her bosses while sewing pajamas during the war for Navy relief.

"I went to her office," smiles Una, "and she gave that look people do when they're not quite sure where they've seen me. All during our talks she kept peering at me, evidently trying to make up her mind where we'd met. I could see she was going to say something and I was all primed for those always welcome words: 'I've seen you on the screen.'

"But what she said was something else again. As I got up to go, she looked right at me and smiled: 'Of course it's no compliment, but you have the look of Una O'Connor.'"

The delightful Una told us this after we'd remarked we weren't certain what she'd look like away from the frowzy habiliments she uses in "The Linden Tree," or, for that matter, her garb for "Ivy" and "Cluny Brown," the most recent O'Connor films.

"Yes, I've always loved make-believe, ever since I was a girl in Belfast. My parents died young and I was brought up by a wonderful aunt. I took the pledge when I was confirmed and, would you believe it, I've never had a drink—except, of course, if you want to count those delicious candies I used to buy in Dublin till I found their wonderful taste came from rum.

"My aunt approved my stage career, though, because it was the Abbey I joined first. All Ireland respects the Abbey. It was with the Abbey I played my first part in America and, believe it or not, it was the role of an American cowgirl in Shaw's 'The Shewing Up of Blanco Posnet.' I can't imagine what the critics thought I thought I was doing.

"In those days I didn't know the difference between straight parts and character parts. I thought all parts were character parts, and when I was told I was an ingenue I didn't know what it meant. I always wanted to become the characters I was playing, whether young or old, in comedy or tragedy. That was part of the wonderful make-believe and I guess that's what I've always tried to do.

"The difficulty with breaking into Hollywood," Miss O'Connor later told students of Catholic University's speech and drama department, "is that it just can't be done. Sure, it happens just often enough to make young folks think it possible—like finding money in the street. But out there you have to be approached. You don't look for acting jobs. The jobs look for you.

"The best way to get in seems to be from New York. There are talent scouts all over the place and if you have something, with luck they'll find you.

"Long runs? They're shattering. I've done several parts two years on end and I used to make myself late in getting to the theater just to generate excitement. 'Cluny Brown?' Yes, the old lady with the cough was great fun, and how we do miss Lubitsch."

Talking theater with Una O'Connor, as you can see, is a treat. The lady's smaller than she looks on stage, dresses with quiet elegance and is as chipper a visitor as our town has had in weeks.

THE VARIETY CLUB'S Brotherhood Week luncheon yesterday drew an all-star head table—Drew Pearson, Eric Johnston, Watson Miller and Street Singer Arthur Tracy, among others.

The inexhaustible Pearson spoke movingly of the Friendship Train's adventures on both sides of the Atlantic, and one couldn't help thinking, as he spoke of his brotherhood aims, that here was the result of fine upbringing in his Quaker youth, a feeling for human decency that was instilled early by modest, moving faith.

Local showmen learned two things from Pearson: 1. That an Italian-made film, "Thanks America," is ready for distribution (and we trust that you'll soon be seeing it in your local theater). 2. That in his early days (one can hardly say "more active") Pearson was parade arranger for a circus. Barker Carter Barron forthwith nominated a new Tent 11 job for him.

MPA Chief Eric Johnston's talk was so effectively delivered in rousing style and slick diction that the local Loew chief asked him, "Got any open weeks?"

Climax of the Statler luncheon was the presentation by Frank Kogod to Alfred McGarraghy, representing the National Conference of Christians and Jews, of a $250 check from the club to help make the week's theme a year-round reality. When it comes to generosity with time, money and patience, there's no business like show business.

PETE'S TRUMP: Tex Beneke leading Glenn Miller's band, with Pete Candoli, above, tooting his trumpet, is the sign for the Capitol today to break into five stage shows instead of its usual four. On the screen Joe E. Brown stars in "The Tender Years"

Show Time

Sodium Flouride Urged for Tooth Decay Prevention

Warrenton, Va., Feb. 25.—Dentists of Fauquier and Prince William Counties urged those counties last night to adopt use of sodium flouride to prevent tooth decay among school children.

Meeting here with State and local health officials, the group outlined a $16,000 program toward which Fauquier would contribute $3600 a year, Prince William $2400, and the State Health Department $10,000.

County health representatives expressed confidence the county boards of supervisors would approve the program at their next meetings and that the program could be begun next school year.

Sodium flouride solution, in common use thruoghout the country, has never been applied to teeth of children on a county-wide basis in Virginia, the dentists said.

2 Hospitalized By Home Blast

A coal range that exploded yesterday afternoon sent Mrs. Lillian Sims and her stepfather, William Stone, of RFD No. 2, Mount Pleasant, Md., to Frederick Memorial Hospital, Frederick, Md., with second-degree burns to the hands, arms, legs and face.

According to Maryland State Trooper Melvin A. Snyder, the explosion occurred at 3:25 p .m. in the kitchen of William C. Sims' farmhouse at the Mount Pleasant address. Snyder said windows were knocked out and paint scorched on kitchen furniture.

The fire was put out by Sims and Mrs. Stone. Mrs. Sims and her stepfather were reported in good condition last night at the hospital.

He Was Photogenic, Negatively Speaking

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

AS A READER, I'm allergic to stories starting on an anonymous downbeat—the kind that begin by stamping the main character with an alias, like "We shall call him Dick," or "Let us refer to her as Mary."

Haight

However, I'm going to be chased, or shall we say rolled, right out of town if I use the right name in this piece. Perhaps he wouldn't settle for a dinner invitation, like libelled relatives.

I don't know whether his mother was frightened by a camera, but he has had a distinct aversion to photography all his life.

He had his first experience with a photographer at the age of three. The result was a picture that showed him in a starched dress and shoulder-length curls, standing in front of a dummy fireplace.

It was so cute the family ordered dozens of reprints. Down through the years he has been sneaking them off mantles and tearing them out of photo albums.

When the popular kid pastime was matching for baseball players' pictures, he never won.

Nor did he have any luck when the picture of his grammar school graduating class was taken, although this was a case of default because he was home with a rag tied under his chin—the mumps.

He played on the high school football team. One autumn afternoon his team was leading by a touchdown with two minutes to go. An opposing ball carrier broke loose off tackle and there was only one player between him and the goal. Came a vigorous tackle and the game was saved!

When our hero opened the morning paper there was a big photo of the play—yes, no mistaking it! For once he was going to be happy about a picture!

Then came the letdown. It was his picture all right, but the caption gave the name of another player.

HE WAS ON HAND for the high school graduation picture even took a bath and shined his shoes. When the studio sent around the photograph his face was behind a rotund girl and only his left ear showed—and that stuck out.

His first marriage didn't turn out very well and he always blamed it on the fact that he met his spouse in a moving picture theatre.

He took another bride and they were getting along O.K. until he went to a convention at Atlantic City. He was in a night spot with the boys and saw an old friend at the next table. He went over to greet him. There was a bright flash—the camera girl had taken a picture.

Several weeks later his friend sent him a copy. Wifey was there when the postman arrived. The picture showed him with his arm around a blonde and he couldn't convince the Battle Ax that he was giving the fellow on her left a night.

He had winning afternoons at the race track in the old days, but when the photo-finish camera came in, his luck went out. If his horse and another went into the wire together and the "Photo" was lighted, he tore up his tickets.

Once, in a weak moment, he thought he knew the winner and while waiting for the negative to be developed a friend said, "I like the inside horse." It was put up or shut up. He put up—with the usual result.

Last week he developed a stomach pain. Friends rushed him to the hospital. An X-ray was ordered. No wonder he said to himself, "This is the end."

The next day, the doctor came in and said, "There's nothing wrong with you. The negative was clear as a bell. Just remember the next time to chew your food properly."

He finally won a picture!

Editor's Note—Haight phoned just before we went to press and said "Change the ending of my story. They're going to operate on the poor guy tomorrow."

Hoyas Rout Villanova By 64 to 46

By Frank Wagner
Post Reporter

Georgetown University closed its home season last night with an amazing 64-46 upset of the Villanova Wildcats before a near-empty house at the National Guard Armory.

Villanova brought to town a rating as the tenth highest scoring team in the Nation with a 65-points-a-game average. Last night they were lucky to score 14 points in the first half.

For the Hoyas, it was Ray Corley who led the scoring parade with an 18-point performance against a team which showed but little spirit at any time.

The Hoyas brought their record to 11 won and 14 lost while handing the Wildcats their ninth loss in 22 games.

Paul Arizen gave the losers their only sustained scoring drive when his side court set shots brought Villanova to within 10 points of the Hoyas late in the final period. He totaled 15.

Lions Beat Rockets, 7-4

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—The Washington Lions defeated the Philadelphia Rockets here tonight, 7-4, for their first American Hockey League victory on the Rockets' rink this season.

John Carr-Harris and Dan Porteous each scored two goals for the victors while Phil Hergesheimer and George de Felice, with two apiece, did all the goal-making for the Rockets.

Lions' Goalie Gordon Bell received an assist on Poretous' tally in the final period. He knocked the puck out to Porteous who skated down the ice and pushed it past Rockets' Goalie Maurice Courteau who was way out of position.

Leo and Laraine Begin Adoption Of Foster Child

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Leo (Lippy) Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and his actress wife, Laraine Day, started legal action here today to adopt one of Miss Day's three foster children.

Petition was filed for adoption of a 4-year-old girl, Medlinda Michele, who was placed with Miss Day two years ago by the Texas Children's Home and Aid Society of Fort Worth.

An official at the children's home here said the child was sent to Miss Day two years ago. At that time, the official said, the actress said she became interested in the Fort Worth home after seeing the moving picture, "Blossoms In the Dust," which told the history of the institution.

Gov. Asked To Aid Probe In Hockey

Detroit, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League tonight enlisted the help of Michigan's Governor Kim Sigler in his searching personal investigation to determine whether players on two clubs were involved in a gambling deal with a parole-violating racketeer.

Campbell told Sigler he was hampered because he did not have the names of players alleged to have been involved. He said he wanted the Governor to give him permission to talk to the racketeer, 36-year-old James Tamer.

Tamer's activities were cut short last Friday when he was arrested as a parole violatof and returned to the State penitentiary in Jackson.

Campbell, who rushed here from his headquarters in Montreal after revelation of the alleged gambling by players on the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, said that Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy did not have the names of the two or three men said to have been involved.

Players Would Be Banned

Campbell, admittedly dependent upon the racketeer for his information, said he believed Tamer could tell the "whole story."

He added that he was not interested in evidence that would stand up in court but that he wanted only enough to determine whether hockey rules were violated.

He emphasized that as far as he was concerned there was no suggestion of a "fix" and that if there was any gambling it was "purely an individual act in which a hockey player, or two, wagered on a game."

"But if I am satisfied that players did this betting their careers are out—they're ended," he said.

"Even association with gamblers by players is enough to warrant a ban from hockey."

Tamer, queried in connection with other rackets, mentioned a gambling deal whereby players for the Boston Bruins were supposed to lay down in a game at Chicago and at least one player on the New York Rangers was approached regarding a bet on the basis of that information.

Strong Circumstantial Evidence

Apparently, however, he did not identify the players, leaving Campbell with the task of determining who, if anybody, was involved.

"There is strong circumstantial evidence here which shows the need of a big field for investigation," Campbell said after a closed door conference with Toy and other police officials.

Tamers' return to prison was for his general activities as a gambler and his airing of the alleged attempt to "fix" a hockey game between the Boston Bruins and Chicago Blackhawks had nothing to do with it.

But he told Toy and other police officials enough to alert Campbell and other big league hockey officials into immediate action.

Probe Will Be Secret

"My investigation will be a secret one from now on because I don't want to tip my hand," Campbell said.

While Campbell was making his personal inquiry in Detroit, officials of both the Rangers and the Bruins conducted a "roll call" investigation of their players and announced that all of them had denied even knowledge of any gambling.

Toy again denied that he had obtained his evidence from wire-tapping, but other sources insisted that Tamer telephone had been cut in on and that recordings revealed the alleged gambling tie-up.

Whom Will Pitt Fire—Coach Or His Boss?

Pittsburgh, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—Pitt's athletic difficulties today resolved into a "family squabble" over whether the football coach or the athletic director should be removed.

The faculty committee on athletics recommended that Coach Walter S. (Mike) Milligan resign. It said it concurred in a recommendation made by Athletic Director James (Whitey) Hagan. Milligan has two years remaining in a three-year contract.

The faculty committee's report to Chancellor Rufus H. Fitzgerald followed by 24 hours another report submitted to him by a student alumni committee. This committee, which has been probing Pitt athletics, particularly football, the past six months recommended:

1. That Hagan be fired.
2. That Milligan "be given another chance."
3. That the faculty committee be abolished.

The faculty report—citing the "tough" schedule in which Pitt won only one of nine games last year—paid tribute to Milligan as "sincere, loyal and cooperative."

But the report added:

"Mr. Milligan's work as head coach has been below the standard that we are justified in expecting, even though this was his first year as head coach and the schedule was very difficult."

A trustee of the university plumped for Milligan. Said Dr. John D. McClelland, Allegheny County coroner:

"The faculty committee on athletics is stupid in my estimation if they have so recommended—and that comes from a trustee at the university.

"Under the circumstances, no coach in the country could have done any better than Milligan, considering his schedule and the material he had at hand. I was really surprised they (the football squad) showed up toward the end of the season."

New York, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—Welterweights Tommy Bell of Youngstown, Ohio, and Buster Tyler of Newark, N. J., have been signed for a ten-round boxing bout at the St. Nicholas Arena March 8, the 20th Century Sporting Club announced today.

Miller's 506 Handicap Score Sets Record in Post Bowling

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Jack Miller stole the show as The Washington bowling tournament for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club opened at 29 area bowling alleys.

Miller rolled a remarkable handicap score of 506, highest recorded in the two years of the tournament.

A member of the American Legion League which bowls at Chevy Chase Ice Palace, Miller rolled games of 147, 150 and 122 for a scratch score of 419.

In 64 league games this season his average was only 89, so he had a handicap of 87 pins. A large crowd saw him perform his outstanding bowling feat, which puts him far out in front in the men's division.

Miller's scratch set of 419 was the highest reported on the opening night. Right behind him in this department, however, was Paul Perkins, with a 418 set chalked up at King Pin.

Perkins also holds the high game lead with a 173 effort.

Second handicap score was achieved by Ralph Hutton, rolling in the Fort Davis Navy Yard League. Hutton had a fine 395-81-476 to trail only Miller for top men's honors.

At the head of the women's division are Pat Foote and Dorothy Austin, both of whom are teammates in the FBI League at Hi Skor. Each girl had 410 handicap scores. Highest women's scratch set was Evelyn Freeman's 358, scored in the Government Printing Office League. Her 152 was also the highest women's game reported.

More than 1700 bowlers took part in the opening night's competition. The tournament continues every night through Monday, March 1, at every area alley.

Wheelchair Game Ticket Sale at C.U.

Tickets will be sold only the night of the contest (Friday) at Catholic University for the "wheelchair" basketball game at the C. U. gym. The game pits a team of paraplegic veterans of Birmingham General Hospital in Van Nuys, Calif., against Jim McPadden's All-Stars at 8:30 o'clock.

Terps, Spiders Play Tonight

Flucie Stewart's surprising Maryland team, already assured of a Southern Conference tournament berth, is out to stretch its longest winning streak of the season tonight at the University of Richmond.

The string is a modest one of three, but the last two victories were all-important, enabling the Terrapins to clinch their playoff spot.

Those thrilling triumphs (54-53 over South Carolina and 63-61 over Clemson) were achieved away from home, so Maryland is optimistic about tonight's game against Richmond. The Spiders were beaten here, 60-53.

Tourney Heads Pick Field Sunday

Durham, N. C., Feb. 25 (A.P.).—The field for the Southern Conference basketball tournament will be selected and first round pairings will be drawn here Sunday morning at a meeting of the tournament committee.

The five-man group, headed by Duke Athletic Director Eddie Cameron, will choose the eight clubs, announce the seedings and draw up first round games.

Other members of the committee are Athletic Directors J. L. Von Glahn, N. C. State; Norman Shepard, Davidson; Rex Enright, South Carolina, and Monk Younger, Virginia Tech.

Colts Expect Sinkwich for Drills May 1

Baltimore, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Pro Football League happily announced today that Frankie Sinkwich is "definitely" on the mend after an operation on his troublesome knee.

The Colts said Dr. Joseph Boland had successfully removed a piece of lateral cartilege from the fullback's knee at Atlanta. The former Georgia star will have the cast removed in a couple of weeks and be ready for strenuous workouts May 1.

Coach Cecil Isbell returned from last week's conference meeting and reported the New York Yankees still owe the Colts a center in the conference-sponsored shakeup designed to make new talent available to the weaker teams.

San Francisco has offered Jack Baldwin, 6-foot 4-inch guard who played with Centenary College in Texas.

Big Offer for Evans

Kansas City, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—The Star will say tomorrow it has been reliably informed the Pittsburgh Steelers have offered Ray Evans, University of Kansas All-America halfback, $21,000 for a one-year playing contract.

Baroudi Probe Opens

Chicago, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—The State's attorney's office today began an investigation of the boxing match Friday that resulted in the death of Sam Baroudi after a knockout by Ezzard Charles.

Gen. Roy D. Keehn, acting chairman of the Illinois Boxing Commission, suggested an inquiry to determine whether or not Mike Spinelli of New York, Baroudi's manager, could be charged with perjury or with obtaining money under false pretenses.

The general said Spinelli had certified in his application for a manager's license in Illinois that Baroudi was 21 years old. Keehn reported that Baroudi's relatives in Akron, Ohio, said he was only 20. Illinois boxing regulations prohibit fighters younger than 21 from participating in bouts of 10 rounds.

Grimes Yankee Coach

New York, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes, who has served as a scout for the New York Yankees for the past several seasons, has been added to the team's coaching staff for the spring training period.

The Yankees also announced that Pitcher Ed Lopat, obtained yesterday from the Chicago White Sox in exchange for three players, would confer with General Manager George Weiss about his contract in St. Petersburg Sunday. Lopat will be the only member of the squad permitted to report for spring training without having signed a contract.

Schoolboy Average 23

Arp, Tex., Feb. 25 (A.P.).—Bunkey Bradford, who may be the Nation's basketball scoring leader, needs a secretary if his fan mail continues to increase.

It might have to be a cheap secretary, however, since Bunkey is a high school boy.

Bunkey has dunked in 854 points in 36 games this season—an average of better than 23.

Federal Golf Group Holds Election Tonight

The Federal Golf Association holds its annual membership and election meeting at 8 tonight at 1800 Pennsylvania ave., nw.

After presentation of the board of directors report and financial statement, the 1948 tournament schedule and regulations will be discussed.

Washington Drops Into Third Place

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The Caps tumbled all the way to third place in the Western Division of the Basketball Association of America, bowing to the Chicago Stags, 73-66, last night at Uline Arena before 3120.

Victory for the Stags put them into a first place tie with idle St. Louis and Washington now is a half game behind both.

Caps' Shots Go Wild

The Caps, off in shooting and having too many passes intercepted by the tall visitors, rallied to trail at half time by only 38-32.

Big Stan Miasek was pacing the Stag attack for the first 24 minutes with 14 points. Andy Phillip, former Illinois whiz kid, was close behind with 10.

With Bones McKinney still sidelined, Bob Feerick and Johnny Norlander carried most of the early scoring burden. Feerick dumped four baskets and three fouls and Norlander dropped the same number of field goals.

The teams matched points until the Stags cut loose with the score 17-15. Miasek and Phillip made five straight points to give them their first bulge.

O'Keefe to the Rescue

Then, when Miasek started the second period with three field goals and Phillip notched a two-pointer, the Stags widened their lead to 30-18.

At this point, Dick O'Keefe came in for the Caps, and although he didn't score, he performed some valuable service retrieving the ball. It helped the Caps gradually cut Chicago's lead.

The Caps came out fighting after intermission and when Sonny Hertzberg scored on a long one, tied the game at 42. But, after Miasek and Scolari swapped fouls the Stags went ahead on consecutive field goals by Rottner, Vance and Zaslofsky.

Going into the final period, the Stags held a 51-44 lead.

Driskill Talks Over Okla. Job

Walter Driskill, Maryland's travelling line coach, yesterday was in Norman, Okla., conferring with Bud Wilkinson about a similar job at the University of Oklahoma.

After the conference, Wilkinson said it will be "three or four" days before a decision on a new assistant is announced. Head Coach Wilkinson added that he wasn't planning any trip to New Haven to see Yale officials about their vacancy.

At College Park, Mrs. Driskill said that she hadn't heard from her husband but expected him back today. She said he was "considering" the Oklahoma job but that she was sure he hadn't accepted as was reported Tuesday from Norman.

Driskill served as line coach for the Sooners under Jim Tatum two seasons ago. Recently, he was invited to the University of Colorado when it was interviewing applicants for the head coaching post. However, Dallas Ward, former backfield coach at Minnesota, was appointed.

Jim Hegan Agrees To Tribe's Terms

Cleveland, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians reported tonight that Catcher Jim Hegan, their most recalcitrant Redskin, had agreed to contract terms for 1948.

Hegan, who previously fired back four unsigned contracts to the wigwam, received an undisclosed salary boost, Tribe officials said. The receiver's new pay scale was unofficially estimated at $12,500.

The vanguard of the Indians, including Hegan, will leave Cleveland Friday for the Tribe's Tucson, Ariz. training base.

Louis Makes London Debut at Tea Party

London, Feb. 25 (A.P.).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, plump but natty in a blue striped snuit, made a new hit today in London, where he already was popular for sharing the buzz bombs in khaki.

Louis arrived in chilly Waterloo Station by boat train from the Queen Mary and was swallowed up in a reception so enthusiastic the Evening Standard headlined "Joe Louis in Second Battle of Waterloo."

He struggled through the crowd to a limousine which whisked him to a "secret residence' 'on swanky Park lane. Several hours later he reappeared at a tea party for sports writers at Earl's Court Exhibition Hall.

Louis will appear there three times a day for the next month, sparring and looking generally like the heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

Most of the spectators at the exhibition—and there haven't been too many since it opened Monday—surged to the hall today to see the champion, who cut short his press conference to pose for pictures with London Promoter Jack Solomons.

The news conference opened with Louis inviting the reporters to join him in a cup of tea. He gulped one to prime the pump and then proceeded to answer questions in tones muffled by mouthfuls of English pastry and tea.

"I am very fond of your tea," he said. "I have read about the food shortage, so I don't think I will have much difficulty in keeping down my weight."

HAIL THE CHAMP—Joe Louis receives a thunderous ovation from British fans at Waterloo Station, London, and acknowledges it by doffing his hat. That's his pretty wife, Marva, with him. The heavyweight king will give training and sparring exhibitions at Earl's

When Louis, who arrived weighing 225 pounds, pointed out that his June fight—probably with Jersey Joe Walcott—would be his last, a reporter reminded him that he had "retired" once before.

"They say it's a woman's privilege to change her mind," Joe replied. "Well, a man ought to be able to change his once. I changed mine once about retiring but this time I mean it. Win, lose or draw, my next fight is my last."

By the end of the day, all the evening newspapers in London had included something about Louis and his wife in their gossip columns. Their pictures were on two front pages.

The Evening News reported that their apartment, rented from an owner in Bermuda, would cost 75 guineas ($360) a week. It has six bedrooms, heated only by coal fireplaces, and was too chilly for Joe, who is accustomed to central heating.

Asked how he liked the heat there, Louis said: "So far, I haven't seen any heat. But I expect to see the sun shine before we go home April 7."

Bug Juice Second in Beach 'Cap

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 25 (AP).—Stud Poker and Bug Juice, a pair that surprised by running second and third in Saturday's Widener, today finished first and second in the Miami Beach Handicap.

Stud Poker, leader in the Widener until headed at the wire by El Mono, again set most of the pace in the silks of Chicago's Ed Voynow and outlasted Bermill Farm's Bug Juice by a nose.

A length and a half behind came Miami-owned Frere Jacques, the former "Grass King" representing Jacob Sher, to take the show in the mile and a half turf special.

Stud Poker set a track record of 2:29 1/5. The old mark, held by Moon Maiden, was 2:33.

A banner throng of 18,007 saw Stud Poker earn a purse of $13,900.

The winner, a split choice with the faltering Sun Herod, paid $10.80 for two. Don MacAndrew was astride the 5-year-old gelded son of Bahram.

It was the second turf course mark set by Stud Poker here. Earlier in the meeting the veteran that likes grass almost as much as his oats hung up a new record for a mile and three-sixteenths.

Daniels Uninterested In Vacancy at Yale

Middletown, Conn., Feb. 25 (AP).—Norman J. Daniels, coach of Wesleyan University's undefeated football team, today removed himself from consideration for appointment to the coaching berth at Yale.

He did it with the seven-word statement: "I have decided to remain at Wesleyan," and refused to say anything further.

Sailors' 9th Win Paced By Barrow

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—Navy outlasted Virginia in a wild basketball game today and came up with its ninth win of the season, 48-41.

Navy's margin of victory came at the foul line where the Middies made 14 points to Virginia's 7. Each team scored 17 field goals.

Virginia jumped into a quick 10-4 lead but Navy evened the score, 10-all, midway in the first period. The lead see-sawed back and forth for the remainder of the half.

The Middies went into a 20-18 advantage just before the half ended an dstayed in front for the remainder of the raggedly-played game.

John Barrow, Navy guard, was high scorer with 13 points.

Walt Yoos, rangy Virginia center, was high for his team with 9 points, all but two of which were earned during the first six minutes of play.

The win brought Navy's record for the season to nine wins against six losses. Coach Gus Tebell's Virginians now have a 12 win and 8 loss record.

Ben Carnevale, Navy's coach, was away today to scout Army and Columbia in separate games in the New York area. Sitting on the bench in his place was Ensign Kenny Shugart, star of last year's Tar five.

The Navy Blebes won over the Virginia Jayvees, 71-38.

IT AIN'T A MINNOW—Fortunately, the Associated Press identified the above monster as a 75-pound spoonbill catfish. It was landed yesterday at Louisville's Goose Creek, a short distance from the Ohio River. The teen-age captors, just about as big as the king-sized catfish, are Richard Karev, 14 (left), and Jackie Stewart, 15. They claimed they subdued their 5-foot-1 adversary after only a 10-minute struggle

St. John's Natators Win

St. John's swimming team captured the unofficial Washington high school swimming title when it defeated Central, 38½ to 20½, yesterday at the Central pool.

The Johnnies, undefeated against local competition, were led by Danny Callahan, who placed first in the 100-yard free-style event and anchored the 200-yard free-style relay squad to victory.

It was the eighth victory in 12 dual meets for the St. John swimmers, who will compete in the national Catholic interscholastic swimming tourney on March 6 at LaSalle College in Philadelphia.

Kansas State Names Crowley Line Coach

Manhattan, Kans., Feb. 25 (AP).—Kansas State College's new football coaching staff was completed today with appointment of John (Biff) Crawley as line coach.

Crawley, star guard and tackle on the 1936 and 1937 Kansas State football teams, has been grid coach at the El Dorado (Kans.), High School the last two years.

GW Baseball Drills Begin

Twenty-two batterymen were among 60 candidates who reported yesterday for George Washington University's first baseball practice at the National Guard Armory.

Among the veteran pitchers who reported were Pete King and Curly Kuldell. An outstanding newcomer is Gene (Dewdrop) Gould, who starred at Western High School before the war. Others are Pete Cordelli, quarterback on the football team, and Nick Pasco, a high school star from Boston.

Three first line catchers from last year's club also reported. They are Don Druckenmiller, Joe Wapinsky and Garo Krikorian. The Colonials open their season March 31 against Harvard on the Ellipse.

The G. W. schedule:

March 31, Harvard, home.
April 2, Fort Belvoir, home; 6, Michigan, home; 8, Amherst, home; 10, Richmond, there; 13, Maryland, there; 14, Quantico, there; 17, Virginia, home; 19, Washington & Lee, there; 20, V. M. I., there; 23, Maryland, home; 26, V. P. I., home; 27, Georgetown, home; 29, Washington and Lee, home.

Indiana Recalls Bo's Predecessor

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 25 (AP).—Indiana University's former athletic director, Zora G. Clevenger, was called from retirement today to fill the position again temporarily.

John S. Hastings, chairman of the university's administrative committee, said Clevenger would serve on a temporary basis pending final selection of a new director to succeed Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin, who resigned last week to become general manager and head coach of the Detroit Lions in the National Football League.

Territorial Rules Cited To Negro Loops

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 25 (AP).—Territorial rights today were termed the big obstacle to admitting Negro leagues to organized baseball.

President George M. Trautman of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues said most of the Negro clubs play in major and minor league parks in territory controlled by these clubs.

His statement replied to one recently by the Rev. John H. Johnson, president of the Negro National League, alleging the association had refused to admit the Negro leagues.

Trautman made public a letter written the Rev. Johnson and J. B. Martin of the Negro American League last December 17.

The letter said, in part:

"The application of the Negro leagues seeking affiliation with the National Association were given consideration by the executive committee during the period of our convention in Miami recently.

"The committee was of the opinion that it would be impossible to do anything with these applications at this time, other than to express a sympathy for your problems and to offer our aid in helping you set up an organization that would meet your needs.

"The big obstacle, as you might well recognize, is territorial rights—your clubs for the most part playing in major league and minor league parks, in territory controlled by these clubs. Just what could be done eventually about this situation I am not now prepared to say.

"I would be delighted to discuss this matter with you gentlemen personally at your convenience, and I again offer the cooperation of this office to aid in any way that will be of benefit and also be in keeping with the rules and regulations of the National Association."

Central 'Sentimental' Choice In Playoffs Friday at Armory

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Coach Gabe Ferazzi and his Central High basketball team are "sentimental favorites" in the interhigh championship playoffs which begin Friday night at the National Guard Armory.

Only 27 years old, Ferazzi is the youngest coach in the public highs and has captured the fancy of most league followers with his hustling Vikings.

The pink-cheeked alumnus of San Diego State College and Boston University has come a long way since he took his first coaching job at Central last year and finished in sixth place.

And as a result, when the Vikings face Eastern in the first game of a playoff double-header at 8 o'clock they will find themselves in their best position to win the interhigh cage title since 1933.

In the second game of the twin bill, Roosevelt faces Woodrow Wilson. Friday night's winners will clash Saturday at 8 p. m. for the championship at the Armory.

Ferazzi has fired his boys into the favorites' spot in the title round. The Viking finished the regular interhigh season with a 6-1 record best in the league. Their only loss came in the opening game of the season, 30-28, to Wilson. In outside competition, Central won eight and lost two.

The Vikings have shown the best balanced attack in the league with Jimmy Pantos, Hal Sponsler and Bobby Johnson ranking among the top 10 scorers. When Central met Eastern earlier in the season, the Vikings coasted in, 49-28.

Eastern, which finished fourth during the season with 5-3, will bank on Johnny Brown to spark its attack and Spike Barouth, Jim Lamon and Sonny Wesley to stop the high scoring Central trio.

GW High Beats Monroe, 53 to 36

George Washington's Presidents of Alexandria scored their fifteenth win in 18 games last night as they defeated James Monroe of Fredericksburg, Va., 53-36, at GW High gym.

The Federal Diary

$480 of Rees Bill Seems Likely to Be Top Raise Approved

A hard-boiled but fair approach toward the 46 bills to raise Federal worker salaries was displayed yesterday by members of the House Civil Service Committee. Public hearings will be resumed tomorrow.

This much developed yesterday—that Federal workers and their spokesmen must perform a superb bit of salesmanship to convince the committee to report out a bill calling for an increase greater than the $480 annual bonus as proposed by Chairman Rees. There seems to be no committee sentiment whatever for the flat $1000 pay bill now awaiting action of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

However, there is talk among committee members of giving the 450,000 postal employes a larger pay raise than other Federal workers.

The $480 Rees bonus bill was indorsed half-heartedly by only one employe spokesman at yesterday's crowded public hearing. And it came from perhaps the hardest-pressed group in Government. Thomas Maddock of the National Association of Federal Mechanics, urged an increase of at least $480 for all Federal employes.

Maddock represents skilled mechanics whose salaries are fixed by the outmoded Classification Act. The mechinics are paid $2469 to start. But employes doing identical work at the Government Printing Office are paid $3640. Maddock urged the creation of a mechanical service in Government that would guarantee equal pay for equal work.

All the other witnesses yesterday urged the committee to report out a bill providing an increase of at least $800 per employe. A score of House members appeared to indorse higher Federal salaries. So many wanted to testify that a "day" has been set aside for them next week.

The plight of the Federal wife was described to the committee by Mrs. Herman Lowe, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks. She said the wife today must make her husband's check meet bare expenses. Mrs. Lowe said that in many Federal families the husband either had to take a side job or else the wife had to go to work.

E. C. Hallbeck of the same group, cited figures from 11 postal credit unions to show that the postal employe was steadily going into debt to meet living expenses. In these 11 employe banks, he said, the number of borrowers in two years had jumped from 7468 to 8735 and the amount of money on loan had leaped from $1,378,000 to $3,158,000.

William C. Armbrust, president, United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, based his argument for an $800 flat increase on the huge pay raises given other groups of workers. Since 1939, he said, postal salaries have gone up only 20 per cent, but in comparison they have gone up 175 per cent in coal mining, over 100 per cent in manufacturing, and 70 per cent in retail trade. He testified:

"Postal and all other Government workers are caught in an economic squeeze that will impovish them unless financial help is soon forthcoming."

Like the other witnesses, he spoke for a permanent increase in salaries. The Rees $480 bonus would end July 1, 1949, but it would be retroactive to January 1.

William C. Doherty of AFL's National Association of Letter Carriers brought out that the cost of living had jumped 68 points since 1939, and that the Federal worker dollar has shrunk to about 50 cents in that period. He said the recent break in commodity markets had had no effect on living costs.

Doherty was challenged by Representative Tom Murray (D., Tenn.) on pay raises given postal employes. A former postal employe himself, Murray brought out that a $1700 postal carrier in 1939 is now receiving $3100, an increase of nearly 80 per cent.

While insisting that all Federal employes be given pay raises, Doherty insisted that postal people be provided for in a separate bill. Chairman Rees challenged him on that point. He said that all Federal workers should be given similar treatment; that the cost of living had affected all of them.

Thomas Walters of AFL's Government Employe Council urged an increase of not less than $800 to offset the 40 per cent increase in the cost of living since 1946.

UP: Federal employment here is creeping back toward the 200,000 figure. In January, employment here increased about 2500, making the total 198,200 as of February 1. The Federal population here has been static for about six months.

Reporting the big increases here were Veterans, Securities and Exchange, Army, Navy and Justice. VA and SEC moved more than 1000 jobs back here during January.

RETIREMENT: Representative Love (R., W. Va.) and Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.), have teamed up on a bill to permit the 3100 Treasury agents to retire at 50 after 20 years of service . . .

MARITIME: Congress has given final approval to the bill to allow Maritime to operate and sell ships until March 1, 1949. And by the way, Burt Hunter is resigning as chief of ship sales to take a shipping job in South Africa . . .

JOBS: Several top-flight budget and fiscal people are needed by the Office of National Defense. Make application in Room 3-D-740 of the Pentagon. But don't apply unless you're good.

Justices Backed By Senate Group For Promotions

Stephens, Proctor Approved for U. S. Court of Appeals Posts in District

Justices Harold M. Stephens and James M. Proctor yesterday received approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee for new posts in the United States Court of Appeals for the District.

The committee in an executive meeting approved and sent to the Senate the nomination of Stephens to be chief justice, and of Proctor to be associate justice of the appellate court.

Stephens, now an associate justice of the Appeals Court, was nominated by President Truman to succeed Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner, who retired.

Proctor, now associate justice of District Court, was nominated by the President to succeed Stephens as associate justice of the Appeals Court.

Both men were given strong backing of the District and American Bar Associations in hearings before a Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.).

Judiciary Committee approval of the two men virtually assures their speedy confirmation by the Senate. No judiciary members objected to the nominations, committee aides said.

For Proctor's position, Edward A. Tamm, No. 3 G-Man, has been nominated. Hearings on his are to continue at 7 p. m. Tuesday.

Judge Raedy Assigned to Criminal Court

Judge Ellen K. Raedy will sit on the bench in the criminal division of Municipal Court on March 1 for the first time since the much-publicized hit-run accident in which her car figured six months ago.

The assignment is routine. The court's 10 judges are rotated monthly among the various branches.

Judge Raedy was originally scheduled to sit in the civil division but a recent move to cut the backlog of cases in Landlord and Tenant court, necessitated a revision of assignments.

The judge was married last December 23 to Johnston R. Zimmerman but retains her former name when on the bench.

Judge Frank H. Myers, who is to be sworn in next Tuesday as successor to the late Judge Nathan R. Margold, also is listed on the new assignments. Judge Myers will sit in the civil division.

The assignments posted for March 1 to April 3 are:

D. C. Branch, Judge Thomas D. Quinn; Traffic Branch, Judge George D. Neilson; Criminal Jury Branch, Judge John P. McMahon; Civil No. 1, Chief Judge George P. Barse and Judge Myers; Small Claims Court, Judge Nadine L. Gallagher; Landlord and Tenant Court, Judge Armond W. Scott; Special Jury Program, Chief Judge Barse and Judge Walter J. Casey; General Assignment, Judge Aubrey W. Fennell, and United States Branch, Judge Raedy.

Judge Postpones Decision on Girl's Alleged Gunplay

Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court yesterday took under advisement charge of assault against Jo Ann Rogers, 23, of Austin, Tex. The girl is alleged to have wounded a soldier February 3 while playing with a gun in a 9th st. shooting gallery.

Four soldiers told the court the pretty blue-eyed Texan whirled around, laughing, as they entered the gallery at 416 9th st. nw. and fired four shots in their direction. A fifth soldier, Pvt. John J. Melone, 17, stationed at Fort Myer, was wounded in the leg.

Thomas David, attorney for the defendant, contended the girl was drunk at the time, merely being "playful" and had no criminal intent. Miss Rogers testified she thought the weapon loaded "with blanks or corks."

Bird Identification Class Meets Tonight

The second bird field identification class of the Washington Audubon Society will be held tonight at 7:30 in the National Museum auditorium with Dr. Richard Tousey presiding.

Colored slides of birds will be shown, after which mounted birds from the museum collection will be studied.

Rape Trial Ends Today; Death Asked

A District Court jury of 8 women and 4 men today will be asked to judge the guilt or innocence of a 39-year-old soda fountain concessionaire accused of raping a 13-year-old schoolgirl.

The case against John B. Long, 1016 S. Carolina ave. se. (whose name was changed legally from Jesse B. James in 1931), will be placed in the hands of the jury following instructions from Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech this morning. Prosecutor Sylvan Schwartz has asked the jury to recommend the death penalty.

On the witness stand yesterday, the tall, lean, blond defendant strongly denied he had attacked the girl on two occasions as charged, once, the Government insisted, for 50 cents.

His story was given strength by testimony from three defense witnesses that to the best of their knowledge Long had not left the Northeast Washington drug store for as long as half an hour on last October 25 and November 3 when the assaults are alleged to have occurred.

Those who appeared in Long's behalf were his wife, Frances, an employe at the drug store; Dr. Frank A. Murphy, pharmacist at the store, and Howard Isler, proprietor.

According to the girl's story, she had been induced to have intercourse with Long in the cab of a store delivery truck, once parked in the rear of the store and the second time while parked in a wooded section near 3400 block Blaine st. ne.

Prosecutor Sylvan Schwartz, grilling Long, brought the admission that the defendant had a record of convictions for grand larceny, store breaking and transporting a stolen auto across State lines. Long is represented by Attorney Saul Lichtenberg.

Two Soldiers Charged With Holdup Here

Bolling Field Youths, 16 and 17, Held in Western Union Case

Two young soldiers—17 and 16—were arrested yesterday at Bolling Field and charged with the armed holdup of a Western Union office at 725 15th st. se.

Police had received information that the job had been pulled by two soldiers at Bolling Field and had arranged for a mass lineup of 400 men.

Detective Sergts. Edwin Crandell and Dan Kennedy said the 17-year-old soldier, formerly of Mississippi, heard about the planned lineup and confessed. Arrest of the other youth, who comes from Texas, followed.

The pair, detectives said, admitted entering the office Monday night and robbing Robert L. Berry, the manager, of $140 at gunpoint. They said they staged the hold-up because they were "broke." Police said neither boy has a record.

After the arrests, the pair turned over $96 of the loot. Police also recovered two weapons—an automatic of French make and a sawed-off rifle—cached by the two soldiers in a locker at the Greyhound Bus Terminal.

A platoon of smartly clad, quick-stepping Roosevelt High School students captured first place for the second year yesterday in the annual Girls Cadet Corps competition.

About 800 spectators, including students and parents, watched the 90-minute exhibition in the Roosevelt High School gymnasium. They cheered and screeched as the 85 girls selected to compete from the five contending high schools marched through 70 commands.

Second place went to Anacostia High School and third to Chamberlain Vocational High School. Other platoons represented McKinley and Central.

The girls were dressed in trim blue uniforms, with natty berets and smart white gloves. Their shoes, all brown, were polished to a shine.

First Lieut. Anita Chakeres, 17, of 5718 Colorado ave. nw., commander of the Roosevelt platoon, received a medal from Miss May Bradshaw, principal of Roosevelt and chairman of the board of high school principals. Maj. Barbara Beck, 16, of 5305 3d st. nw., Roosevelt platoon guide, was awarded ribbons to be distributed to the other members of the unit.

Lieut. Col. William Barkman, professor of military science and tactics for the local high schools, said "the girls did very well. I am quite proud of them."

Judges were Lieut. Col. George Allen Hawkins, military instructor at Western; Maj. Ralph W. Watt, military instructor at Eastern, and Capt. Paul S. Pitcher, military instructor at Wilson.

Senate Votes To Change D.C. Tax-Free Law

Bill Would Make Rented Property, Now Exempt, Subject to City Levies

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill to revise the District law on property tax exemptions.

The bill was approved by unanimous consent after Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) added to it an amendment first requested by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.)

Main purpose of the bill, which was requested by the District Commissioners, is to let the city tax the portions of an exempt property which are rented for commercial purposes.

The amendment makes clear that the tax would not be applied to property rented by one tax-exempt institution to another tax-emempt institution.

It also would keep the tax from being applied to property from which income or rent is derived by payments of indigent persons, patients, or students entitled to receive the services of an institution qualifying for tax exemption. Tax exemption would also apply to portions of property rented to employes of a tax—exempt institution when they are required to live on the premises.

Senate Action Due Today On D. C. Daylight Saving

Senate action is scheduled for today on the bill to let Washington have daylight saving time every summer.

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) told the Senate last night that the daylight saving bill was one of four to be called up for a vote today.

Inquest to Hear Man In Slaying of Another

Sylvester T. Green, 38, of 412 I st. nw., yesterday was arrested for the murder of Frank W. Howard, 55, who was found with his head crushed in his gas-filled apartment at 1435 9th st. nw. Tuesday night.

Howard was pronounced dead at the scene. Police said the murder weapon was a long iron crow bar. All seven gas jets on the stove were turned on when rescue squad No. 1 arrived. Green is to appear at a coroner's inquest at noon today.

Rankin Stand On Gallinger Hit by Keefe

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.) charged in the House yesterday that Repreesntative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) made inflammatory statements to stir up race prejudice when he protested plans to admit Negro doctors to practice at Gallinger Hospital.

Keefe's charge brought Rankin to his feet with a demand that the words be taken down—a preliminary to having them stricken from the record.

But House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) ruled out Rankin's demand with the assertion that Keefe, in expressing his opinion, had not used unparliamentary language.

Keefe told the House he could not let Rankin's statement of Monday on Gallinger Hospital go unchallenged.

Rankin had declared that the people of Washington "are today threatened with a situation out at Gallinger Hospital that is likely to bring race trouble."

Keefe said he would answer Rankin at length in a later speech. Then he added:

"May I say now that when the gentleman from Mississippi made the statement that the people at Gallinger Hospital are being threatened with an order which proposes to impose colored doctors upon white patients, he is discussing a program of which he is not advised.

"May I say to the members of Congress that as chairman of the subcommittee on Labor and Federal Security Appropriations, we have been trying for years to build up the medical school of Howard University.

"All that has even been suggested was that the colored segregated sections of Gallinger Hospital be open for clinical purposes to the students and doctors of Howard University in order that we might be able to build up that college and provide the clinical facilities that are required by the association of colleges.

"There has never ben the slightest suggestion at any time on anyone's part that there would be colored physicians put out at Gallinger to treat white patients.

"That statement of the gentleman from Mississippi is just as wrong as many of the other inflammatory statements which he makes on the floor of this House in an attempt to stir up race prejudice that ought to be subdued rather than stirred up."

Group Health Rate Rise Vote Due Tonight

A rate rise for members of Group Health Association, Inc., is expected to be voted at the annual organization meeting tonight, at Federal Security auditorium, 3d and Independence ave. sw.

Raises in membership dues to meet increased operating costs are tentatively set at 50 cents monthly for adults and 25 cents for children, to make the new rate $3.50 and $2.25 monthly, respectively.

Other proposed changes in the cooperative medical prepayment agency would increase the present member liability of $50 toward maternity care in the hospital to $100; end the five per cent discount on monthly dues now allowed to group memberships; discontinue the 2 per cent discout for dues paid six months in advance, and reduce to 2 per cent the present 5 per cent discout for dues prepaid for one year.

About 14,000 residents of Greater Washington are currently participating in GHA, Inc.

Lengthy explanation of the proposed rate rises were recently mailed to the membership by the association's board of trustees.

William E. Warne, association president, will conduct tonight's meeting, with Melvin L. Dollar, executive director, scheduled to report on operations of the program during the past year. Besides the rate rise, other matters set for discussion include plans to widen enrollment and a proposed dental program.

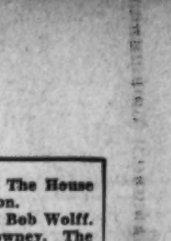
Grand Jury Due To Hear 9 Today; 2 St. Louis Dairies Indicted in 'Plot'

Investigation of milk costs in this area continued yesterday, while in St. Louis two of that city's largest dairies were indicted for conspiracy to fix milk prices.



Haddock

Both probes are part of a national pattern in which the Department of Justice is inquiring into high costs of living.

The indictment of the St. Louis dairies and certain of their officials was returned under the antitrust laws by a Federal grand jury there. Since early January a special grand jury has been investigating milk costs here.

Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday declared that the St. Louis action "is the first major indictment in the milk industry since the commencement of the program of the Anti-Trust Division to prosecute illegal conspiracies to fix the prices of food, clothing or housing."

Haddock in Charge

The local milk probe, the St. Louis action and a similar investigation of Chicago milk prices are all under supervision of George B. Haddock, in charge of the Food Section of the Antitrust Division.

Haddock is personally presenting local information to the grand jury, operating under John F. Baecher, first assistant in the Antitrust Division. In addition to Baecher and Haddock, five other attorneys of the division are participating in the case here.

For the second day, J. H. Remsberg, vice president of the Md.-Va. Milk Producers Association, appeared as a witness yesterday before the grand jury here. Only other witness yesterday was J. O. Holbrook, formerly associated with Holbrook Farms Dairy, which operates in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

9 Witnesses to Appear

Nine more witnesses are expected to go before the grand jury today. Two of them, said Haddock, are J. A. Wilson, of Comico Products Co. of Alexandria, a milk-processing firm, and John McGill, described as a former secretary of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

This area's milk price inquiry is described as being "far more complex" than the St. Louis case. While the indictment returned in St. Louis concerned 1946, 1947 and 1948 prices, an estimated 50,000 documents subpenaed here date back to 1941.

Indicted in St. Louis were the St. Louis Dairy Co. and its president and general manager, and the Pevely Dairy Co. and five of its officers.

The two dairies, said Clark, distribute about 63 per cent of the fluid milk consumed in the area.

D. C. Price at Peak

Current price of their home-delivered grade "A" milk is 21½ cents. The home-delivered price in the Washington area has been 21 cents since November 1, the highest price it has ever been here.

On January 27, milk prices in St. Louis were raised from 21½ cents to 22½ cents, but a three-day buyers' strike later forced the price down one cent.

Prior to November 1, local milk prices were 19½ cents.

Under the indictment returned in St. Louis, the antitrust laws provide fines up to $5000 and jail sentences of one year, or both.

John F. Sonnett, head of the antitrust division, said yesterday:

"Our investigation of selected food items which commenced last August indicates the need for intensive study of milk prices in other areas, in addition to St. Louis, and also the need for further antitrust scrutiny of the high prices of other essential foods."

Youth, 18, Gets Jail, Fine in Purse Grab

A youthful purse-snatcher, chased and run down by a taxi driver, was sentenced to 90 days and fined $200 yesterday despite his witness-stand denial of an earlier confession.

Clarence Quarles, 18, of 1543 9th st. nw., was twice identified in Municipal Court as the youth who struck Mrs. Anna M. Belton, of 33 K st. ne., on January 20, while an accomplice fled with her purse.

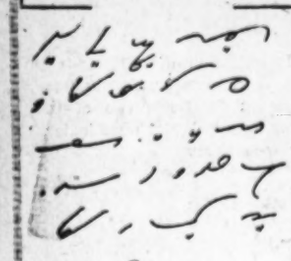
Quarles, charged with larceny and assault, was found guilty on both counts by Judge George D. Neilson. His accomplice, a juvenile, was arrested about 10 days ago.

The taxi driver, James L. Pumphrey, 39, of 508 71st st., Seat Pleasant, testified he saw the attack and identified Quarles as the men he pursued with his cab, ran down and held until Precinct Detective Patrick A. Deenihan arrived. Deenihan said the youth admitted the attack.

On the stand yesterday, Quarles said he fled the scene when he realized what his accomplice was about to do.

Called 'Dunce'

Shorthand Inventor's Burial Today



Dr. John Robert Gregg, whose speed-writing system gave millions of office workers a tool for their trade, will be buried at Wilton, Conn., this afternoon.

Once scorned as a dunce by his a system now used by an estimated own family, Dr. Gregg perfected 96 per cent of the schools. Millions have token his courses, which have been translated into 13 languages.

Irish-born, he began to lag at the foot of his school classes after an irate teacher knocked his head against the head of another pupil and burst his ear-drum. He took solace in the study of speed writing.

In his mid-twenties, Dr. Gregg composed an alphabet of his own and published 500 copies of a 28-page pamphlet. The copies subsequently became a collector's item —Dr. Gregg himself paying $100 for a copy a few years ago.

He came to the United States in 1893, lived in Boston and then Chicago before beginning widespread publication of his system. He still headed the Gregg Publishing Co. in New York and was chairman of the board of the London company bearing his name at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Wilton at 3 p. m. today.

He is survived by his widow, the former Janet Kinley, and two children, Katherine and John.

Many Entering Symphony Voice Contest

Entries in the "Voice of the Symphony" contest were "pouring" into P. O. Box 7617 at an "accelerated rate" yesterday, according to campaign officials.

The contest is part of the National Symphony Sustaining Fund drive for $165,000.

Col. Echols to Direct Army Relations in Tokyo

Col M. P. "Pat" Echols, of Charlottesville, Va., will succeed Frayne Baker, Allied headquarters public information officer, in Tokyo, the Associated Press reported last night.

Colonel Echols formerly served as public relations officer at West Point and later for the Army Ground Forces here.

Baker, recently involved in dispute with press correspondents, will be relieved of his command today, and will become special adviser to Maj. Gen. William F. Marquat, Headquarters chief of economic and scientific section, Tokyo. Tokyo correspondents had accused Baker of restricting their activities in gathering news.

Dogs Bark—Men Argue

Alleged dog barking at an Ashton, Md., kennel has produced—so far—80,000 words of court argument from approximately 40 witnesses.

The suit, in Montgomery County Circuit Court, was brought by Sam Rice, a former Washington outfielder. Rice claims howling of the dogs in the kennel adjacent to his home gives him no peace.

The kennel is owned by Claude P. Williams, who denies the dogs' barking causes any disturbance. Williams rested his case yesterday in pretrial hearings, but Rice's lawyer, Walter W. Dawson, said he had more witnesses for next week.

G-Girls Write Prize Song

Miss Ruth Wallace, employe of the Senate District Committee, and Miss Sue Thomas, employed in the office of Representative Daniel A. Reed (R., N. Y.), have won a prize for a song they wrote, called "Who's to Blame?"

Miss Wallace wrote the music and Miss Thomas wrote the words. They were notified the song had placed twenty-fourth in a contest sponsored by a California group. The prize is publication of the song and its presentation on the radio, Miss Wallace said.

Miss Wallace said it was one of 10 songs she had composed. Besides her job at the Capitol, Miss Wallace is a musician and bandleader and has played frequently for dances in Washington.

Intruders Trapped

At about 1:50 p. m. yesterday, Nickles walked past the club and pool hall at 1130-32 18th st. nw., and observed that the premises had been entered. Nickles went home, got a gun and returned.

Inside he surprised two men, he said, were working on a safe. Nickles held them until police arrived. One of the men, police said, is a former club employe.

110 Rent Boosts Urged

A monthly rent increase of 5.39 per cent was recommended yesterday by District Rent Control Examiner Denis K. Lane on 110 units in the Marquette Apartments, 2115 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The rent boost will raise rents ranging from $36.50 a month to new levels of $38.50 to $60.50. The added yield resulting from the increase is estimated at $3267, the Rent Control Administration said.

Examiner William H. Clarke held a hearing yesterday on a request for a rent increase on 53 apartment units at 1236 11th st. nw. Present rents there range from $35 to $65 and requested rents are between $40.25 and $72.

CIC Solves Mystery

District police shrugged wearily and called off the search for a "stolen" Army car yesterday when embarrassed Pentagon officials reported it had all been a mixup.

The car, which belongs to the Army Department's Counter Intelligence Corps, was reported missing Monday night. It turned up yesterday morning in the paint shop, all decked out in a new finish. Someone had forgotten to tell someone else it was being painted, officials said.

Student to Sing on Air

June Mower, 17-year-old Anacostia High School student, will sing with Tex Benecke's Band over Station WOL at 10:30 p. m. tomorrow from the stage of the Capitol Theater.

The young warbler, who lives at 1905 U pl. se., was chosen to sing on the coast-to-coast broadcast from a dozen competing teenagers in auditions yesterday.

Cab Misses Dog Pal

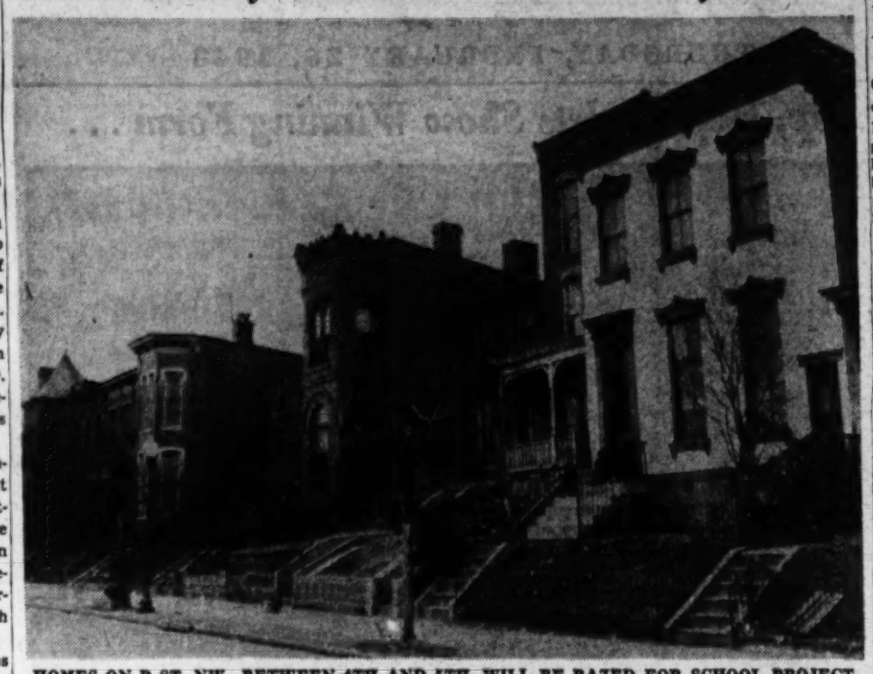
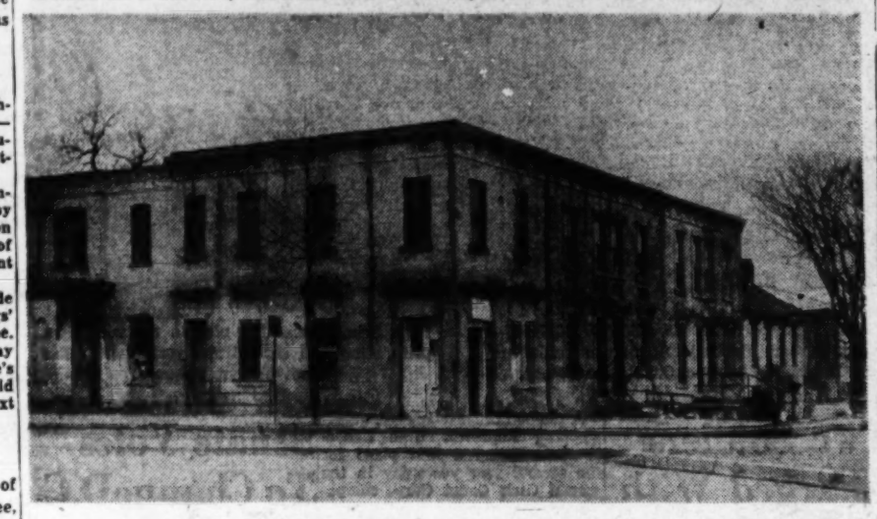
"Bouff," who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Channing, is a talented black miniature French poodle who appeared on a televised children's program here recently. He can jump through hoops walk on his hind legs and shake hands—as well as run away.

"Gris-Gris," on the other hand, is an untalented common "alley cat," Mrs. Channing said, but she misses "Bouff" and wants him back. So does Mrs. Channing, who asked Georgetown residents to keep an eye open for "Bouff."

Judge Orders Occupants of 43 Homes Evicted To Make Way for 2 Construction Projects



HOMES ON P ST. NW., BETWEEN 4TH AND 5TH, WILL BE RAZED FOR SCHOOL PROJECT



The Washington Post

DWELLINGS AT 27TH AND K STS. NW., WILL MAKE WAY FOR ELEVATED HIGHWAY

Eviction action against Negro occupants of 43 homes which are in the path of District construction projects was "reluctantly" ordered here yesterday.

In an effort to provide some measure of help to the families who pleaded inability to find other housing, Judge Thomas D. Quinn authorized delays ranging from 10 to 45 days in the evictions.

Thirty-one of the homes involved are on P st. between 4th and 5th sts. nw., and on Franklin st. between 4th and 5th sts., site of the proposed Montgomery Elementary School.

The 12 other homes are numbers 944 to 950 on 27th st. nw., and 2700 to 2716 on K st. nw., where work is under way on the K st. elevated highway.

School Need Explained

Some of the houses are occupied by more than one family, according to testimony given yesterday in the Landlord and Tenant Branch of Municipal Court.

Explaining the need for the Montgomery school, A. K. Savoy, assistant superintendent of elementary schools, testified that every school in that area is filled to overflowing, with 300 children attending part-time classes. A sum of $600,000 has been authorized for the new school, which will replace the Morse School and the Twining School.

Notices to vacate were issued to residents at the school site and the K st. area in November, but about 35 of the tenants present in court yesterday protested that they had been unsuccessful in finding other living quarters.

Mrs. Eleanor Fletcher, of 427 P st. nw., who said she had an invalid mother to care for, declared, "I rented a place that was governed by a covenant, and we waited for a Supreme Court decision on pending covenant cases hoping we could move in. Finally we bought a place, but they can't finnsh the building in this bad weather."

"We would have gone a long time ago," said Mrs. Bernice Lathern, of 450 Franklin st. nw., "but we can't find a place and we have tried al kinds." Other tenants recited simular experiences.

Delays Ordered

Judge Quinn consulted with William H. McDonald, attorney for the H. L. Rust Co., acting as agents for the District in both areas where the evictions were sought, and then ordered the evictions, with delays in each case.

"We don't want to be arbitrary, and it is a hard job to put people out of their homes, some of which they have lived in for many years . . . but you realize the need for the new school, and ultimately you might benefit."

In the K st. area, said Carl A. Wilson of the Highway Department's bridge division, part of the work is "right up to the homes, and some of the people should be out of there tomorrow."

Archie A. Alexander of the Alexander & Repass Co. of Des Moines, Iowa, said his construction firm would incur "severe financial loss" which would have to be charged to the District if the work is delayed.

Alexander indicated he would try to arrange the delay and the court postponed the evictions there to March 8.

Period to be Rent-Free

In both cases, said McDonald, the Rust Co. will not charge the tenants any rent during the extension periods granted by the court.

Paul A. Chalupsky, District property officer, said the tenants have been given "every possible consideration, but eviction is always a very unpleasant task." All leases have been on a month-to-month basis, he said, and the District announced plans to build on both sites several years ago.

Thirty-six homes were originally involved in the eviction notices at the school site, he said, but six of the homes have since been vacated.

Body of Woman Found; Believed Dead Several Days

The body of an elderly woman was found about 4 p. m. yesterday in a basement room of the two-story tenement house at 5 Fantroy ct. nw., where, neighbors said, she had lived alone.

Listed by police as Addie Fantroy, about 60, she was believed to have been dead several days, Corpl. J. W. Groves of the Third Precinct, said.

The body was found by Howard Baxter, 2329 Sherman ave. nw. He told police he glanced in the window as he was passing by and saw the prostrate body. Neighbors said she had lived in the court, which is between 16th and 17th sts. and O and P sts. nw., most of her life.

Death was apparently due to natural causes, polic said. The body was taken to the District morgue.

District Pastor Arrives in Prague During Crisis

The family of Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls Unitarian Church here, yesterday learned he had arrived in Prague, Czechoslovakia, during the government crisis there but expects to continue his planned schedule.

Dr. Davies flew from Warsaw Tuesday, after dedicating a Unitarian service committee hospital in Poland, to confer with Czech church leaders. He plans to inspect USC projects in France and then confer in London with British Unitarian clergymen, returning to Washington March 6.

Mrs. Muriel Davies of 3818 Jenifer st., Chevy Chase, yesterday received a telegram from her husband confirming that he is "proceeding as planned."

'Hot' Car Case Dispatched

Building guards hurried into the basement garage; quickly extinguished the smoldering wiring on Justice Hugo Black's 1948 automobile.

Gen. Alfredo Baldomir

Montevideo, Uruguay, Feb. 25 (U.P.).—Gen. Alfredo Baldomir, 64, former president of Uruguay, died today.

General Baldomir was chief executive from 1938 to 1943. He started his carer as Montevideo chief of police and rose to national defense minister before being elected to the presidency.

Two outstanding events marked Baldomir's administration: The reform of the national constitution and the restoration of democratic institutions after the seven-year de facto regime of Dr. Gabriel Terra.

G. F. Cook, Arlington Banker, Dies

Funeral services for George F. Cook, 56, banking auditor and veteran president of Arlington's Old Dominion Bank, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Ives Funeral Home, 2847 Wilson blvd., Arlington.

Mr. Cook

The services will be conducted by Rev. E. G. Latch, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Church here. Interment will be in Columbia Gardens Cemetery.

Mr. Cook, who lived at 700 S. Highland st., Arlington, died Monday in Emergency Hospital after an illness of one month.

Born in Somerville, Mass., he came to Washington in 1912 after graduation from Maine Central Institute, and took a job here as clerk in the Census Bureau.

After a year of such service, he traveled to Panama in 1913, where he worked in the payroll department during construction of the Panama Canal. He returned to Washington in 1918, to take a job as electrician with an automobile dealer. In 1928, he became auditor in the Treasury Department's division of insolvent national banks, a position he held until his death.

He was elected to the board of directors of the Old Dominion Bank, in 1933, and that same year was chosen president. He remained the bank's president ever since.

Mr. Cook served for the past 17 years as vice president of both the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department No. 1 and the County Firemen's Association, and was chairman of the association's board of trustees for the past 10 years. He was a Mason.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Viola H. Cook, and a son, George F., jr., both of the Arlington address, and a brother, Wilbert H. Cook of Boston.

J. H. Sorrells, Scripps Editor 18 Years, Dies

New York, Feb. 25 (AP).—John H. Sorrells, 51, executive editor of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers for 18 years, died today of a heart ailment.

A native of Pine Bluff, Ark., Sorrells' first newspaper job was as a $3-a-week delivery boy for the Pine Bluff Graphic.

He became editor of the Graphic when he was 25, and later worked on the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman, the Cleveland Press, the Memphis Press-Scimitar and the Fort Worth Press, before taking the Scripps-Howard executive post here.

As executive editor, Sorrells was responsible for all facets of editorial management of the newspaper group, including news, promotion, budget control, labor contracts and other administrative matters.

During the war, he served as deputy director of the Office of Censorship in Washington, D. C.

Sorrells also was president of the Memphis Publishing Co. which publishes the Memphis Commercial Appeal and Press-Scimitar.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Robinson funeral home, Pine Bluff. Burial will be in Pine Bluff.

Surviving in addition to his widow are four children: John Harvey, jr., of Washington and Lee University; Robert Talliferro and William Gordon, both of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., and a daughter, Mrs. Ellis Moore of Memphis.

Geoffrey N. Pyke

London, Feb. 25 (AP).—Geoffrey Nathaniel Pyke, 54, who conceived the wartime idea for aircraft carriers made of artificial ice, committed suicide because of worry, a St. Pancras 'coroner's jury ruled today.

Pyke, whose dream of carriers from giant blocks of ice once was seriously considered by the Allies, was found dead at his home several days ago.

Jouett Shouses Lease Estate to Lady Wilson And Are Off to Nassau

By Marie McNair

LADY WILSON, wife of Field Marshal Lord Henry Maitland Wilson—his colleagues call him Jumbo—has leased Wolf Trap Farm, the Jouett Shouse's big country estate at Vienna, Va., where she'll be at home after April 1. When Field Marshal Wilson left for England more than a year ago, Lady Wilson and their daughter stayed here.

MRS. McNAIR

The Wilsons felt that a longer stay in America would be beneficial to their daughter, whose health has caused them much concern.

So, they've been living a quiet life in nearby Virginia, first at Ranleigh, Col. and Mrs. Randolph Lee's house at McLean, later taking another house not too far away.

And the Shouses? They're going to spend most of the summer in Europe and will finish off the season at their cottage at Cotuit on Cape Cod.

Sailing on the twenty-fifth of May, Mr. and Mrs. Shouse will reach England in time for the running of the famous Derby early in June. Paris will be next and there's a possible stop in Ireland also in prospect.

Just back from the Cape, Mr. and Mrs. Shouse had thought to give their good friends, Gen. and Mrs. E. C. B. Danforth, a mid-winter holiday and a taste of the Cape's mild February weather. Instead, the foursome arrived in the face of a snowstorm, were snow-bound for the entire four days. Now, in search of the sun, the Shouses will be off for Nassau this weekend for a fortnight's vacation on the sands.

JOLLY HARRY ANDREWS, Minister of South Africa, is taking an unexpected trip home aboard the Southern Cross, Pan American World Airways Clipper headed for Johannesburg.

The Southern Cross is making its inaugural flight from New York on a route covering more than eight thousand miles. This trip, however, will make no record as the 19 newspaper editors on the junket are to be treated to a six-day tour of the Union as guests of the South African Government.

Mrs. Andrews flew up yesterday to see her husband off, returned by plane in the afternoon.

TOWN TOPICS: President Truman built his balcony possibly with an eye to enjoying it for the next four years. Mrs. Truman, perhaps with woman's intuition, isn't quite so sure. She's having Abbie Rowe of the Department of the Interior photograph all the rooms of the White House for a personal album to take home with her to Independence.

A second look is necessary to read correctly the invitations sent out by Mrs. Alf Heiberg for a party March 6 at her new home on Capitol Hill.

It's not a hen-house warming but a "hen" house warming that she is giving that afternoon in honor of Mrs. Robert Taft.

Louise calls her new home Federal House. Its history is connected with the early days of our town.

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

THE numerals 76 on a birthday cake would dismay any woman caught near it. But it took Martha Taft (center) to quip it properly and she did with, "I hope people don't think we're celebrating my birthday and that I'm that old." Meantime, Mrs. Karl LeCompte, wife of the Iowa Representative, slices the massive cake while Mrs. Paul Kilday, wife of the Texas Representative looks on. Occasion was the 76th Club's tenth anniversary celebration yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. LeCompte is the club's new president and Mrs. Kilday first vice president. Mrs. Taft, wife of the Ohio Senator and presidential candidate, was the club's first vice president when the group was organized

Distaff Side of Congress Has 'Remember When' Session

By Genevieve Reynolds

It was either reminiscence or get acquainted time for spouses of many of the Nation's lawmakers yesterday. "Do you remember when" echoed among members of the Seventy-sixth, Seventy-eighth and Sixty-eighth clubs all around the town.

Each new influx of wives who came to the Nation's Capital with their congressional husbands adds a new club. The first group to band together were the spouses of members who came to the Sixty-ninth Congress. Until last year those who came prior to that time had no club according to the year they came. Then those whose husbands are still in the House of Representatives or had been before the Sixty-ninth Congress banded together in the Sixty-eighth Senior Congress Club.

The Seventy-sixth Club celebrated its tenth anniversary with a luncheon at the Wardman Park Hotel with 32 members of the 68 eligibles present. President Mrs. Karl LeCompte, wife of the Iowa Representative, dedicated the occasion to the nine past presidents of the group. Then she threw in a birthday candle for Mrs. Robert (Martha) Taft, wife of the Ohio Senator who is a GOP presidential candidate, and another for Mrs. Clifford (Carrie) Davis, wife of the Tennessee Representative.

Candles Are Added

Mrs. LeCompte dubbed Mrs. Taft as the "most outstanding woman speaker in the country," and recalled that when the Seventy-sixth Club was organized. Martha was asked to take the presidency but declined because she had too much to do. However, she did agree to being vice president.

An accolade went to Carrie Davis on two counts—first as a member of the Seventy-sixth Club and for her excellent job of pepping up the activities of the Congressional Club.

Mrs. Fred Bradley of Michigan was telling friends that she would exhibit some old antique sugar saving spoons in the Congressional Club's hobby show tomorrow afternoon. The spoons, larger than demi-tasse and smaller than tea-spoons, have been passed down in the Bradley family since 1776.

Out after a prolonged illness was Mrs. John L. McMillan, wife of the South Carolina Representative.

Meantime, such long-time Hillites as Mrs. Walter George, wife of the Georgia Senator, Mrs. Lister Hill of Alabama and Mrs. Daniel Reed of New York had fun, recalling past and current events over luncheon tables at the first gathering of the Senior Congress Club, which is composed of the wives and widows of Senators and Representatives who came here with the Sixty-eighth Congress or before. Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Supreme Court justice, heads the group which was organized last year in Mrs. George's Mayflower Hotel apartment. Roberta Vinson entered the national political scene when her hubby came up from Kentucky to become a member of the Sixty-eighth Congress.

Mrs. Truman is an honorary member of the group that includes old favorites like Mrs. Borah, wife of the late Idaho Senator.

New Minister From Nepal Gives Party

By Elizabeth Maguire

CHARM is certainly a characteristic of the Nepalese, if the new minister and his family can be set down as a criterion. At the reception the minister gave yesterday at the Wardman Park, a room full of guests trained their eyes on the receiving line as though watching a fascinating play.

Little Tani, 3½-year-old daughter of the minister and Rani Kaiser, stole the show that afternoon. The Ambassador of Great Britain, Lord Inverchapel, glowed while she gave him a pat on the cheek, and Raymond Muir of the State Department held her on his shoulder while cameras clicked. Tani was dressed in red knit jumper and little red slippers and on her head she wore a bright colored bonnet with upturned brim.

The Real Ambassador

"She is the real Ambassador and I am the Minister," her father said proudly. And Washington seldom has such a treat as a bright little girl at its big receptions. Especially one so small with poise and intelligence.

Lady Inverchapel was there in a lovely black ballerina frock and dusty lilac hat of tulle. She said she was busy packing for her trip to Nassau (where she will join Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and Mrs. Norman Armour). The Ambassadress is leaving Saturday and will return in about two weeks. "I want to stay in the sun," she said, "and do nothing but get very brown and slim."

Others at the party were Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; the Ambassador of Brazil, Carlos Martins; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; the Minister of India and Mme. Nehru; the Charge d'Affaires of Pakistan, M. O. A. Baig; the Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri; the Minister of Liberia, Charles D. B. King, and Raymond Muir of the State Department.

Joseph Satterthwaite, the President's special envoy to Nepal last year, talked with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas William Arnold, who served with the British Legation in Nepal for many years. Andre Visson was a guest as were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Thurston.

The Minister and Rani Kaiser and their daughter, Tani, are leaving in a few days for London, where General Kaiser will serve as Ambassador to Great Britain as well as minister to this country.

Mrs. Beddington Entertains at Shoreham

GUESTS gathered at Mrs. Claude Beddington's apartment at the Shoreham for sherry yesterday afternoon were expecting the famous dancers, the De Marcos, to appear before they had to leave. Mrs. Beddington first knew them abroad and renewed their acquaintance when they came here to dance in the Shoreham Blue Room. A heavy schedule before their first appearance prevented the de Marcos from attending the party.

Among those who did come were the Charge d'Affaires of Spain and Senora de Baraibar, Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, the Iran Minister and Mme. Noury-Esfandiary, Sir Frederick and Lady Puckle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Col. and Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wallace, General and Mrs. Clayton Adams, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mme. Rybar, Mrs. Charles Wahl, Harold Mott, Mrs. Katherine Graham, Kent Ives, Ralph McBane and Mrs. McCeney Werlich.

Brookings Honored At Fosketts' Party

ADMIRAL Patrick William Beresford Brookings, D. S. O., retiring Chief of Staff to the head of the British Naval Staff in Washington, and Mrs. Brookings, were guests in whose honor Rear Admiral and Mrs. James H. Foskett entertained yesterday afternoon at cocktails.

The party served as a mutual farewell, as Admiral and Mrs. Brookings are leaving for London in March, and Admiral Foskett is leaving for the Mediterranean sometime in April.

Cates' Party Fetes Gladys Swarthout

GEN. and Mrs. C. B. Cates entertained at dinner last evening at the Commandant's house, Marine Barracks, in honor of Gladys Swarthout and her husband, Frank Chapman. Mrs. John Wintersteen of Philadelphia, cousin of Mrs. Cates, was among the guests.

New Minister From Nepal Gives Party

By Elizabeth Maguire

CHARM is certainly a characteristic of the Nepalese, if the new minister and his family can be set down as a criterion. At the reception the minister gave yesterday at the Wardman Park, a room full of guests trained their eyes on the receiving line as though watching a fascinating play.

Rani Kaiser, wife of the minister, wore a gold tissue sari with huge bow-knot pin of diamonds and rubies, a long pearl necklace, diamond and ruby earrings and bracelets. Her lovely face and winsome smile made the costume almost unnoticeable.

Little Tani, 3½-year-old daughter of the minister and Rani Kaiser, stole the show that afternoon. The Ambassador of Great Britain, Lord Inverchapel, glowed while she gave him a pat on the cheek, and Raymond Muir of the State Department held her on his shoulder while cameras clicked. Tani was dressed in red knit jumper and little red slippers and on her head she wore a bright colored bonnet with upturned brim.

The Real Ambassador

"She is the real Ambassador and I am the Minister," her father said proudly. And Washington seldom has such a treat as a bright little girl at its big receptions. Especially one so small with poise and intelligence.

Lady Inverchapel was there in a lovely black ballerina frock and dusty lilac hat of tulle. She said she was busy packing for her trip to Nassau (where she will join Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney and Mrs. Norman Armour). The Ambassadress is leaving Saturday and will return in about two weeks. "I want to stay in the sun," she said, "and do nothing but get very brown and slim."

Others at the party were Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice; the Ambassador of Brazil, Carlos Martins; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; the Minister of India and Mme. Nehru; the Charge d'Affaires of Pakistan, M. O. A. Baig; the Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri; the Minister of Liberia, Charles D. B. King, and Raymond Muir of the State Department.

Joseph Satterthwaite, the President's special envoy to Nepal last year, talked with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas William Arnold, who served with the British Legation in Nepal for many years. Andre Visson was a guest as were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Thurston.

The Minister and Rani Kaiser and their daughter, Tani, are leaving in a few days for London, where General Kaiser will serve as Ambassador to Great Britain as well as minister to this country.

Mrs. Beddington Entertains at Shoreham

GUESTS gathered at Mrs. Claude Beddington's apartment at the Shoreham for sherry yesterday afternoon were expecting the famous dancers, the De Marcos, to appear before they had to leave. Mrs. Beddington first knew them abroad and renewed their acquaintance when they came here to dance in the Shoreham Blue Room. A heavy schedule before their first appearance prevented the de Marcos from attending the party.

Among those who did come were the Charge d'Affaires of Spain and Senora de Baraibar, Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador, the Iran Minister and Mme. Noury-Esfandiary, Sir Frederick and Lady Puckle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Col. and Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wallace, General and Mrs. Clayton Adams, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mme. Rybar, Mrs. Charles Wahl, Harold Mott, Mrs. Katherine Graham, Kent Ives, Ralph McBane and Mrs. McCeney Werlich.

Brookings Honored At Fosketts' Party

ADMIRAL Patrick William Beresford Brookings, D. S. O., retiring Chief of Staff to the head of the British Naval Staff in Washington, and Mrs. Brookings, were guests in whose honor Rear Admiral and Mrs. James H. Foskett entertained yesterday afternoon at cocktails.

The party served as a mutual farewell, as Admiral and Mrs. Brookings are leaving for London in March, and Admiral Foskett is leaving for the Mediterranean sometime in April.

Cates' Party Fetes Gladys Swarthout

GEN. and Mrs. C. B. Cates entertained at dinner last evening at the Commandant's house, Marine Barracks, in honor of Gladys Swarthout and her husband, Frank Chapman. Mrs. John Wintersteen of Philadelphia, cousin of Mrs. Cates, was among the guests.

Fort Myer Club To Meet Today For Luncheon

Heading the agenda for the afternoon will be election of officers to serve with Mrs. Jesse B. Matlack, president of the club, and completion of plans for a series of semiformal dances to be given at Hop Hall for all service juniors.

Various committees of the organization have already been active. The hospital and combined Red Cross groups, under the chairmanship of Mrs. William L. Thompson, have turned out large numbers of medical supplies.

Housing Experts Give Views On AAUW's Panel Forum

"Who can solve the Nation's housing problems?" Not private enterprise, labor, local or Federal Governments alone. The answer lies in a cooperative effort of all These are conclusions reached last night by three housing experts in a panel discussion sponsored by the legislative committee of the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women.

Participating in the forum were Louis Justement, Washington architect and author of "New Cities for Old," who spoke on the role of Government in construction of low-cost homes people can afford; Tyler S. Rogers, assistant executive vice president, Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., Toledo, Ohio, who gave the businessman's views on the subject, and John Ihlder, executive officer of National Capital Housing Authority. Mrs. William R. Gage served as moderator.

Justement said that it is a delusion to believe a drastic reduction of building costs would solve the housing problem. "Be realistic and concentrate on factors such as scarcity of building labor," he advised, "an aggressive program for apprentice training is essential."

"Leading technicians already are ahead of the 200,000 builders and the approximately two million building trade mechanics in their knowledge of how to build better and cheaper houses," declared Rogers; "mere cost of production is not enough. Labor must produce more in relation to the wages it receives. Management must plan better, manage better and be alert to application of new methods and materials in cutting costs.

"Taxes must come down, since they are 10 times as great an element in home building costs as they were before the war," he continued. "Our idea of adequate low cost shelter needs revision. Traditional designs and materials are not necessarily most economical or best. But if people insist on habitual patterns of past generations, they must accept the higher costs associated with them."

Reducing construction cost often is overemphasized, according to Ihlder. "Economical housing does not mean cheap housing," he asserted. "Our alley dwellings built after the Civil War, our temporary dwellings built during World War II, are comparatively cheap but not economical. Maintenance, repairs, replacements are part of the costs and they are increased by skimping on construction expenses."

The housing conference of the Legislative Workshop, which was planned by Mrs. Sydney H. Evans, chairman of the AAUW's Legislative committee, was attended by members of all AAUW's area branches. It was called to inform the membership of housing problem complexities preliminary to later review of specific housing legislation.

Sway-Back Makes Hips Loom Large

By Ida Jean Kain

When the small of the back swerves sharply in, do the hips loom larger? They bustle out, but actually they are not measurably larger.

In the "new look" they look bigger. Many a gal catches a a side view of her silhouette with waist cinched in, hips flourishing out, and quickly resolves to take off 10 pounds! The trouble is neither hips nor heft, but sway-back, and the correction is not diet but exercise on the straightening out order.

An easy corrective is to lie with back on floor, knees bent and soles on floor. The exercise is merely to pull up and in with the muscles that form the abdominal wall and flatten the back against the floor. Repeat this a half-dozen times until you get the gist of what it means to pull up and in with these important front muscles. Finish that one by bringing both knees up toward chest; then clasp arms around knees, hug them to chest and rest in that position for a few minutes.

Position: Lie on back, with back of the hips against the wall and legs extending up the wall. The difficult part of this exercise is getting into this ups-a-daisy position. Try this . . . sit against the wall sideways, hip touching wall. Now just flip around and stretch legs up the wall—it's easy.

Movement: Slide one leg down the wall, bringing knee to a flexed position over chest, and stretch both arms back on floor overhead. Concentrate on pulling upward with the abdominal muscles, touching small of back against the floor, and pulling a wonderful stretch. Now slide that leg back up the wall, bring arms back down to sides, and slide the other leg down, bending knee over chest as arms are stretched up again. As soon as you swing into the rhythm of this, it's fun. You can repeat this exercise any number of times, resting between each 12 counts.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Elderly Woman Divides Her Time Between Two Married Daughters, Spending Half Year With Each; One Is Kindly, the Other Cold

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I've been so interested in your column and am sure you help a great many people. Perhaps you can help me. I am an old woman but love life and all its activities. I am very healthy and never have to be waited on.

I live with my two daughters (both are married)—spending winters in town with one who seems to dislike me, and summers with the other one in the country, who is very different. She and her husband take me almost everywhere they go and they have charming friends.

The others never take me anywhere. They have a lovely car in which I've never had a ride. I pay them board (as I do the others),—$50 a month,—and as most mothers do, I give them presents, mend and help a little with the housekeeping, and take care of the house when my daughter goes on trips.

Has Comforts
But Wants Fun

HER FRIENDS are sweet to me but she seems to resent it; at least, she flies at me for no reason on earth and bosses me constantly. Everyone thinks she is the loveliest, most charming person, and she is to all but me. I don't mean to complain, but do you advise me to live somewhere else?

I am very comfortably fixed here in winter, with a lovely room in which I have some of my own things, and excellent food. I am sure I couldn't find a more comfortable place for $50 a month in these days of high prices; but perhaps a more peaceful and happy one. What do you think? Please answer soon. E. B.

Mother Dotes
On Attention

DEAR E. B.: In your long life have you never reflected on the wisdom of taking people as you find them? Age should be greatly philosophic in outlook on the human scene; but alas it isn't always; and you seem to be as self-engrossed as the average person.

Although you speak of loving life and all its activities, your implicit demand is that your daughters vie with each other in sharing their social life fully with you, during your alternate half-years with each. In other words, you want attention, lots of it, generously supplied by gracious others, to-wit: daughters, sons-in-laws and their charming friends.

As it happens (or according to your story), one daughter is infinitely obliging in this respect. Almost everywhere she goes with her husband she takes you along, which may be great fun for you, but represents a real sacrifice of marital companionship and social rights on her part. It seems you take this procedure for granted as your proper portion and her filial duty in the circumstances,—and believe me, it isn't.

So, have inconsiderately (if thoughtlessly) exploited the one daughter's kind heart to the hilt, you then delicately find fault with the other daughter for rather fiercely rebuffing your tacit maneuvers to make your winters with her a similar grand triumvirate of social appearances and home entertaining. I sense flint-steel reciprocal selfishness striking fire between you two; and I wonder, have people ever stressed that this daughter is much like you and the other more like her father, perhaps?

For advice: Having two daughters, you have two entirely different persons to deal with. And to further accent their individual difference, each has her own peculiar helpmeet and distinctive way-of-life nowadays, which adds up to incomparable difference in their reactions to your live-in presence.

Thus it doesn't make sense to compare one with the other, in terms of praise or censure. Rather it's the part of wisdom to take each as you find her in the adult role, while accepting the shelter of their roof in rather impersonal spirit, keeping an eye on yourself to hold in check impetuous impulses or desires to treat their life as if it were your own, or a dominion thereof. M. H.

Keeping the Milk Supply Fresh, Clean

Bring the milk in from the step as soon as possible.
Wipe the top of the bottle before removing the cap for pouring.
Keep the milk in the coldest section of the refrigerator.
After the milk has been opened, replace the paper cap or cover with a glass stopper.
After using, return to the ice box immediately. Don't let the bottle stand in the warm kitchen and change the temperature of the milk.
After washing milk bottles do not stand them upside down to drain. Let them stand in their natural position and let the air circulate and dry them.

A local company sells dehumidifiers (at prices ranging from 67 cents to $7.95 each) which are very useful for keeping the air dry in closets and other enclosed spaces in damp weather. One of these might be placed in an airtight box or trunk in which you store shoes in the summer, or you might leave the shoes in the closet and install one there to protect all your clothes from mildew. Look under "Dehumidifying — Equipment and Service" in the yellow section of the telephone book for the name of the company that sells these units.

Please tell me how and what to serve, including wedding cake and ice cream, at a small wedding reception given in a private home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be about 25 guests. E. M. M.

If you wish to keep your refreshments simple, you need serve nothing more than the wedding cake, ice cream, nuts, candies, and cold punch or hot tea or coffee. If you wish to have something a bit more elaborate, you might have chicken salad, small hot biscuits, and an assortment of small sandwiches, as well as the food mentioned above. In either case, the dining table could be attractively arranged for serving with the wedding cake in the center, flanked by candlesticks holding white tapers. Or you could have the cake at one end, a punch bowl and cups (or tea or coffee service) at the other, and an arrangement of white flowers and greenery in the center. Use your prettiest tablecloth and arrange white tea napkins on one side of the table. Several young friends of the bride could be asked to help with the serving.

If the refreshments are simple, the bride could cut the cake soon after the guests arrive. Plates with ice cream on them could be brought from the kitchen and the bride could put a slice of cake on each. It could then be handed to one of the guests gathered around the table for the cake cutting. Dishes of nuts and bonbons could be arranged on the table and the guests could help themselves. (Later, these could be passed around to the guests again.) Each guest could get a cup of punch, tea, or coffee after receiving his plate of ice cream and cake.

If the more elaborate menu is used, plates with chicken salad and a few sandwiches could be served in the kitchen. These could then be taken out to the guests by those assisting with the serving. A cup of tea or coffee could be included on the plate or the guests could go to the serving table for this. The hot biscuits and additional sandwiches, as well as candies and nuts, could be passed from time to time. When guests finish with the first course, the bride could cut the wedding cake and the ice cream could be brought in.

I have a painted table which I would like to repaint. How can I remove the old paint and paint it so that it will match some walnut chairs that I have? A. G.

If you wish to refinish this table so that it will match the chairs, it will be necessary first to use a paint and varnish remover, then probably a walnut stain, and then varnish. After getting off the old finish with the remover, it would be good idea to sand the chair to get the wood as smooth as possible and make sure no paint remains on it. If the wood under the paint turns out to be similar in color to the chairs, it won't be necessary to use stain. If a stain is necessary, experiment with it a bit first on the underside of the table to make sure that you are getting a good match. After the stain dries, apply several coats of clear varnish. Let each dry and sand it lightly before applying the next coat.

I would like to wash slip covers and would like to know if gum arabic can be used to starch them. If so, please tell me how. T. E. H.

Gum arabic could be used, but it is only a light stiffening, usually used to give extra body to thin materials that cannot be starched satisfactorily. Starch seems more appropriate for slip covers, which are usually made of heavy materials. If you are afraid the starch will stand out on the surface of dark-colored fabric, you could tint the starch with one of the commercial tints sold in drug stores. Since you do not mention the material of which these slip covers are made I am somewhat at a loss to advise you. Instructions for using gum arabic on rayon are as follows, however: Add one pint boiling water to one ounce powdered gum arabic. Stir over low heat until gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with 2 to 3½ quarts lukewarm water according to stiffness desired. Dry garment quickly after dipping.

Bottles containing flavorings and extracts should be kept tightly corked or they will lose their strength and flavor.

A tablespoon of paraffin added to the water when washing linoleum will remove stains and preserve the floor covering.

Give the cracked windowpanes a coat of clear shellac. It will make it waterproof until the new pane can be inserted.

Md. Fisheries Chief to Meet Head of Fleet

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—John E. Clark, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, and Capt. Amos Creighton, commander of the tidewater fleet, will meet Friday to discuss Creighton's duties.

Clark said tonight, "since the commission has reestablished my duties to direct activities of the personnel, we can talk the matter over."

The commission by a 2-to-1 vote confirmed the powers of Clark as chairman of the commission at a meeting last June. These include general supervision of department workers.

After the meeting today, Clark conferred briefly with Captain Creighton and arrangements were made for the discussion Friday.

Getting around to the business of the meeting, the commission by a similar 2-to-1 vote decided on a formula for appropriating approximately $100,000 oyster fund money for use in the various counties and Chesapeake Bay.

It was decided unanimously to allot oyster seeds on a State-first basis before any would be sold to private planters. Planters in the State face an acute seed shortage since they used to get the seeds from Virginia which has now banned their export.

The commission decided also to hold a hearing March 1 at which all members of the crabbing industry will be heard regarding use of crab pots.

Tri-State Canners Told Output Tops Consumption

Baltimore, Feb. 25 (AP).—Canners are producing at a war peak, and consumption is well below that level, some 200 food processors from Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey were told today.

C. L. Skinner of Easton, Md., secretary of the Tri-State Packers Association, addressed the group at its forty-fourth spring convention on the problem of being in a "surplus producing area."

Skinner said improved marketing is paramount to stepped-up sales. Better labels are one selling aid, he said.

Maryland turns out 30 million cases of canned goods annually, at a value of 90 million dollars, Skinner said. This represents about 10 per cent of national production.

The canners will attend a short course in processing and freezing conducted tomorrow and Friday by the University of Maryland's agriculutral college.

Truck Drivers' Squabble Ends in Celebration

"Hey, it's Colley," the driver said.

Yorktown Area Bill Passes

By The Associated Press

The Senate passed yesterday a bill authorizing the Interior Department to plan a sewage-disposal system for the Yorktown area of the Colonial National Historical Park in Virginia. The bill, authorizes spending $15,000 for the plans.

Natural Gas Flow Tapped in Test in Western Virginia

The well, located near Grundy in Buchanan County, was one of three started last year after the company obtained leases on about 140,000 acres of land in Tazewell, Buchanan and Russell Counties.

The gas was found in the Maxim sand about 2300 feet below the surface, officials said.

There was no confirmation here of a report that the Buchanan County drilling operation had uncovered a good seam of coal about 600 feet below the surface.

J. P. Rowe, Jr., Editor, Seeks Mayor's Post

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 25 (Spl.).—Josiah P. Rowe, jr., editor and publisher of the Free Lance-Star, Fredericksburg daily, announced today he would be a candidate for mayor in the municipal elections in June. It will be his first bid for public office.

A mayor and six councilmen are to be elected in June and will take office in September for four-year terms. Rowe's is the first announced candidacy.

Mayor C. O'Conor Goolrick, who was chosen mayor by the council last fall after the death of Mayor Claude T. Parcell, stated at that time that he would serve only for the duration of the present term, which expires in September.

Rowe, a native of Fredericksburg, has been associated with the Free Lance-Star more than 30 years and became editor in 1925.

He is a former president of the Virginia Press Association.

He left Virginia Tech in 1917 to serve overseas as a flying officer. During World War II he organized and served as captain of Company 104, Virginia State Guard, here.

His grandfather, Absolam Rowe, and his father, J. P. Rowe, were mayors of Fredericksburg.

2 More Fredericksburg School Meetings Slated

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 25 (Spl.).—Two more meetings to discuss the proposed consolidated high school for Fredericksburg and Stafford County were scheduled today.

City and county officials will meet in City Hall here at 2 p. m., March 3. That night at 8 o'clock a public hearing will take place at Stafford High School.

Richard C. Haydon, assistant State superintendent of public instruction; Dr. Fred M. Alexander, director of the State division of secondary education, and W. W. Wilkerson, State supervisor of secondary education, have indicated they will attend both meetings.

Va. Pays $2,672,930 For Chesapeake Ferry

Richmond, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—The State Highway Department today announced it had purchased all rights and properties of the Chesapeake Ferry Co. for $2,672,930.

The announcement was made exactly two years after the State seized the strike-bound Newport News-Pince Beach and Old Point Comfort Willoughby System.

Included in the purchase price is $2,622,930 as compensation by five condemnation commissioners in the Norfolk Corporation Court last December 29, plus $50,000 for spare parts and materials.

Grand Jury Will Get Hackley Case Saturday

Luray, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—The case of Charles K. Hackley, Stanley town councilman and former town justice, charged with accepting a "gift or gratuity," will be placed before a grand jury here Saturday.

Hackley was arrested Saturday when Page County Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel brought the charge in connection with a case wherein Loy Huffman was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Judge William V. Ford of Page County Circuit Court ordered the grand jury reconvened at Dovel's request.

5 Middies to Attend Vassar Arts Session

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 25 (AP).—It's not all ships, guns and naval tactics for the 1948 Midshipman. The arts have their place in Naval Academy education, too.

Five Middies will be in on the first national intercollegiate arts conference at Vassar College this weekend. In company with undergraduates from throughout the country, they will discuss art, music, theater, dancing and literature.

Chase City Fire Causes $100,000 Damage

Chase City, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Mecca Theater Building here early today. Damage was estimated at more than $100,000.

The flames were discovered about 5:15 a. m. when the sound of exploding oil cans, stored in the building, awakened persons living near the theater.

The Chase City volunteer fire department fought the blaze for more than four hours.

Insurance Official Dies in Roanoke Fire

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—Carson A. Mays, 45, State manager of the Virginia and West Virginia branches of American Health Insurance Co., was killed early today in a fire of undetermined origin that damaged the bedroom of his home here.

His wife, Mrs. Grace Mays, also injured in the fire, was hospitalized for treatment for shock.

Tongers Ask 'Figures' on License Need

Richmond, Va., Feb. 25 (AP).—A Newport News attorney told a joint House-Senate committee today that the State Commission of Fisheries should be called upon to "show some books and figures" before raising any oyster or fishing licenses.

Speaking in behalf of the Oyster Tongers and Seafood Workers Union which he said represented about 600 persons in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries, Lee Ford said the group objected to raising any licenses unless the commission shows necessity.

Discussing some provisions of the Adams bill on which the hearing was held, Ford said he agreed with the provision which gives the commission of fisheries the right to close depleted oyster areas.

Urges Public Hearings

"But," he added, "we object to the wording of the act, which he said, gives no one the right to protest closing of any given area.

"The commission can decide to act and bingo an area is closed," he said.

He stated that he believed tongers should be given opportunity for a public hearing.

He also objected to provisions of the bill which would place a tax on oysters taken from certain areas and used to pay for repletion of the rocks and said:

"If there is going to be a tax on the seed areas it should be done uniformly so that no tonger will enjoy an advantage over another." He also declared he didn't think the proposed 10-cents-per-bushel tax was necessary.

"Arguments Have Reason"

Dr. Nelson Marshall, director of the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory at Yorktown, said that he could see "a lot of reason" to the arguments advanced by Ford concerning closing of depleted areas.

He suggested an amendment might be added to limit closing of the areas which might be helpful but, he added, "If the commission can't select the rocks needing repletion I don't see how any repletion activity can be carried out."

Besides raising licenses the bill would enable the commission to shorten the shad season by two weeks when it is believed necessary.

81 Cities Report Tonight On G. U. Gym Drive

Campaign leaders of Georgetown University Alumni Association will meet in Detroit, Mich., tonight to receive the first reports from 81 cities in a national drive to raise $800,000 for a new university gymnasium.

President Lawrence C. Gorman, S. J., of the university and Executive Secretary James S. Ruby of the alumni left here yesterday afternoon for the meeting. The drive for the McDonough Memorial Gymnasium opened in Washington February 7 with advance gifts of $109,000.

The building will honor the late Father Vincent S. McDonough, S. J., who was director of athletics at Georgetown.

Livestock and Poultry Value Up in Maryland

By The Associated Press

Livestock and poultry on Maryland farms last January 1 were worth $78,421,000, the Maryland Crop Reporting Service estimated yesterday. The figure does not include broilers.

However, the service said there were 3 per cent fewer chickens on the farm and only 59,000 turkeys, compared with 71,000 last year.

Paul's outgrown crib brought 20 bids

. . . once it was advertised in The Post

PAUL, 3, is the middle son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mallon, 704 Chalfonte Drive, Alexandria. He and his baby brother each had a crib until the other day—then Paul graduated into a bed and Mrs. Mallon found herself with an extra crib still in good condition. That crib didn't last long, though, once she told bargain-hunting Washington Post readers about it. "Our two-line ad brought at least 20 calls," reports Mrs. Mallon, "and though the weather was bad we sold the crib quite quickly for $20."

Outgrown baby equipment sells fast through The Post. Offer that unneeded carriage, crib, playpen, or bassinet now. You can place your notice by telephone. Call NAtional 4200 and ask for an ad writer.

Oh . . . Hello, Mr. O'Malley.
I'm designing our eyewash label . . . It's traditional for the company president to do the first label himself, you know. Unless he has a small nephew who likes to draw.
I think I'll use modern block letters. Have you any blocks?
Yes, but—
Fine. And I'll borrow your dad's stamp pad too . . . No need to call in a designer and a printer, m'boy, with my skill in graphic arts . . .

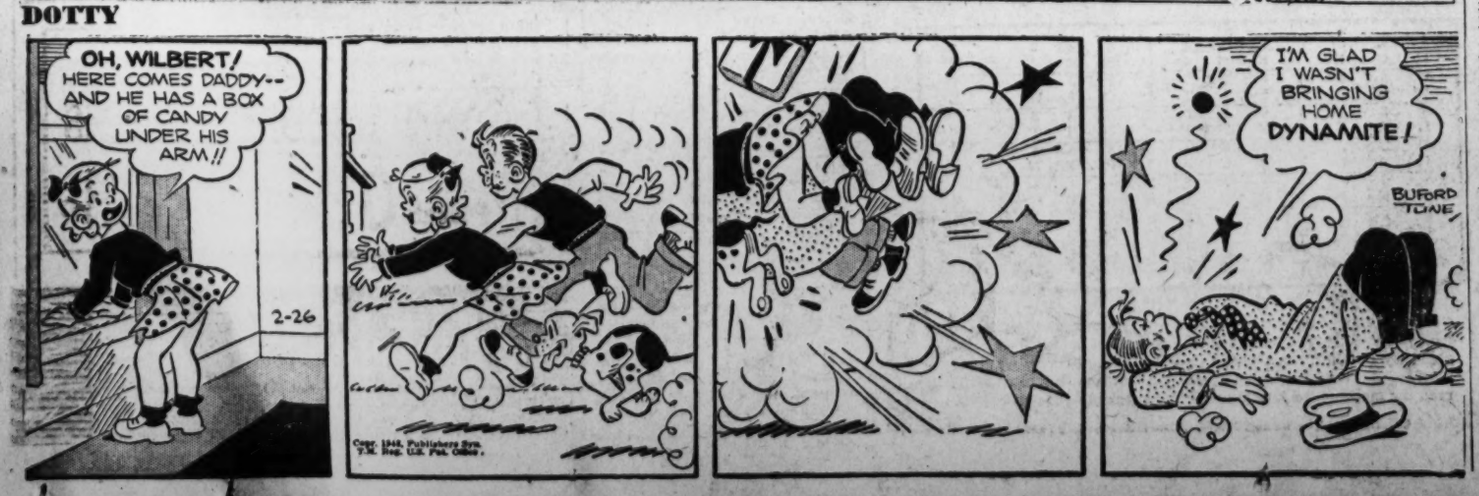
DOTTY



THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Picture-esque Poem Smokes Out Old Sourpuss

Sue Hamilton of Alexandria, Va., is a brave girl. She writes:

Each morning I always unfold
The Washington Post, and behold.
Povich, Haight and R. Coe,
Thayer, Haworth and so
Tell me—where is the face of old Gold?

* * *

Your readers should not be denied
Your column so clever
So Bill, please endeavor
To make yourself equally eyed.

The one at the left doesn't look very much like me, which is probably why I prefer it. All the others look like they should be on Post Office bulletin boards under the heading: "WANTED, $10,000 REWARD."

COMPLAINT DEPT.

Writing a column is risky business. I never know which innocent remark is going to start a controversy.

When District Liner Creed was observing his birthday on February 22, I observed that "approximately 1-365th of our population" would help George Washington celebrate his birthday. It's a good thing I stuck in that "approximately."

Roberta Ashburn of American University points out that Leap Years have 366 days, and the figure should therefore be 1-365.25th.

Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. takes the other tack and says that birth dates are not evenly divided, and percentages change appreciably from day to day, "so how do you know it's 1-365th?"

I don't. But how do you know it isn't?

He was born on February 22 at Mount Vernon, Va., where his folks had lived for a number of years. His name is George.

Not George Washington, but George K. Herring of 442 15th st. ne.

George's grandfather was a guard at Mount Vernon and his uncle, Lewis Pulley, still is. An aunt, Mrs. T. Fitzgerald, worked in the tea room for several years.

That certainly qualifies George for inclusion in our discussion of 1-365.25th of American birthdays.

JUNIOR SIZE

"Ma" Berry of our composing room has further news about her 5-year-old great-grandson, Billy.

The other day "Ma" promised Billy that she'd bring him home some all-day suckers. But Billy protested:

"I don't want the big all-day suckers, Grandma. Get me the small ones—the half-day suckers."

ILL WIND

The law library of the Department of Interior recently asked us to hunt up a December 2 issue of The Washington Post. Even our circulation department couldn't help.

But District Liners aren't so easily stumped. Not one but two copies of that issue are now on my desk, and will be forwarded to the library.

Donors were Mrs. Minnie L. Johnson of 1842 Vermont ave. nw. and Mrs. David Kintsfather of 2966 S. Columbus st., Arlington, Va.

In case you're wondering why anybody would still have a December 2 paper around the house, the explanation is very simple. Many people are still saving newspapers for the salvage drives, but didn't turn in their collections during the recent bad weather.

NEW WORDS DEPT.

Margaret Jacques of 215 Spring ave., Takoma Park, Md., contributes some daffy definitions to our collection:

Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. brings us up to date on the latest neologism at George Washington University.

MAIL BAG

"It's too bad," writes James A. Miller of 2937 Nelson pl. se., "that Howard (WINX) Williams' contest wasn't won by Mrs. Williams.

"You see, Howard is a fraternity brother of mine in Alpha Theta Epsilon, and his wife is in the Ladies Auxiliary.

"Howard is never very eager to baby-sit with his own little boy so that his missus can attend auxiliary meetings.

"That's why I say it's too bad Mrs. W. didn't win her husband's baby-sitting services. If she had, she could have joined the girls at the next auxiliary meeting."

Maybe the listeners ought to run a contest now and let Howard's wife win it.

CZECH AND DOUBLE CZECH

HOLLYWOOD.—Sid Silvers, who has been writing film musicals, was asked about his returning to Broadway musical comedy. Silvers, once an office boy for George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris, replied by telling this story: One day he heard Harris ask Cohan: "George, why don't we do another musical comedy? What are we waiting for?" And Cohan, defining the basic pattern for Broadway musicals, said: "We'll do it as soon as I find a different way for the two comedians from Brooklyn to have the poor girl meet the rich guy, split 'em up in trying to help her, and then getting them together again for the big finale."

REALTY DEPT.: The housing problem is still so acute that by shrewd bargaining Harry Kurnitz was able to buy a $35,000 house for only $65,000. "There was so much negotiating to do, and I took such a rooking," he said, "that living in the house is now an anti-climax."

SOCIAL NOTE: George Cukor, the director, left for England this week to see the London production of "Edward, My Son," which he will adapt for the screen. Constance Collier gave him some packages to deliver to her London friends. "This," said Miss Collier, pointing to one package, "is for the Marchioness of Hartford. As a friend of mine, you may call her Lady Hartford."

VACATION NOTE: Frank Loesser, who was just nominated for the Academy Award for his song, "I Wish I Didn't Love You So," went to Palm Springs for the weekend. A New York visitor told him: "It's very nice here at Pollum Springs, California" . . . "Not Pollum Springs," Loesser corrected him. "It's pronounced 'Palm' Springs" . . . "I'm sorry," said the man. "I guess I was confusing it with Pollum Beach, Florida."

PRESS DEPT.: Charles MacArthur, Nunnally Johnson and Gene Fowler were newspaper reporters together. MacArthur has just become editor-in-chief of the new Theater Arts-Stage magazine. He immediately wired Johnson and Fowler: "Don't judge me too hastily. I'll explain everything."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Rayburn Tries to Stem Revolt

By Drew Pearson

Texas' shiny-pated Sam Rayburn, Democratic former Speaker nearly staged a rebellion within a rebellion when he got wind of southern plans for a "rump caucus" to protest the President's civil-rights program.

Rep. Rayburn

What made Sam most sore was an attempt to wean the Texas delegation away from him and sign it over as a body to the rebels. Leader of the rebels was Representative Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, who championed the cause of the National Association of Manufacturers when it came to killing the OPA. Gossett was trying to pledge the Texas delegation in advance to the Southern stand against civil rights, when Rayburn suddenly discovered what he was up to.

Quickly calling Texas Congressmen to his office, Rayburn reminded them that it was long-standing practice for the delegation never to commit itself as a group. If any individuals wished to sign the resolution against civil rights, they should do it on their own, he argued.

Wright Patman, Paul Kilday, and J. M. Combs sided with Rayburn, and urged the Congressmen to have more consideration for their leader. Combs warned that the question is an explosive one, involving human rights, and made an appeal for tolerance.

But Gossett wouldn't budge, and later took a leading part in the rebel conference. He was joined by Olin Teague, Tom Pickett, Lindley Beckworth, and W. R. Poage, plus Representatives of 10 other Southern States.

Backstage Steering

Working behind the scenes for two weeks, a "steering committee" headed by Mississippi's William Colmer had been drafting anti-civil-rights resolutions and tearing them up again. Finally they settled upon a comparatively mild one, submitted by J. Bayard Clark of North Carolina. This was circulated among the delegations for signatures, paving the way for the final meeting.

At this meeting the voice of Mississippi's rootin' tootin' John Rankin, as usual, was the loudest. He took off with a deafening roar, well seasoned with fire-and-brimstone.

At first, Rankin opposed group action, repeatedly calling attention to his long personal fight for Southern principles. When he saw that a group resolution would be adopted in spite of him, he raised a howl for stronger language.

"Frankly, I think it isn't strong enough," he barked after Gossett read Clark's resolution which by then had been adopted by the steering committee.

Army Censorship

Some Army commanders still don't seem to realize that the war's over. For instance, General MacArthur still operates an airtight censorship. It's impossible for an American newsman to visit Japan and write what he wants about MacArthur's rule of the Japanese.

And at Fort Riley, Kans., the other day, Gen. I. D. White at first seemed to think that wartime censorship still prevailed.

General White was queried by long distance telephone about the court-martial of Lieut. Vernon Brooks, Lubbock, Tex., who was acquitted of being drunk and wrongfully striking an enlisted man.

"Sorry, but we intend to publish it."

"By what authority?" challenged the general.

"By the authority of the Constitution of the United States, general, which says that the American people have a right to know about courts-martial and the treatment of enlisted men."

General White then said he would look into the matter and see what could be made public. Later, he phoned the facts—namely that Lieutenant Brooks at 3 a. m. on February 8 had struck Pvt. James R. Snowball of Fort Wayne, Ind., who at that time was in civilian clothes. Lieutenant Brooks was acquitted on the plea that he thought Private Snowball was taking Army property and also because of the lieutenant's own 10-year record in the Army. No enlisted men were present at the court-martial.

Note — General White, having been challenged by this column regarding the public's right to know the facts, then proceeded to scoop this column by rushing to all other newspapers with news of the court-martial.

New Air Program

Senator Owen Brewster's congressional aviation advisory committee will soon present its formal recommendations.

Brewster's committee will recommend:

1. A huge five-year aviation program, building United States air power to such a peak it should obviate the necessity for universal military training. Old planes will be brought out of mothballs until a new building program produces new planes.

2. Coordination between military and commercial air systems: untangling and coordinating the country's air routes; establishing an independent agency to control air safety; unification of armed services aviation.

The congressional committee will blast both the Army and Navy for failure to achieve air unification. In fact, unification, it will find, is not even halfway around the corner.
